STILL LARGER GUNS.

New British Vessel to Have 15 inch Weapons.

When the report upon the new Jap-ande 14 inch guns was received, British experts concluded that a limit to the size of modern artillery had been reached. But the limit in this direction is by no means in sight, for the battleship that will constitute a naval record-H. M. C. Warspite-will mount 15inch guns.

These great weapons will be the largest and most powerful guns in the world, no other nation, with the exception of Japan, having artillery with a greater calibre than 13.5 inches. Even Germany, after all her expenditure, cannot boast of guns of such immense

These monster pieces have a range of twenty miles, throwing a projectile 1.500 pounds; but their armor-piercing power is limited to about one-quarter that distance against 12 inch protection places. An interesting fact in connection with this shell is that the fuse is safe-guayded by a pin tested to stand a breaking blow equivalent to thirty tone, so that in the event of the projectile being accidestally dropped, which sometimes happens, there is little chance of it explod-

The earlier Dreadnoughts are armed with a 12-inch weapon, throwing a shell 860 pounds in weight. The Orion, however, and her nister ships are armed with 13.5-inch guns, while the weight of their projectile is 1,400 pounds-400 pounds ighter than the Warspite's.

The only limit that can be set upon the size of modern artillery is that of human endurance, and, as is well known. the concussion of the modern 13.5 inch gons is so terrible that gunnery experts are confident that if modern gun-making continues to progress at the present note the guns will become as deadly to Note who man them so to those against room they are directed.

At the present time the vibrations

enused by the explosion of a 12 inch gun are sufficient to shatter windows at a distance of four or five hundred yards, and when gunnery practice is arranged at big firing stations, such as Southsea Castle, the fact is advertised to the townpeople, who throw up all windows, though it be in the depth of winter, while the business folk take all precautionary measures against the effects of the concussion by padding their plate-glass windows.

Capital punishment remains on the statue book. But whether a man is hanged or not depends upon public sentiment and upon the energy of his friends, or his lack of friends. A friendless man will go to the gallows. Is that right? Is not his friendlessness as if capital punishment would have to be abolished, not altogether because of sentiment, but is order that there may be one law for all.

STUDY THE BOY. (Belleville Ontario)

Many a boy has a deep seated desire as to what he would be when he grows up, but it is not always that he gets any great sympathy for his dreams of any particular help towards preparation for this chosen work. It wouldn't be a bad idea if every father and mother should get personally acquainted with their sons and see to it that they are helped to follow their "bent," if that bent happens to be an honorable one.

LIKES FEMININE FASHIONS. (Ottawa Journal)

A good many people seem to be con-cerned about the dress of women these days. They profess to think it too gay, or too scanty, or too tight, or some-thing. Well, there is a good case to days. They profess to think it too gay, or too scanty, or too tight, of something. Well, there is a good case to argue that women's dress has never been more graceful or attractive or artistic than it is in the main now. Fashion at present follows the natural lines of the figure to a greater degree than in any previous time since the Greek era, and our idea is that the natural lines of the human figure are the best guide women's dress can have. Maybe the skirts are a bit circumscribed for a hundred yards, dash, and for practical purposes a bit of improvement could take place in the way of margin.

THE FALL WEATHER HARD ON LITTLE ONES

Canadian fall weather is extremely hard on little ones. One day it is warm and bright and the next wet and cold. These sudden changes bring on colds, cramps and colic and unless baby's little stomach is kept right the result may be serious. There is nothing to equal Baby's Own Tablets in keeping the little ones well. They sweeten the stomach, regulate the bowels, break up colds and make baby thrive. The Tablets are sold by medicine deslers or by mail at 25 cente a box from The Dr. Williame' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Here Are the Rules the Japa Find the Best.

Do you want to live 100 years? Then get married. At least, that is the advice for a long life given to the Japanese in the Tokio newspaper Jiji Shimpo.

There are other rules, too that must be followed in order to live 100 years. according to Jiji Shimpo, but being married is the most important of all of them. Most of the rules are based on common sense principles that are teing followed without question in America.

