Value Of Space

SPACE VALUE IN THE JARVIS RECORD is worth more to those wishing to reach the homes of Jarvis than by any other method or use. This journal goes into all the homes all the time. It is appreciated and READ BY HUNDREDS.

If you want to rent an office, home, etc., there is no better way than through these columns. Likewise the sale or attention of any article. It is true our rates are just a little higher than some other journals, but value counts. There is more value in Jarvis advertising than the rate warrants. Try us!

The Saving Habit

Many people who are earning less than you, and whose necessary expenses exceed yours, have been saving for years and now have snug and comfortable bank accounts. Systematic saving was the foundation of many a large fortune.

It is a habit that is easily formed, affording more satisfaction and offering larger rewards than any other habit that you could form. You can open an account in this bank with one dollar, and every six months your savings will be credited with the highest current interest.

ASKED FOR A CRITICISM.

The Lecturer Got a Reply and a Big Surprise as Well.

Mr. Albon P. Man, the American scientist who invented incandescent lighting by the use of a carbon filament in a vacuum, when he was about seventy years of age looked more like a banker than a scientist and in the subdued light of a lecture room appeared at a distance like a young man. Some years ago he attended a lecture in Brooklyn upon the higher problems of electrical science, delivered by a "professor" with many titles and degrees. At the close the speaker called for comments and criticisms from the auditors.

Mr. Man, who was sitting well back in the hall arose and, quoting a long statement from the lecture concerning a difficult process, asked if he had heard it correctly.

"With remarkable accuracy, sir," replied the lecturer. "They are almost my very words."

The inventor then clearly but cogently tore the lecturer's argument to pieces, gently to the latter's astonishment and to the amusement of the audience. As he sat down the lecturer said:

"I can hardly reply at present. You seem to have some information on the subject."

"Yes," replied Mr. Man. "I discovered the process myself nearly thirty years ago."—Pearson's Weekly.

COURTSHIP IN SPAIN.

A Difficult Business in Which Speaking Tubes Play a Part.

In Spain, as is well known, a rigorous etiquette governs the business of love-making. A young man cannot interview his sweetheart without her parents' consent, and indeed all conversation openly carried on between the couple must be in the presence of the fair one's mother.

Many subterfuges are adopted by the lovers to overcome this difficulty, and the "reja"—the ornamental ironwork on the windows of Spanish houses—has become one of the favorite trysting places. Modern life, however, has imposed fresh barriers. If a young man's sweetheart lives on the third floor of a city building he cannot very well meet her at the "reja."

In this as in other spheres of life necessity is the mother of invention, and some ardent lovers have brought speaking tubes to their assistance. The seniorita, at the appointed hour, lowers this to her lover below, and they are thus able to carry on their love affairs with the assurance that they are not overheard by the people on the intervening flats, as would be the case if the conversation were carried on without such aid.—London Answers.

Thackeray's Favorite Books.

In her introduction to the "Round-about Papers" in the centenary edition of Thackeray, Lady Ritchie speaks of her father's favorite books. Thackeray had an old Montaigne, which he always kept on the table by his bed. He had a second copy, still older, bound in white vellum, on the book shelves in his study. Lady Ritchie cannot remember that he had any particular feeling for special editions. "He used a cheap, battered old Boswell with double columns, the companion with whom, as he said, he could have been quite content to dwell for a year upon that problematical desert island. He loved his 'Don Quixote.' He also liked his shabby, worn eaten copy of Johnson's poets. They had been to India and back, and bookworms are very common out there." Milton's sonnet to Shakespeare in Johnson's poets was
