We're far across the water We're beneath the Union Jack, We're far across the water Germans cannot drive us back,

Then don't look and sigh at us, But come along and dig with us; Come along and fight for Britain too.

We're far across the water Driving back the enemy; We're far across the water

Trying to keep old Britain free, But don't just depend on us, To all alone defend the trust; But come along and fight for Britain too.

A Successful Banquet and Recruiting Meeting

On Monday evening a very successful Banquet, in connection with a monster recruiting meeting, was held in Knox Church, Jarvis, under the auspices of the local Recruiting League. The complimentary banquet was given to those who have already enlisted from this vicinity and to the young men of this district who are of military age. The spread was a very sumptuous one, oysters being the principal article on the menu. After full justice had been done to the good things provided, the guests and their friends repaired to the auditorium of the church, where speeches were delivered by a number of military men and others, prominent in recruiting circles. The addresses of Major Williams of Hamilton and Capt. Coburn and sergt. Arthur, (the latter two being returned heroes from the trenches) were very interesting and instructive. Six recruits were secured and there are good prospects for many more. J. J. Parsons acted as chairman. A full and detailed report will be given next week.

Are we to have a green Xmas?

Mr. J. Y. Murdoch, of Trenton, spent the week end in town.

Young man, do you wish one of those white diamonds as an engagement ring, R. Robertson, Hagersville, makes the colors.

Raymond Chapman and Miss Mary Sato, young persons of Copper Cliff, were drowned while skating on Lake Lady Macdonald.

A jury found that Pte. George Taylor, of the 75th Battalion had died of acute alcoholism in the Cowan avenue police station, Toronto.

Three men left last week to don the khaki, in the persons of Messrs. Chas. Powell, Harry Wells and Tom Goulding.

In last week's issue we neglected to mention the names of Messrs. F. Salamone and M. Cohen, who also joined the colors.

"Jack" Addison, our popular toronto artist, who has charge of the local post office, is to be highly commended for his action in closing the post-room at 8 o'clock on the evening of the recruiting meeting in Jarvis, in order that non young man would be hindered from attending.

Jack's patriotism should win for him many loyal friends in this vicinity. His brother, Roy, now with the colors, gave up his Simcoe business to fight for his King and Country.

Re Machine Guns

Toronto, 4th Dec., 1915.

"The Record", Jarvis, Ont.

Dear Sir,—

I have been in Haldimand County for some time, as a representative of the Speakers' Patriotic League, endeavoring to arouse interest in contributions towards the Canadian Patriotic Fund and the Red Cross Society.

I find that in the Western part of the County a great deal of misundersstanding has arisen over the contributions made there towards the Machine Gun Fund. I think it would be well to lay before your readers some definite information as to what has been done with this money or is likely to be done.

I returned to the city of Toronto the other day and through Mr. Abbott Honorary Secretary of the Speakers' Patriotic League, communicated with Sir Robert Borden, and received in reply a definite pronouncement with regard to this money. It seems that when this project of raising money for machine guns was undertaken, the idea that prompted the people was that of making the fighting force of our Canadian boys more efficient, for they were not so thoroughly equipped with machine guns as the soldiers of the enemy. From statements made by Government representatives it has become clear that it was through no fault or lack of insight on the part of our Government that machine guns were lacking. The Government had made ample provision for these guns as regards funds, but at some time, is necessary to manufacture a gun, these orders were not filled as soon as might have been desired. This is made perfectly clear in a statement of Sir Robert's when he says, "The Government desire to make it perfectly clear that in the early months of the war they gave special consideration to the purchase of machine guns. Large orders were placed from time to time whenever factories were prepared to take the work. The deliveries have not been as prompt as was anticipated, but it is expected that during the remainder of the autumn and early winter a sufficient number will be placed to make ample provisions, not only to the forces at the front, but for all those that shall proceed to the front in the meantime." In consequence of the contributions thus made and accepted by the Government, it was necessary for them to make a further definite pronouncement as to the advisability of public subscriptions defraying the expense of the manufacture of such guns. The following are Sir Robert's words made public at Ottawa on November 11, 1915.

"The Government desires to make it distinctly understood throughout the country, that no subscriptions or contributions for machine guns are required as all expenditure for that purpose should be defrayed out of the public treasury. The impression seems to have gained ground that an appeal for such contributions from the public was made by some member of the Government.

The Prime Minister has made careful enquiry and cannot ascertain that any such request was ever put forward."

The fact that the Government had received money for such purposes and accepted it seemed to arouse considerable doubt in the minds of subscribers as to what would be done with funds thus accepted. To make that clear I quote Sir Robert again, "Several machine guns have been purchased out of contributions received from the public and delivered to battalions or other units as guns contributed by the public. Moreover it is doubtful whether the contributions could be returned without the assent of Parliament after they had been once received and accepted for this purpose."

The fact that the Government had received money for such purposes and accepted it seemed to arouse considerable doubt in the minds of subscribers as to what would be done with funds thus accepted. To make that clear I quote Sir Robert again, "Several machine guns have been purchased out of contributions received from the public and delivered to battalions or other units as guns contributed by the public. Moreover it is doubtful whether the contributions could be returned without the assent of Parliament after they had been once received and accepted for this purpose."

It thus becomes clear that the monies thus accepted for guns will be expended for that purpose. Any doubt arising in the mind of any subscriber is thus allayed.

Regarding voluntary contributions, Sir Robert concludes his remarks in these words,—

"Appeals must necessarily be made to the generosity of the people of Canada for aid to the Patriotic Fund, the Canadian Red Cross Society, and other similar organizations which are performing a national service. It is earnestly hoped that the efforts of the various communities in Canada will be directed to necessary assistance for such associations rather than to contributions for machine guns which have been amply provided for by the Federal Government."

It is clear then from his words that, while the Government deeply appreciates the motive which prompted machine gun contributions and also the generosity with which the people responded to that impulse, still they wished to make it clear that they had asked the people to undertake another very definite work which from its nature demands that it be voluntary.

Many municipalities in Haldimand County have responded splendidly to this appeal. Some others have not yet undertaken the work. It is earnestly hoped that when an opportunity to support these undertakings is given, the same generous response will be made in municipalities not yet contributing.

Thank you for allowing me this space, I am,

Yours faithfully,
M. H. STAPLES.
