

Homey Hints.

CLEARNS A HANDBAG

The handbag or satchel, of undressed kid, when soiled by usage, need not be turned over to the professional cleaner. The secret of restoration is a piece of sandpaper rubbed over the surface. A very fine grade of sand-paper is required. When this is used with care the material is cleaned, and no injury to the material accrues. Many kinds of leathers without polished surfaces—for example, suede, undressed and oiled calfskin—can be cleaned thus.

LAMP GLASSES

To clean lamp glasses hold them over a fire of boiling water until well steamed, then polish with a dry duster. It is far less trouble than washing, and the glasses very rarely break.

SAVES CHIPPING

When washing valuable china or cut glass use a good plan to place a heavy Turkish towel at the bottom of the basin. This prevents all danger of the china and glass being chipped.

POLISH LINOLEUM

When the linoleum or floor-cloth has been washed and thoroughly dried make a little starch in a pint basin with boiling water and rub clean over with a clean cloth. It will dry very brightly, without any further rubbing or polishing, and has the advantage of being glossy without being slippery.

KEEPS EGGS

To preserve eggs, fill a wooden box with ordinary salt, smear each egg over with olive oil, and place in the salt with the point end downwards. Eggs so treated in this manner will keep fresh for some time.

SPRINKLE SARDINES

When a box of sardines is opened it should be kept covered with a lid. Then the little fish turned out and sprinkled with lemon juice. They should be drained again before packing. The lemon will keep the sardines fresh and make the sardines more palatable.

CURE FOR BURNS

A simple, good dressing for a burn is lime water and sweet or olive oil in equal parts. A soft cloth, dipped in it, should be applied over a burn, and on this a layer of absorbent cotton or clean cloth.

RICKETS IN POLISH

To clean buckskin shoes get five cents' worth of whitening from the drugist. Put a small quantity in a dish with enough water to dilute until it is like milk. Apply with an old tooth brush and let it dry. This is cheap and simple.

WASH-DAY HINT

Many housewives will be glad to know that a slice of lemon, cut thickly and with the rind on, if put into the boiler when boiling the clothes, will make the laundry beautiful and help to keep it from turning yellow. The clothes are ready to be taken out.

CULTIVATE THRIFT

Nowadays, when there are so many ways for children to spend money foolishly, it is wise to encourage thrift. Try getting them to save up their pennies until they have enough to buy a hen, sell the eggs and put the money in the bank. Or, if they wish, another hen may be purchased with the savings. This is meant for the child who lives in a place where the backyard is big enough to keep a few chickens.

TAKERS COLOR OUT

To take the color entirely out of a cotton dress after it has become somewhat faded, boil the dress in cream of tartar water. A perfectly white dress results.

WASHING WOOL

To prevent wool shrinking when washing it avoid sudden changes in temperature of the water and the use of strong soaps. Wash and rinse in water of the same temperature. Dry in a shady place.

STARCHED GOODS

Starched goods should be dried and then sprinkled with water and rolled up lightly until they are thoroughly damp. Otherwise the iron marks are liable to stick, particularly so if the garment is rather wet and the iron only warm.

A BUSTY GRATE

It is little trouble to clean a rusty grate if it is blackened and left twenty-four hours or even for a couple of days. The blacklead will absorb the rust and the steel can then be polished in the ordinary way.

TO CLEAN WALL PAPER

Take a clean duster and dip it into dry powdered borax and rub briskly on the soiled paper. This method of cleaning wall paper will be found to be more effective than the usual way with stale bread.

CORNS, CORNS, CORNS

Tender corns, painful corns, soft corns, bleeding corns, every kind of corns that other remedies fail to cure—that's a good many—yield quickly to Putnam's Painless Corn Extractor. Used forty years in many lands. Largest sale in the world. Putnam's Painless Corn Extractor. The name you see tells its story. It removes corns and does it painlessly, but there is a pointer: he says you get Putnam's. Sold by druggists, price 25c.

