the Dacia

commercial

man

effective

the le-

which na will

Strongest Liniment in 100 Years Best For Either Man or Beast

thing for Family Use Can will cure all aches, strains, swellings, Compare With It.

RUB ON NERVILINE

When you have been exposed to wet and cold and your muscles are full of pain, nerves are jumping with neuralfa, then you should have ready at ad a bottle of Nerviline. It robs pain of its terrors, gives relief to all suffering, brings ease and comfort wherever used,

No care or expense has been spared to secure for Nervillae the purest and best materials. It is prepared with a single aim: to restore the sick to health. This cannot be said of the preparation that an unscrupulous dealer may ask you to accept instead of Nervillne, so we warn you it is the extra profit made on inferior goods that tempts the substitutor. Of him and the pains of rheumatism, neuralgia and lumbago.

Get Nerviline when you ask for it, then you are sure of a remedy that Kingston, Canada.

to Benny, and said, with some excite happiness as well?"

never been tried upon me."

ferred until her departure."

smile not devoid of curiosity.

from this hour!"

gratitude.

ing his hand.

quired the earl.

company us?"

brightly.

Mr. Melliss.

Moriey House.

fatally injured.

of his condition.

magistrate

in London.

his hat in his hand.

choking with emotion.

ged permission to read the order for the prisoner's discharge, and he read

"But how came all this about?" en-

"Let us get out of this place first,

concerned, though in fact my pleasure

at the vindication of my client here made me forget that. Come! I have a four-wheeled cab at the door. Come,

They left the dark and gloomy prison and went out into the street, where the afternoon sun was shining and take a private parlor for an hour

And they all entered a cab that was

When they arrived there Mr. Mel-here Mr. Percy Melliss told his

That among the victims of the fa-

Just before his death, as often happens in such cases, he came to his senses, and to the full consciousness

His first act was then to ask for the attendance of a clergyman and a

And in answer to his call the venerable cure of the parish and a notary

To them he made a full confession of the unintentional murder that he had committed, and that had driven

This confession was taken down from his lips in writing, and duly sworn to, signed, witnessed, sealed and despatched to the proper authorities

It had arrived on that day. And the order for the release of Benjamin

Hurst had been immediately sent to

for the purpose of discharging him.

When they were joined by Mr. Percy Melliss, who, ignorant of what had happened, had come for a last consultation with his elient before the trial.

The sheriff told him of the pleasing nature of their errand, and he was of course, sincerely delighted with

So Mr. Percy Melliss had scancely

"But, oh, Heaven! this news that heard the good news two minutes be fore he communicated it to his client.

has saved me, what will it do for her.

the dead man's sister?" sighed Benny.

"She is just and right-minded. And.

the turn affairs had taken.

him from his native country.

from the village came to his bedside.

strange story. It was in brief this:

"Certainly," said the earl.

found themselves comfortably

'We will drive to the Morley House

answered:

"Mr. Hurst you can bear trouble

In the last hundred years no liniment has been produced that can compare with Nerviline, in strength, in penetrating power or in curative abil-

For nearly forty years it has been Canada's household remedy, and mothers will do well to follow the advice of Mrs. Jessie Beggins, of Stella P. O., Ont., who save:

"Very frequently there are ailments in the family that can be cut short if Nerviline is handy. When my children come in from play with a cough or a bad cold. I rub them well with Norviline, and they are well almost at once. Nerviline is fine for earache, toothache, chest colds, lumbago, stiffness, rheumatism or neuralgia. In fact there is scarcely a pain or ache in man or beast is won't cure quickly. The large 50c. family size bottle is the most economical: trial size, 25c.; at all dealers, or the Catarrhozone Co.,

"No," answered Suzy, with sudden | soid Suzy. energy. "'Let justice be done, though the heavens fall.' A guilty man had better die for his crime than an innecent one suffer the slightest unjust surpicion through him! What do you think, Lord Wellrose?" she enquired. turning to the earl, confident also of

"I seree with you perfectly; a falsely-secused man should clear himself at whatever cost to the real criminal," answered the earl.

