Pearl of the Crossroads

How She Met Her Fate.

By FREDERICK BRIGGS
Copyright by Frank A. Munsey Co.

Some one said that a sailorman was good for nothing but to chase about the world and send people presents. Pearl Smith had known this all her life, though perhaps she had never resolved it into just that expression. She drew the line at having more than one man on the same ship. Still, this was not at all inconvenient, for there were sometimes no less than fourteen men-of-war, besides a score of merchant ships, in the crossroads of the Pacific at one time.

The girl came by the prosaic name of Smith because her father's name had been something else in some other country. He came to Honolulu before the cable was in good working order and remained. Marrying a half caste Kanaka girl, he had kept a sailors' boarding house on King's road since Pearl was a baby. The presents had been coming in since the little girl was big enough to climb on a sailorman's knee, and their volume increased with her size. She was grown up at four teen.

To see her then was like being wakened from a sweet sleep on a balmy afternoon by having great clusters of red, red roses pressed to one's cheeks. Young men dropping in at the Crossroads swore that they would never go to sea again, only to ship with the next tide for the Indian ocean in search of a pearl to match her skin.

She was like Honolulu days. The shimmering softness of her skin matched the warm afternoon skies. Rich reds of the island sunsets burned in her full, dimpled mouth. Tropic twilight lay behind her inky eyelashes, deepening to midnight in her long hair. Men-of-war's men and merchant sailors sent different presents. The navy men leaned toward fancy jewelry and manure sets, while the traders stuck to silk, uncut rubies, loose pearls, ivory fans and ostrich plumes.

This from the young men. To enumerate the junk that was dumped at the feet of this island goddess by silly old sea captains and others would be to copy the cargo bills of an East and West India tradesman. There would also be a list of small animals and birds, with a number of arctic treasures appended. Pearl kept what she fancied, and her father sold the rest.

As for a girl accepting presents from a dozen men at the same time, it must be remembered that Pearl lived neither east of Frisco nor west of Suez, which is only another way of saying that the girl was bred in a man's country, where anything a woman gets is so much for her gain and no less for her honor.

New admirers invariably meant more presents. But when a sailorman can jolly his superior officer and get anything he wants just for the asking women had better beware of him. When he stands six feet in his socks, laughs out of big blue eyes and counsels a cello note in a drawing voice so much the worse for the women. Heine—that was as far as they got with his name aboard ship, and it will suffice here—Heine was all of this and more. He was an American bluejacket, boat swain's mate of the destroyer Shark.

There is one amusement the Hawaiians have which Americans do not possess. We are enthusiastic surf bathers and are good swimmers, but a sight that is seen in Hawaiian waters is never seen on an American coast. A Hawaiian takes with him to the beach a board, usually about twice his length. This board he carries out as far as he can; then, placing himself on it, it bears him, forced by the waves, back again to the beach. Those who are not expert at this exercise may lie flat on the board, but those who are trained to it stand erect, balancing their bodies as they roll toward the shore.

He met Pearl at Waikiki beach. She was shooting the surf when Heine saw her first. Standing upright with out-dung arms, she balanced on her polished board of kamani wood as it reeled ahead of a giant breaker. Such as the wave she flashed past the swimming sailor, but as the waters broke over his head he remembered every line of her beautiful body. The grace of her attitude struck him harder than the wave. Turning, he swam strongly toward the beach, where the spent roller had landed the fairy surfer.

Half a dozen men were begging Pearl to be allowed to take her board out to the reef again, but she laughed them away with a dash of milk white teeth and struggled out alone. If she met her a hundred fathoms from the beach, where the water came almost to his shoulders as he stood on the sand. "I'll carry your board for you," he cried as the girl broke through a wave almost upon him.

Startled, she turned her head, and her board slipped, striking on the flower mouth. As the blood came Heine caught her in his arms. The wave receding, shut the other bathers from view, and for ten seconds the sailorman held the girl close to his heart.

"My lip will swell," she panted, struggling to free herself. But Heine jolled her, just as he felt the commanding officer of the Shark, and within half an hour she had checked her surf board and bathing costume at the bathhouse and was

The Western Fair

September 10th to 18th. The Western Fair of London, Ontario, will maintain its reputation this year as being one of the best Live Stock Exhibitions of the Dominion of Canada. Live Stock Exhibitors are always loud in their praises of the treatment they receive at London and the amount of business they do there. Buyers are always plentiful, surrounded as London is by the best agricultural district of Canada. Although large cash additions have been made to the prize list, for the past three years, this year will surpass them all, when $20,000 will be added to the Live Stock and Poultry Departments. This has been made possible through the generous assistance given by the Dominion Government. The amount has been distributed throughout the different classes and some new classes and sections added, which will be of special interest to the farmers and live stock breeders. The prize lists will soon be ready for distribution. Send to the Secretary, A. M. Hunt, London, Ont., for prize list or any information.