OUR FRIEND, THE LEMON

Don't forget it. Use it internally. Apply it externally. It is simply invaluable. It serves as a nail bleacher. It will remove fur stains from the neck. Brown liver spots may be removed with a paste made of magnesia and lemon juice. The juice of half a lemon in a glass of hot water half an hour before breakfast may rid one of sallowness.

RABBIT'S LEG

Is Used by Surgeons to Piece Out a Boy's Arm.

These whose faith in the efficacy of the rabbit's leg, a rabbit killed in the dark of the moon, was wavering may have their weakened belief strengthened by learning that three inches of the left limb leg which supports the lucky foot has been used with apparent success in an operation to save a boy's arm.

The operation was performed by Dr. Ralph L. MacFarland, of No. 53 Clinton Avenue, Jamaica, L. I., chief of the surgical staff of the Jamaica hospital, upon Ralph Tomlinson, 12-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. James Tomlinson, of Oxford, Conn., near Ansonia. The boy is a relative of the surgeon.

On Nov. 27 the boy, dragging his father's double-barreled shotgun across the yard, fell. Both barrels were discharged. One charge grazed the boy's left forearm, the other entered the upper part of the arm, tearing away more than half the flesh and muscles with an inch and a half of the bone.

The bone was wired temporarily by a surgeon to hold it in place and Dr. MacFarland was summoned. He said that the only way to save the arm was to graft a piece of bone into the shattered part. The rabbit's leg was taken to the Memorial Hospital in Ansonia. Dr. DeLotto, of Derby, was called into aid and Dr. MacFarland. The boy was etherized, a rabbit killed and its left hind leg cut off.

A three-inch piece of the rabbit's bone was scraped and sterilized. One-half of this section, naturally smaller than the boy's humerus, was inserted into the ends of the bone, one of which the doctor had just cut away. The bone had been shot away. It broke through the ends of the humerus and through the rabbit's bone, and all was made fast with silver wire.

Dr. MacFarland said:

"I can see no reason why the operation should not be entirely successful. Of course, it is too soon to tell whether the rabbit and human bones will knit as we hope, but I feel confident that this will be the result. I do not think that the insertion of the rabbit bone will prevent the arm from growing as the boy grows. I believe the arm will grow just as its mate, for the growth comes from the end of the arm."

"Before the operation I could have twisted the boy's injured arm off as though it were a stalk of celery. But afterward it was found that by grasping the boy's wrist his whole arm could be swung from the shoulder, showing that the fastening of the bone was secure. I heard to-night that my young relative was doing nicely and that the infection there was very encouraging."

STOP AND THINK.

(Rochester Post-Express)

If men would only stop to ask themselves why they are tempted to let their names go with such sacred names, what is the meaning of the words I am moved to utter, they would be shocked to find that many of the names of the Market are names of others than those of reverence.

Facts for the Curious.

Harriman Langdon, of Castleton, Vt., who is not yet five years old, is thought to be the youngest farmer in that state. Last summer he planted seed and raised from one hill 26 pumpkins, one weighing 43, the other 24 pounds.

There flourishes in Chinese rivers and lakes small fish remarkable for its brilliant coloring of crimson and blue, says an exchange. It is called the paradise fish. In the sunlight it shows in rainbow hues. The most interesting thing about this little fish is the nest made by the male of glutinous and bubbles below the surface of the water, and measuring up to six inches across. Here it places the eggs, some 200 in number, and counts guard over them during incubation.

HEADGEAR FOR WEE GIRLS.

It is simple. It is elaborate. It is most becoming. It must suit the occasion. Simple hats are for ordinary wear. Dress hats are made of lace and embroidery. These chaparrans are essentially soft and fluffy. Very little trimming is on these dainty dress hats. Soft black velvet, or a black rosette, in pink or blue, or a bunch of rosebuds suffices.

