The Burden of Labor

Behold, O God of seedtime,
Thy children, how they toil!
Scattering the seed before Thee
On the altar of the soil.
Thy little birds with music
Disport on joyous wing,
But we who feed the nations,
We are too tired to sing.
Behold, O God of harvest,
The burden of our days,
We gather in thy bounty
End may not stoop to praise.
Thy little bird around us,
The spell of music fling,
But we who feed the nations,
We are too tired to sing.
O God of those who labor
In field and mill and mine,
With whirling wheels to drive us,
Lo, we are also Thine!
Thy little birds a-litling
Come back to us each spring,
But we who feed the nations,
We are too tired to sing.

There is a post office ruling imposing a fine of $200 or a year's imprisonment on anyone who through carelessness or otherwise takes mail from the postoffice not belonging to them and fails to return it immediately. This applies to newspapers as well as letters.

The teacher was hearing her class of small boys in mathematics. "Edgar," she said, "if your father could do a piece of work in seven days, and your uncle William can do it in nine days how long would it take both of them to do it?" "They would never get done," answered the boy, earnestly. "They would sit down and tell fish stories."

Never send a dollar away from home when the article that the dollar will purchase can be obtained at home. Money is our financial blood. Its circulation keeps the business body alive. Bleed that body by sending money away and business will soon put on a look of lethargy. Always trade at home. Watch the bargains offered by enterprising advertisers in this paper and you will learn the best places to spend those home dollars.

How little we know of life. The dust under our feet which we think of with scorn if we think at all — to it we owe our life, and the joy that comes when we contemplate the beautiful in nature. The bird on the wing the blade of grass, the worm that crawls across our pathway, each has a knowledge of nature that we can never possess. Exalted as man is, the ruler of all things on earth, his ignorance of the varied forms of life is enormous. The farther he gets from nature the more stupid he becomes. His joys lessen daily. Are not the joys of life made up of the simple, natural things? Health and love and a clear conscience—these cannot be bought. Without them the world is a prison and life a burden. In the rush and struggle of a large city, in the fierce fight for place and wealth, it is difficult to keep the conscience untainted, and there is little time for love. And for health, do we not need the pure, invigorating air that blows across the open fields and through fine forests, the quiet, the purity, and the serenity of the country life?

Her many friends will be anxious to hear of her recovery.

The annual convention of the Women's Missionary Society will be held in Simcoe, in the Methodist church on Sept. 30, 1913. There will be sessions at 10 a. m., 2 and 8 p. m. The Teachers' Annual Convention of the County of Norfolk will be held in the Public School, Simcoe, on Thursday and Friday, Oct. 2 and 3, commencing at 9 a. m. sharp each day. A full and interesting program has been prepared and every teacher in the inspectorate is expected to be present, early and continuously at the sessions.

The violence of labor troubles all over the world makes it seem almost as if private property were in danger of being abolished; mankind appears to be divided into two classes, the few capitalists with millions, and an undistinguished which toils for those capitalists at a scanty wage. Remember that it is not so. As soon as you have a little house and a thousand dollars in the bank you are a capitalist, and the security of property is a necessary life to you, to your wife, and to your children.

One of the greatest changes of the age is the transmission of water-power in the form of electricity. But there are other natural agencies destined, perhaps, to work greater wonders still. Every day the tide exerts force equivalent to millions of horse-power, by which no man profits. Every day the wind gaily blows away energy enough to do a great part of the labor of the world. When future generations get control of powers like these, the clumsy and costly machinery of steam will become insignificant.

Probably the most important event in fraternal insurance of many years was the decision of the Independent Order of Foresters to put itself on an actuarial basis. It has been recognized for years that the Order was not sound; in fact, it now acknowledges an actuarial deficit of $22,000,000. When Elliott G. Stevenson became Supreme Chief Ranger, he set about an endeavor to put the house in order. On August 27 his years of patient and persistent efforts were crowned with success. On the same date he announced that he will out of his own personal income establish and maintain a home for friendless members of the Order and he will maintain policies of insurance on his life so as to endow the institution with $100,000 on his death.

DEATH'S SUDDEN CALL

Marguerite Irene Sharp Sudden Passed Away in Jarvis Last Thursday Evening.

