THE WESTERN FAIR London, Ontario

The Western Fair, of London, Ontario, will be held this year September 5th to 13th. Already active preparations are being made for it. The grounds present a very active appearance as dozens of workmen are engaged in their work day after day. A new addition 66 x 75 feet in being erected to the Main Building and the space in same is practically all taken. An addition is also being erected to the Poultry Building, which was absolutely necessary on account of the overcrowding of the old building. The Government has kindly come to the assistance of the Association in the erection of these new buildings. A large amount of money is also being expended in necessary repairs and improvements throughout the Grounds, the City of London kindly helping in this matter. The Grounds and Buildings will be in first class condition when the opening day of the Exhibition arrives. Any information regarding the Exhibition in any of our departments will be furnished on application to M. Hunt, Secretary, Room 302 Dominion Savings Building, London, Ont.

The Antisocial Newspaper

It is hard to put yourself back in imagination into the condition of things before the newspaper existed. Take a country village, or a small provincial town, or even a large city, three hundred years ago. The isolation of the inhabitants was complete. Even of what was going on they could have only a limited and imperfect knowledge. The outer world simply could not come to them at all. The facts of political or social progress, the great achievements of industry, the history and character of public men, even events like war or great disasters that shook the framework of society were spread only by the slow progress of lip to lip conveyance, or perhaps not until they were stated in the cold pages of historical record. Now the newspaper binds the whole world together, brings Europe and Asia to your breakfast-table, makes the speech and garb and gesture of heroes and leaders as familiar as those of a friend or a relative. As between community and community, there is no seclusion, there is no privacy any more. But it is curious to reflect on the exact opposite truth, that although the newspaper tends to unite communities, it tends to separate individuals. In former days the only way a man could learn of what was going on in the world was to get out among his fellows, to make large acquaintance and to be in contact with as many souls as he possibly could. Now the easiest way to learn what is going on in the world is to stay at home. Two neighbors sit beside each other in the car, and instead of talking eagerly about public affairs, they extinguish themselves behind their newspapers. A man stays in his office all day and sells shoes and talks of shoes, and at night he sits down by the fire with his newspaper. But in the twentieth century, which is to change so many things, will perhaps change that also. There are signs that men are beginning to feel more the need of other men, a need that printers' ink can never satisfy.

Minister Dead

Pittsfield, Mass., July 8. — Rev. Alexander Turnbull, aged 61, a native of Waterford, Ont., and prominent for many years as a Canadian Baptist clergyman and missionary on the frontier of Canada, died in a tragic manner at the House of Mercy, where he had been staying. He suddenly threw up his hands and with a groan fell the floor dead. He had suffered from heart failure for five years. His first pastorate was at Belleville. He studied for the ministry at Simcoe, Ont., attended Woodstock College and graduated at Toronto in 1873. The body was sent to Waterford and interment took place there last week.

A Southern Missouri man was being tried on a charge of assault. The state brought into court as the weapons used a rail, an ax, a pair of tongs, a saw and a rifle. The defendant's counsel exhibited as the other man's weapons a scythe blade, a pitchfork, a pistol and a hoe. The jury's verdict is said to have been: "Resolved, that we, the jury, would have given one dollar to have seen fight.—Exchange.

The question of Good Roads seems to be far from settled in Norfolk county. It appears that the last word has not yet been spoken on the making of roads and the materials that should be used in them. If we wait for the last word we will have to do the best we can with mud and sand for many generations. Perhaps some clever scientist will invent a process by which Walsingham clay and Charlotteville sand can be cheaply converted into rock by some simple process. The hope is not very bright but it might be better to wait and see.—Port Rowan

Automobiles are prohibited from running in Prince Edward Island by Provincial statute. At the last session of the Local Legislature a bill was passed to permit autos to run on the island, subject to the approval of the people of the different municipalities, expressed by a popular vote. The popular vote has been taken and is against permitting auto traffic on the island. In that one Province therefore, autos will continue to be debarred.

A century ago there were in all Europe only 22 cities with more than 100,000 inhabitants.

Newspapers are being reduced in number each year. Galt has a population 12,000 and now has only one newspaper. No activity has been harder hit by the advanced cost of running a business than the newspaper business. One solution of the difficulties facing newspaper publishers and one which is growing in favor with them, is the adoption of the pay-in-advance system. In the business world to-day trend is toward cash trade, and the foot prints on the sands of time are heading that way.