A TOWER OF SKULLS.

There exists in Nish, in southeast Serbia, a curious monument of modern barbarism. During the war of independence, in 1900, the Serbian garrison here exploded a powder magazine and perished therein rather than fall into the hands of the Turks.

A battle had previously taken place, and the Turks, to change the packet, erected a tower of skulls ornamented with the heads of their enemies. Aged inhabitants of this district assure the visitor that there were once 1,200 heads, but as the tower was never more than 25 feet high, this is probably an exaggeration.

Lamartine and other travellers relate that they saw hair still clinging to the skulls, which must have presented a gruesome spectacle. During many years visitors were in the habit of carrying off skulls as souvenirs, but when Nash took away the remainder were taken away for decent burial, all save a few that were too deeply imbedded. Recently the remains of the lower jaw have been covered with a roof to protect these against the elements, and they are regarded in a pious object of patriotic pilgrimages. —Kemp's Weekly.

A QUESTION FOR LADIES.

It will be shocking to the Prohibitionists, who were the first national party to declare for women suffrage, to learn that the Colorado Equal Suffrage Association is protesting vigorously against a proposed law prohibiting the sewing of intoxicants to females. The Colorado suffragists say that the law would be a restriction of the liberty of women citizens, and they demand a single standard of morals for men and women. Does not the slightest violation against a man result in his being no longer a citizen? Has not every woman's standard been drawn to his level?

HIS APOLOGY.

On one of the Highlander passenger steamers the sailor in charge of the passengers' luggage was having a hot time. One old lady especially so, needlessly worried the seaman that at length in exasperation he gave her a cordial invitation to go to Jericho.

The indignant old dame stalked to the captain and breathed forth her complaints about her steward's knowing and ignorant. The captain advised the sailor, for his own good, to apologize. After some persuasion the Highlander sailed up to the approved passenger, and looking sheepishly at her, said in his imperfect English:

"Are you the old lady that was told to go to Jericho?"

"Yes," she replied.

"Well," with a gulp, "the captain says you needn't." —Tit Bits.

THE WORLD WILL LOSE.

Just a poor little home of two rooms, scrupulously clean; with but the most abject necessities—a woman, lying upon the bed, white faced with the agony that is woman's heritage.

She looked about the room so pitifully bare, and wondered what life could give in such a place worth living; if it could hold any compensation for the things we all—the world—count worth while.

She looked at the big hulking man standing at the bedside, and wondered still more where in that lump of "common" clay any woman could find a spark of "divine" fire.

She asked herself in secret what could be the heritage for a child born to such environments as this.

And suddenly the room became vocal with things long forgotten; the homely arm chair with the home-made foot-stool for "chair" feet; the small rocker, like a living presence close beside it; the pile of "divine" garments, and coarse with every stitch set by loving fingers for the joy to come. Then, lol a miracle.

A wee sikken head lying close to the mother breast, the light that nowhere else "shines here on sea nor land"—the light of fatherhood in man's eyes.

And she KNEW; she who had been so proud of her "profession," who had boasted of her power to "fix" her life.

She knew that however full of life might be otherwise, it was empty within the love that makes any place home because the heart is there—the love that counts all else well lost to feel the clinging of baby fingers and the nodding of a baby head against her woman's breast.

And she KNEW that to be born of such a fatherhood and motherhood was to be born to greater heritage than that of kingly crowns or strain of bluest blood.

SEAMLESSNESS.

Be seamless. That is the vogue. There's mystery in it. The less seams the more style. Dresses don't look cut and seamed. They are rather matters of drapery. Seamed effects dominate dresses for evening.

But even tailored rigs show us few seams as possible.

World's Biggest Organ.

The new organ which is to be placed in the new cathedral now in course of erection in Liverpool will probably be classed among the wonders of the world, as it will be the largest organ in existence. According to the Musical Times, the organ in the St. Mary's Town Hall now has the distinction of standing first in point of size.

