The Fatal Sunday

Take up any Monday morning newspaper and scan the first page headlines. You know in advance what you will see: "Eight Men Drowned, Fishing Party's Boat Capsized in gale." "Only Four Rescued." "Two Cannibal Lost. Tipped Overboard Trying to Change Seats." "Caught in the Undertow. Sky-Larking Fisherman Carried Away Before Eyes of Passengers." Then comes the automobile accident—the car of "pop-rippers," a drunken driver, and the inevitable crash that kills three of them and maims two others; the racing-machine wrecked because it was driven by some brainless son of Croesus with no regard for the lives of either of those in it or of those without; the old man killed at the street crossing because the chauffeur took chances. Scattered thru the paper you will find the accounts of other accidents, and worse still, of the health that begins at picnic, or a game of cards or a drinking-party, and that end in the flesh of a knife or the report of a revolver—"Victim Died at Emergency Hospital. Assailant Held On Charge of Murder."

There is no exaggeration in the picture. Every Sunday in the summer tells the same grim story of folly, tragedy and crime; nor in the winter is the tale different, except that in the place of accidents to bathers, boating parties and automobilists, it is accidents to skaters, skaters and those who sail ice-boats. As for the causes of drink and hot blood, all seasons are alike. On the calendar of the week our Sundays are painted in red. The matter is not merely one of decreasing church attendance and the desecration of the Sabbath, or even of the "Continental Sunday." It is a question of self-restraint and self respect. A person may be able to ride on Sunday in an automobile or in a boat, go bathing, or climb a mountain, or take a tramp in the woods, and do it in the spirit in which George Herbert's servant swept the room—"as for Thy laws"; but those whose names appear in Monday morning's paper are not those who take their pleasures in that way.

THE WESTERN FAIR
London, Ontario
Although a number of important buildings on the Exhibition grounds at London have been destroyed by fire, the Directors of the Exhibition and the City Council have already erected buildings to take care of all Exhibits, and everything possible will be done for the comfort of Exhibitors, and visitors. Horse stalls have been erected and plenty of stable room provided. The Exhibition opens Friday, September 5th. Single fare over all railroads in Western Ontario.

COSTLY TREATMENT
"I was troubled with constipation and indigestion and spent hundreds of dollars for medicine and treatment," writes C. H. Hines, of Whitlow, Ark. "I went to a St. Louis hospital, also to a hospital in New Orleans, but no cure was effected. On returning home I began taking Chamberlain's Tablets, and worked right along, and am now all right." Sold by ALL DEALERS.
