Have a Mind of Your Own.

Did you ever meet the chap who did not have a mind of his own? Certainly you have. A minute's reflection on your part will pick him out of your circle of friends—perhaps he is duplicated several times in your list of acquaintances.

He is not exactly the man you would go to for advice if you were in trouble—you would not care a great deal for his opinion on any venture in which you were about to embark. But he is apt to be a rather popular fellow, perhaps for the simple reason that he agrees with everybody and everything.

He never answers a question with a straight "yes" or "no". He is gloriously indefinite in expressing an opinion. He always waits to take his lead from the man with whom he is conversing. He is a splendid second for the thoughts of the other chap.

After all there's something to admire about the man who will go to his best friend, and, looking him straight in the eye, say, "Look here, old chap, you're wrong in this," and frankly state his reasons. He is bound to be far more respected than the little jellyfish with the wobbly backbone, who will unflinchingly rub his hands and say, "Yes, very good, very good."

A Direct Appeal

To our many friends and patrons, we wish to express our hearty appreciation of your past favors, and assure you that while we have sold merchandise at ridiculously low prices, this sale will surpass all former efforts. We maintain that our business is perfectly solvent, but immediate pressing demands being such that we are forced to raise a large amount of ready cash in a short space of time explains why we are selling this high grade stock of merchandise regardless of cost or actual value.

Remember, these are only a few of the bargains that are being put forth at this Great Sale, as space will not permit a full list.