The Liverpool organ will take four years to construct. It will contain 215 drawers, speaking and mechanical, and the total number of pipes will reach the remarkable number of 10,567. It will occupy two special chambers, one on each side of the chancel. It is the gift of Mrs. James Barrow, of Waterloo, near Liverpool, and will cost £20,000.

INTERNATIONAL BLACKMAIL.

Roumania, whose King is a Hohenzollern and whose Queen writes poetry, which rarely seems in prose. But is said to be a highly spiritual nature, seems at present to be engaged in an operation which, if practised by individuals, would be termed plain blackmail of a very low type. Her parents to Bulgaria to resort to arms if she is not granted additional territory by way of "compensation" for having put off the present Balkan troubles will probably find no defenders outside of Austria, at whose instance it has doubtless been made. It only goes to prove that when international politics are concerned the rules of fair play and morality are practiced in private life do not apply. "Business" "Slick" aspirations for higher things do not seem to be shared by her royal mate at Buelarest.

THE HOME DRESSMAKER

suppressing the skirt to be turned is a black skirt. Before beginning the work of "turning" go out and buy a dozen yards of black military braid. Then come home and go to work. Cut off the band of the skirt, and unpick the packets; turn the whole thing inside out, and cut off all the seam turnings quite close to the stitching.

Each seam must be covered in the same way.

A packet of a skirt is always on the left side. So after having turned your skirt and covered the seams carefully, the next step is to change the packet over to the other side. Rip off the turnings used to bind the packet, and sew them onto the newly opened seam on the other side. Fasten up the old packet and bring the braid up over it, hiding the place where it had been completely.

Put on a new band. Hem up the bottom of the skirt, and the new garment is complete.

This method is suitable especially for a straight skirt.

UTILIZING WASTE.

(Philadelphia Record.)

It is perhaps a mistake to say there is any such thing as waste matter. In fact, recently read before the London Royal Society of Arts it was shown that sawdust when subjected in closed receptacles to distillation with a weak sulphuric acid solution under pressure of 100 pounds to the square inch undergoes a very effective and remarkable transformation. Of the resulting product, sugar is an important constituent, the amount being about 25 per cent. A number of valuable products are formed in the process, among them acetic acid, furfural and formaldehyde. It has not been possible to prepare from the sawdust a crystalline sugar, but a converted fibrous product known as "cellulose" has proved of great nutritional value as a cattle food when mixed with a small quantity of molasses or of some fatty substance.

OUR PERFORMANCE.

We live all our aspirations, aspirations, and do something that is fine and noble. But the performance is very much poorer than we purpose and plan. In fact, often the result of our performance is so poor that one looking at it would ever suspect us of the aspiration at all. And, of course, the worse we perform, the more like we all are. We look at him from the outside and we could hardly dream that he was dreaming of the time and noble things that we are. But probably he is, even though his performance may be very poor indeed. It may help him, it may help us, to remember how little what we see may represent the real man. To know that another even believes in our aspirations may help greatly to make our reaching after them.

VOICES AND THREATS IN ULSTER

(Chicago Tribune)

The Ulster cause must be somewhat out of countenance. The "red hand" did not write enough ballots in the Londonderry district Friday, a National candidate wrote enough in the Londonderry and the Irish party now number more votes from Ulster in the British parliament than the party which opposes home rule for Ireland. The friends of home rule triumph in the territory of its enemies.

It need not be insisted that the representation in parliament accurately indicates what might be the result of a referendum on the straightway proposition of home rule. If that were substituted in Ulster, but the result of the election in the Londonderry district is none the less disconcerting. It is disconcerting to such "red hands" as Sir Edward Carson, who has pictured the militant and marching Ulsterman, drilling and looking to Germany, as ready to split the Irish party from the rest of the party. The "last ditchers" necessarily verges on the ludicrous.
