THREATENED WITH PARALYSIS

Peter E. Summers relates his experience: "I was troubled with nervous debility for many years. I tried every remedy and was threatened with paralysis. I took all kinds of medicines and tried many first-class physicians, but received little benefit. I was induced to consult Dr. Kennedy & Kennedy, though I had lost all faith in doctors. After a few treatments I commenced the New System Treatment and it saved my life. The improvement was like magic—I could feel the vigor going through the system. I was cured mentally and physically. I have sent them many patients and continue to do so."

Finger Made Over Into A Nose.

Los Angeles, Cal., May 1.—Mrs. Mabel Johnston was discharged from the Pasadena Hospital yesterday with the little finger of her left hand knitted on her face and doing duty as a nose. Mrs. Johnston lost her real nose in an operation. The finger tip was placed between the eyes, the bone removed to make nostrils and to day she was breathing easily.

Poor appetite is a sure sign of indigestion. A few doses of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets will strengthen and invigorate your appetite. Thousands have been helped by using these Tablets. Sold by All Dealers.

The Tower of Pisa.

The famous leaning tower of Pisa is a campanile or bell tower. The building, which is cylindrical in form, is 197 feet high and 50 feet in diameter, made entirely of white marble. It is called the leaning tower from the fact that it inclines some thirty feet from the perpendicular, and it is not generally known that this inclination, which gives the tower such a remarkable appearance, was not intentional. At the time it was about half done the error in measurement was perceived. It was guarded against by the use of extra braces in the further construction of the building and an adaptation of the stone in the highest portion. There are seven bells on the top of the tower, the largest of which weighs 2,000 pounds, and these are so placed as to counteract as far as possible the leaning of the tower itself.

Wind Superstitions.

The Finns of Norway long entertained a traditional belief in the power of controlling the winds by a small rope with three knots in it. This popular superstition gave rise to the curious industry of making and selling these wind-controlling ropes with magical knots to mariners and fishermen. It was believed that by unloosing the first knot a favorable breeze was secured, the second raised the strong gale, and if the third knot was untied it would prove the prelude to a tempest. According to Ranulph Higden, the witches of the Isle of Man had a similar ancient practice of selling winds to sailors.

A Use For Him.

"Boy, if you'll come around some day when I am not so busy I'll see if I can make a place for you." "Thank you, sir. It seems rather difficult for us business men to coordinate in arranging our moments of comparative leisure, doesn't it? Good after!" "Hold on, youngster. I'll give you the job of standing off the college presidents when they come around here with subscription papers. Hang up your hat."

Making Progress.

"Well, Tommy," said the father of a six-year-old youngster, "how are you getting along at school?" "Bully!" rejoined Tommy. "Guess the teacher is going to promote me." "What makes you think so?" "She said to-day that if I kept on at the rate I was going I'd soon be in the criminal class," explained Tommy.

WHAT THE POSTMAN BRINGS.

Next to the Pope, the Kaiser gets the Greatest Supply of Letters.

When it comes to a goodly supply of letters the mail bag of no single person nor institution for that matter rivals that of the Vatican. Next to the Pope the Kaiser receives the greatest number of written communications of all kinds and descriptions, fully half being addressed personally to the head of the German nation. Never less than 7,500 letters daily are received by Emperor William, the larger proportion of which, it is no exaggeration to say, is made up of appeals to right wrongs about which he knows nothing and would be powerless to act if he did. Many are private diplomatic letters.

After him comes the President of the United States, who gets a daily average of 5,000 letters. The mail of the present King of England has dwindled to 2,500 letters, probably a third of the number received by his father. The mail bag of the Czar is smaller still, about 500 persons writing daily to this ruler well known to be hedged in by officialdom.

It is said that the royal palace in Madrid gets 300 letters, addressed for the most part to King Alfonso, but a share falling to the lot of the Queen. The Italian King gets only about 200 letters daily, while the mail bag of the President of France varies greatly. When the foreign population in Paris is most numerous his mail reaches as high an average as the American President, but in other months the average is comparatively small. It is said that the Emperor of Japan has only recently begun to be troubled in this manner, letters to him being mainly in the nature of appeals to add by swift and glorious war to the territory of the sun kingdom.

The Oldest of Banknotes.

It is held that the oldest banknotes are the "flying money" or "convenient money" of China. Originally these notes were issued by the Chinese treasury, but experience dictated a change to the system of banks under Governmental control. The early Chinese banknotes were, in most essentials, similar to the modern banknote, bearing the name of the bank, the date of issue, the number of the note, the signature of the official issuing it, indications of its value in figures, words and pictorial representations of coins or heaps of coins equal to the value of the note, together with a notice of the penalties for counterfeiting. There was also a laconic exhortation to industry and thrift in these terms: "Produce all you can; spend with economy." The notes were in blue ink on paper made from the fiber of the mulberry tree.

Disinfecting Linen

In cases of measles, scarlet fever, and other infectious diseases it is highly important that the linen used by the patient should be disinfected at once, especially where the laundry is done outside the home, otherwise it may become a source of danger to the persons handling it, or it may infect the hampers in which it is stored or carried. Here are two or three simple but effective methods to accomplish this purpose. One of the best is to moisten with a weak solution of copper sulphate, the "one twentieth." This sterilizes without injuring, and the faint blue tinge left is removed by washing. Calcium chloride is likewise effective, but it smells strongly which is often objectionable. In the Pasteur Hospital a 2 per cent solution of cresylene is employed to sprinkle the objects. This completely sterilizes in 24 hours.