Here are a few of the rules that, if followed, will make you live 100 years: Get married. If you are a bachelor. ret married at once. It you are a widower, get married as soon as you can. (As it is a disgrace to be an old maid in Japan, it is not necessary to counsel the women concerning matrimony).

Sleep for seven hours in a dark room with the windows open wide.

Get to sleep as early in the evening as possible. Rise early, too. Bathe frequently. One or two baths each day is none too many. Never neglect to take at least one bath each

Lead and the Teeth.

A tendency of the teeth and gums to shoorb lead has been observed by Victor Hinze, a German dentist, among the workers in an accumulator factory. The teeth all had much tartar, and that scraped from the teeth of one man affected with anemia and other symptoms of poisoning was found by analysis to contain about one-half of one per cent. of metallic lead. Extracting the seventeen teeth still retained by this man the metallic lead in the crowns was shown to be 0.038 per cent. and 0.033 per cent in the roots sufficient to give continuous lead intoxication. The tartar was removed from the teeth of the other workers, and this was followed by marked improvement in the condition of gums and general

Caracul Sheep for the States.

In spite of the depressing news that furs are yearly becoming rarer and, therefore, more expensive, wemen who are content to have their winter wraps made of the unpretentious caracul may look forward hopefully to the time when their caracul garments will be grown on this continent.

Dr. C. C. Young has just returned from Bokhara, Central Asia, and has b: ught with him a herd of nineteen full blooded caracul sheep for breeding purposes. It is learned that he will put ten of these animals on his ranch at Belen, Texas, and nine on his ranch at Roswell, N. M. Caracul sheep produce a fine, valuable fur instead of wool, even when crossed with certain grades of sheep, according to Dr. Young, who also says that the climate and grasses . his district in Mexico are suitable for the raising of caraculs. He had a number of them here for a time in 1910 and 1911.

The Torture of Forcible Feeding.

Writing about her suffrage experience in England. Zelie Emerson, the American girl he joined the militants, 'tells about foreible feeding in prison. She says in the Oclober Metropolitan:

The door was opened and the doctors came in with six of the wardresses. This time' the feeding cup has been discarded for the tube, and as they could not open my teeth, the nasal tube was used. Two wardresses threw themselves across my legs and the others seized my hands, head and shouldes, and it began. What can one do with such odds against

At last it was over and the doctors went out and I was left alone with my thoughte. Never before had I realized the high courage that these women of Hundreds of England possess. them have endured this disgraceful thing, and not one has ever given in. Cannot the Government understand that the more it punishes the women, the more determined a spirit it creates? Every time the doctors entered my cell to focibly feed me they offered me some new bribe to give up the hunger strike. But, strength was given to resist them and I remained firm. By this time my nose had become so sore and inflamed that it was impossible to force the tube through it any longer and the doctors decided to put the tube down my throat. But nature gave me a good strong set of teeth, and as I set them tight it was impossible to get the tube in. So they held my nose and poured in as much of the liquid through one small gap in my teeth as they could, until my mouth was full and must either open my mouth or swallow the food. Of course, I would not do that, so, although I only opened my teeth to spit out the food, the doctors would slip in the gag, and in spite of by resistance and the pai nit caused me, they would turn the gag round and round until my jaws were forced wide apart. Then they would pour in a pint of cold, nauseating liquid and leave me ill and shaken with the struggle and tortured with indigestion, from which all the time I was in prison nad many, many weeks afterward I was never free.

France says England has lost its sense of taste. Is America also in danger of losing one of the five great senses? According to the Carnet d'Epicure, a French magazine devoted to foods, English people are forgetting the real taste of food. Instead of enjoying the real tastes of the foods as they should, English people, the magazine says, destroy all taste by covering their food with salt, pepper and condiments. Then all food tastes alike and the real flavor is lost. In days of savagery seasoning was unknown. Meats were eaten raw or cooked slightly over an open fire. After that roasting came into practice. But it was much later when seasoning was used on food. All French chefe who are following the dictates of fashion in regard to food are going back, many centuries back. to the days when foods were enjoyed for their individual flavor, and not for the taste of condiments. So if you wish to be in style gastronomically you must follow the dictates of the French chefs: Use few condiments. Use a little salt, but limit it. Use no strong pepper.