"But if the falsely accused man should be quite alone in the world, the guilty man should have father and mother, brothers and sisters, who would be brought to shame and sorrow by his exposure and punishment, then would not the falsely accused be justified at least in keeping silence?" earnestly enquired Benny.

By no means," emphatically answered the earl. As he spoke the door was opened, a visitor was announced, and a lady, dressed with Quakerly simplicity in a gray gown, shawl and bonnet, entered the cell. She bowed to the lady and gentlean present without recognizing ci-win Hurst! how little you are god except in growth! Benjamin, glad to meet you again, where else than here." he his band and press

But the young prisoner gazed on her in dumb amazement.

Why, Benny, you don't seem to know me at all! And I should have known you anywhere! Look at me, my hoy. Don't you recognize me now?

"Miss Rachel Wood!" exclaimed Benny, in joyful surprise, starting up as if he would have embraced her; then recollecting himself, blushing and sinking back on his seat, but adding in a more subdued nanner: "Oh, I am so rejoiced to see you! It was so good of you to come! And, Miss Rachel, I want to tell you at once. I did not commit the murder for which I am to be

"I do not heliev you did. Benny! But I am glad to hear you say so, for all that," raid Rachel, warmly.

"Ah, but he knows who did And he is suffering innocently for the guilty, just as he did when he was a poor, friendless child!" said Suzy, suddenly breaking into the conversation. The quiet. Quakerly locking woman turned with surprise to gaze upon the elegantly dressed young lady who had spoken to her. You do not recognize me. Miss Rachel. There is someone else besides Benny it seems who has a short memory for faces I am Suzy, and I am very glad to se you again," said the young lady, offering her hand. "Suzy Juniper" echoed Rachel Wood, in surprise, as she took the defleately gloved hand and held it while she gazed on the lively face of the young girl. The Suzy Juniver! And now do you

"Now I do But I should scarcely have done so if you had not told me your name. You are more changed gone to the incane asylum. than Benfamin Hurst is." said the quiet. Quakerly woman, gazing on the herely young creature before her.

"Externally I am. But not at heart, for I am so slad to see you, Miss Rachel! It is like old times. Are you ot a little glad to see me, too?" in-uired Suzv in a plaintive voice. "Indeed I am. my dear, and greatly insprised." said Rachel Wood, taking the kiss that Suzy offered in the overflowing love of her faithful young "And the Earl of Wellrose? Surely. Miss Rachef, von know Lord Wellrose? He is one of the visitors of the duchess school, where you are the matron,"

And the earl, at the mention of his own name, arose and bowed, and re-

"I have the honor of some elignt ac quaintance with his lordship," said Rachel, returning the bow, "but the gentlemen visitors of the school have more to do with the teachers' department than with the matron's."

"I negan by telling you that Benjamin

"Miss Rachel, I implore you, do not attempt to do so. Do not distress yourself or me by urging a course that I cannot pursue," entreated the young

Benjamin Hurst thanked his lordship with a grateful look And some after this the visitors departed, after having promised to return the next day.

Suzy went home and telegraphed, and then wrote to the manager of the Theatre Francaise to say that her brother and accredited agent, Mr. William Juniner, had left London for Paris on the third of the current month, to treat with him concerning an engagement for herself and troupe at the theatre: that she had been daily and hourly expecting to see him, or to hear from him on the subject of his mission; but un to the date of her letter she had neither seen nor heard from him; that she was suffering great anxiety on her brother's account; and she besought the manager to have inquiries set on foot in Paris, as she feared that her brother had met with foul play.

of the missing young gentleman, and that he would write again to inform mademoiselle. as soon as anything should be ascertained on the subject.

