Oddfellows at Church.

The following are the hymns to be used at the Oddfellows' service to be held in the Methodist Church on Sunday morning next at 11 a.m..-

ffymn No. 1.

Thou God of power, thou God of love, Whose glory fills the realms above, Whose praise archangels sing, And veil their faces while they cry Thrice holy," to their God most high,

Thee as our God we too would claim, And bless the Saviour's precious name Through whom this grace is given; He bore the curse to sinners due; He forms their ruined souls anew. And makes them heirs of Heaven.

"Thrice holy," to their King;

The veil that hides thy glory rend, And here in saving power descend. And fix thy blest abode: Here to our hearts thyself reveal. And let each waiting spirit feel The presence of our God.

Hymn No. 2.

My faith looks up to thee. Thou lamb of Calvary, Saviour divine; Now hear, me while I pray. Take all my sins away, O let me from this day Be wholly thine.

May thy rich grace impart Strength to my fainting heart, My zeal inspire: As thou hast died for me. O may my love to Thee Pure, warm and changeless be A living fire.

While life's dark maze I tread, And griefs around me spread, Be then my guide: Bid darkness turn to day, Wipe sorrow's tears away. Nor let me ever-stray

From thee aside. When ends life's transient dream. When death's cold, sullen stream Shall o'er me roll. Blest Saviour, then, in love, Fear and distrust remove. O bear me safe above,

A ransomed soul.

Hymn No. 3.

Hark, the voice of Jesus calling, "Who will go and work to-day? Fields are white and harvests waiting, Who will bear the sheaves away?" Loud and long the Master calleth. Rich reward he offers free; Who will answer gladly saying,

"Here am I, O Lord send me. ?" Let nowe hear you idly saying. "There is nothing I can do." While the state of men are dying. And the Master calls for you; Take the task he gives you gladly; Let his work your pleasure be; Answer quickly when he calleth. "Here can I. O Lord, send me."

and Promissory Notes.

CLASS BY THEMSELVES

Specie, Which May Pass From Hand to Hand as Readily as Goin, Differ Radically From Other Contracts.

We may speak truthfully of the strength of paper, yet how like a parader it sounds! From childhood we have been accustomed to take frequent. liberties with the filmsy material, to fold and rend it according to our lightest whim, and now to speak of it as strong! But strong it is, and the business world of America is bound into a cohesive whole by the fibers of millions of notes, checks and drafts which pleage the honor and credit of its citi-

In this brief article we shall attempt to define three kinds of commercial paper-bills of exchange, promis notes and_hank checks-that are all business contracts. They are contracts, however, as to which business convenience decrees that the form shall be just as important as the sub-

If I am hiring Regan the contractor to build my house and we fall out over our agreement the court will consider every possible point connected with the transaction in order to determine what our mutual intentions really were. But if I employ Regan to do the work and give him a promissory note in nayment of his services, our rights, so far as that note is concerned, are largely determined by the exact form in which I issued it, taken in connection of course with the subsequent indorsements-that is, whatever written additions were afterward made to it in the course of business.

The vital feature of bills of exchange -or drafts, as they are generally called -promissory notes and bank checks is their negotiability—that is to say, they are a special class of contracts which are so framed and so favored by the law that if certain rules are adhered to they can be passed from man to man quite so freely and far more conven-lently than actual cash.

An ordinary contract may be assigned or transferred from one to another. Thus if I have agreed to furnish a large factory with knitting machines I may smign my right to be paid for doing so to Bogardus for a val bration. Suppose, though, that I encuented some important feature come Tentile company, which ordered them, and after I have transferred my rights in the contract to Bogardus they find it out. Under such circumstances the textile company can employ the defense of misrepresentation against Begardus just as readily as they could against me, for he has simply stepped into my shoes and is in no better position than I would be had I remained a party to the contract. Now, this is just where drafts, notes and bills, or, as they are often called collectively, negotiable instruments or commercial paper, differ radically from other contracts. While still in the hands of the original parties who gave them birth they are subject to any defenses which one may have against the other, so that if Curson gives a promissory note for $100, due in sixty days, to Plaisted and then finds that through mutual dealings Plaisted really owes him $500 he may at the end of the sixty days refuse to pay Plaisted the note and demand instead $400 from him. Suppose however, that Plaisted has meanwhile sold the note to Rangely. who knows nothing of his debt to Curson, can Curson still set off Plaisted's debt and refuse to pay Rangely the note? Undoubtedly he cannot do so. Such a case illustrates the distinguishing characteristic of commercial paper. Like a bird which has flown from the parent nest, it is freed from any defenses which the original parties to it may have, just as soon as it has been purchased, in good faith and for a valuable consideration, by some third

In every other form of contract the rule is otherwise; land bears its burdens from owner to owner, the assigned mortgage conveys no better title to the purchaser than the assignor had to give; but for the purely practical reason that in trade there must be some convenient representative of specie, which may pass from hand to hand as readily as actual coin, a general agreement and strength of custom among merchants bred the three forms of credit paper—the bill of exchange. the prominory note and the bank check—all of which travel, in the words of a great jurist, as couriers without luggage, and to all of which an innocent bases, for value, gets an absolutely