The death of Marguerite Sharp, which occurred on Thursday evening last, coming as it did with such suddenness, was not only a terrible shock to the family and friends, but also to the entire community. She was apparently in the best of health and had partaken of a hearty dinner and returned to school, but soon returned to her grandmother's and complained of a headache, but nothing serious was looked for. She was made comfortable and slept for a couple of hours, when she took a vomiting spell. A doctor was summoned and although everything possible was done for her she passed away about six o'clock. Her mother, brother and sister were not home at the time, being at Simcoe attending the funeral of a niece, and the news of Marguerite's death on their arrival about half an hour later was a terrible shock to them. The deceased was a bright girl of fourteen and was always of a sunny cheerful disposition and a general favorite among her schoolmates. The funeral was held on Saturday afternoon to Knox church cemetery and was very largely attended. The services at the grave and afterward in the church being conducted by the pastor, Rev. Mr. MacCrimmon. The floral offerings were many and beautiful and included a wreath of roses from her schoolmates; and a spray of carnations from her teacher and Sunday school class of which she was a regular attendant. The others were as follows: Sprays of carnations from Dr. and Mrs. Jacques, Miss Lillian Allen, Mr. and Mrs. W. Simpson, Mr. and Mrs. J. Coonau, Mr. and Mrs. D. C. Allen, Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Roulston, Mr. and Mrs. J. Hawthorne; Sprays of asters, Mr. and Mrs. J. Noble, Mr. and Mrs. G. Steele, Mr. and Mrs. D. J. Lindsay; bouquet of asters, Miss M. Allen; cross, Mr. and Mrs. A. Hewson; spray of roses, Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Hewson, Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Burwash, Mrs. Wm. Hewson; Spray of asters and ferns, Mrs. McNeil; Pillow of Roses, from the family.

Six little girls in white acted as flower bearers, and the pall-bearers were Fred. and Albert Pettit, Bruce Smith, Claire Parkinson, Oril Williamson and John Dellar.

The family have the sympathy of the community in their sad and sudden bereavement.—Com.

OBITUARY

JAMES WESLEY MACFARLANE

Early on Friday morning last there died at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd MacFarlane, their infant son, James Wesley, aged 1 year, 2 months and 7 days.

"And, oh, when weary, may we be so blest,
And sink like the innocent child to rest,
And feel ourselves clasped to the Infinite breast."

Thus over a happy home the shadow of a little grave has fallen; and, as someone has truly said, it is wonderful how long a shadow a little grave can throw. This beautiful baby life was so precious, so fraught with blessing to his parents, that he seemed but a flower of paradise permitted to bloom for a brief season by their side, then recalled to its native skies, leaving the earth road for them dark and lonely indeed.

It was but a brief illness of less than a week that brought the early demise of this little one, a complication of affections prevalent among children of tender years proving too much for the little body, notwithstanding the loving care and attention from its fond parents and the best of medical skill.

The funeral was held on Saturday afternoon last at 4.30 o'clock, with interment at St. Paul's church cemetery, the Rev. J. H. Ross officiating. A large concourse of friends followed the remains of the departed little one to their last resting place.

The Record joins with their many friends in extending deepest sympathy to the bereaved parents in their sad loss.

The Creamery is doing a rushing business these days, and most of the time Jim Pollock is wearing a smile that makes the original Sunny Jim of breakfast food fame look like an undertaker. But it isn't all roses even at the Creamery and occasionally something happens that very nearly makes the smile come off. But Jim is usually equal to the occasion. The other day, a lady, well known in the village as an excellent cook, but somewhat "pernickety," called the creamery on the phone and asked Mr. Pollock if the cows that supplied the cream from which they make their butter were contented. Not being able to follow the drift of the query, Jim sprang for wind for a minute and then explained that he did not understand. "I have just been reading an article," replied the housewife, "in which it says that the product of cows that are not contented will, according to a German professor, often produce indigestion. Both my husband and myself have had a touch of it lately, and it has just struck me that it might be the butter." Mr. Pollock begged her to hold the line for a moment, then he went over and gnawed a corner off his desk, kicked the cat, and walked out the back door and repeated the Ten Commandments. When he got his voice under control, he returned to the phone. "I have just been looking up the books," he said in his nicest manner, and am happy to be able to say we have not received a single complaint from a single cow."—Thamesville Herald.