Suzv's anxiety daily increased.

toward a re-engagement there, or a new engagement anywhere else.

stage, and left it sorever; that she that she was about to start on a prorecognize me?" inquired Suzv. smiling. to be married to a German grand duke: that she was going into a French convent to take the veil; that she had

Every rumor was inconsistent with every other. And every new report contradicted

Meanwhile Suzy lingered in London, living in strict retirement at her little palace in Park Lane, seeing no company but the Earl of Wellrose, and going nowhere but to Newgate to visit the poor prisoner there. . usual patience and fortitude, and wait grief for the lost brother, yet she will ed for the opening of the sessions at the Old Bailey.

A fortnight had passed in this way when one morning an event occurred that changed the whole aspect of affairs so far as the young prisoner at Newgate was concerned.

It was the day before the opening of the sessions.

CHAPTER XXVI.

The Earl of Wellrose was sitting with Benny in his cell, and speaking words of comfort and encouragement to prepare him for his arraignment with cheerfulness and strength, when the door was suddenly thrown open, and Percy Melliss, accompanied by the governor of the fail and the high sheriff of the county, entered the cell. The faces of all three bore signs of unusual disturbance, though it seemed to be of a pleasant nature.

sumed his seat. and then I will tell you. It is a strange story, not without its sorrow for some

"Rachel!" broke in Suzy once more.

Hurst is doing now in his manhood precisely what he did fifteen years ago in his friendless childhood. He is shielding the guilty at the risk of his own life! Oh, Rachel, please unite with us in trying to persuade him to clear himself from the false imputation of this crime."

We must trust in Providence to the clearing up of this mystery. It is evident that Mr. Hurst will not clear himself at the expense of another, even when that other is the guilty nasty. Let us not pursue the discussion," said Lord Wellrose.

The manager wrote back by return mail to say that he had notified the Parisian police as to the disappearance

But day after day passed and no news of William Juniper came from the other side of the channel, and

The term of her engagement at the Covent Garden Theatre expired, and she positively declined all overtures

The newspapers reported that Mademoiselle Arielle had abruptly left the was suffering from a slight indisposition, and had netired only for a short gate. season; that she had entirely lost her voice, and would never sing again: fessional tour through the United States of America: that she was going

the last preceding one.

Benny bore his confinement with his

Drooping, Tired, Weary, Try This Remedy

Don't give in to that depressed. played out, don't-care sort of feeling. Better days are ahead. Cheer up, do as the other fellow is doing, tone and strengthen your blood, and you'll feel like new again. You'll dance with new found energy once you use Dr. Hamilton's Pills. They will quickly fill your system with energy, bring back the old appetite, restore that long lost Lord Wellrose and Benjamin Hurst complexion, make you feel like a kid looked at them and at each other, expecting—they knew not what.

The three newcomers bowed to the carl and then Mr. Percy Mellies turned box to-day at any dealers.

due time she will take comfort," said Mr. Percy Melliss.

"Ah, she will be awfully shocked by the news. Who will venture to break it to her?" murmured the young man sorrowfully. "That will I," answered the Earl

Mr. Hurst. My lord, will you ac-"Certainly," said Lord Wellrose, risthe table. "Ah, my lord, it will be a painful 'task!" said Benny. Benny was already standing with

"I know it." murmured the earl. And then, after a pause, he said: "Mr. Hurst, will you do me a favor?" "Assuredly, my lord."

"Will you, then, follow my advice to you—which is, to take a room here for the present, and wait till I can or two, if your lordship pleases?" said have an opportunity of consulting with you about your future career?" "I will, Lord Wellrose, with hanks," replied Benjamin, who, for one occult reason. afising out of "I will things; there were flowers and trees; There were cities with temples and towers—and these All pictured in silver sheen! thanks," replied Benjamin, who, for waiting before the door, and Mr. Melsome occult reason, afising out of liss gave the order to drive to the liss, who acted for the little party, got causes combined, never felt the slightout and engaged a private parlor, to est sense of humiliation in receiving which he ordered refreshments to be favors from his unknown brother. brought, and in which the three soon "Quite right. Good-day, then. I around a table, with a bottle of light Good-day, Mr. Mellis," said the earl, wine and a plate of biscuits before And bowing to both his late companions, he left the room.

Outside he took a hansom and drove to Park Lane to break the news of her brother's death to Suzy. He sent in his card, and in a few tal accident on the Paris and Marseilles Raffroad was William Juniper. moments was invited into the drawwho though not instantly killed, was ing room, where he was received by Mrs. Brown. He had been dragged from beneath The housekeeper's face wore the the ruins of a railway carriage, and traces of recent tears, and her manconveyed in an insensible condition to ner was very grave as she greeted A million more reported are the nearest house, where, for sever-Lord Wellrose, and said: al days, he lingered in a state of

"I hope your lordship will excuse Miss Juniper this morning. She cas just heard of the shocking death of her brother, and-"

"She has heard, then! From whom! Who has incautiously shocked her with the news?" exclaimed the earl. "No one did, sir. She received a letter this morning from the French On harmless little Drohobycz! priest who attended her brother on his deathbed. He died a Christian, I am happy to say, sir. Poor young man! His head was a little turned with the company he kept, but his heart was not bad," said the housekeeper, willing to say all the good she could of the poor boy cut off in the flower of his wild youth.

"No, said the earl. And then. 'How is Miss Juniper this morning?" "Sir, she has been in hysterics ever since she got the news until about fifteen minutes ago, when we gave her an opiate, which composed her.

the sheriff and the governor of New-She is now sleeping quietly." These two efficers glad to be the "Keep her so," said the earl as he emissaries of deliverance to the prisarose to go. "And please to tell her oner, were on their way to his cell. when she awakes that I have been here, and will call at this hour tomorrow, when I hope she will be able to receive me." And he bowed and left the house. The next morning, when he called at Park Lane, Suzy received him in her rose parlor. And, though she was deadly pale, she was perfectly calm and collected, and she met him with quiet conriesy. In reply to his expressions of sympathy and condolence, and to his implied rather than expressed questions as to herself, she answered that she should leave that day for France to be present at her brother's funeral; although there will be the natural that soon afterward she should sail for Australia, to make a visit of outy suffer less than she would have done to her parents.

had you remained under the heavy "They must inevitably hear of their imputation of blood-guiltiness. She bereavement. you know, Lord Wellwill know, besides, that there has rose. And it is better that they should been no murder in the case, since have the comfort of a visit from me there was no intention to kill. In at the same time." said Suzy. "You are quite right, dearest," said the earl kindly. He stayed a long time with her that morning, and with a promise to meet her at the railway station, and escort her to Dover to see her on board the Calais boat, he left her.

From Park Lane he went immedfately to Trafalgar Square, and called at the Morley House to see Benny. The young man received his visitor in his small bedroom on the third floor the only apartment that his limited means could command.

"Now, my dear fellow, I have come on business. I wish to settle with you to-day about your future career. You are quite young enough to strike out into a new path. Now, what path would you like to take—the church, the law, medicine, the army on the navy? Take time to think, before deciding," said the earl kindly.

"If I might choose—" began Benny.
And then he blushed like a girl, and "Choose! It is what I desire you to do. What would you like?" "All England is arming for the Crimean war. I should like to enter the army."

Ah, poor boy! He had never known his father, yet he had inherited his father's martial passion. William Douglas had also wanted "to enter the army."

Lord Wellrose reflected for a few moments, during which Benny misinterpreted his silence, and hastened

"Ah, forgive me, my lord! I spoke know now how improper my wish is. since I have not the physical powers of endurance that would fit me to be a common soldier in war time, nor yet the education that would prepare me for the duties of an officer. You are right, my lord."

"You mistake me, my dear Hurst. I have been turning over in my mind the best and quietest way of meeting your views. And I have found it now. I have a young friend-Ensign Charley Blount, of the - regiment of foot. His regiment is ordered to the Crimea, and he does not want to go there. He wishes to sell out and dition. I had no appetite, exstay at home. Good! His commission shall be purchased for you. You shall enter the army, and go to the war, Mr. Hurst; and, although you enter it only as an ensign, which is the lowest grade of commissioned officer, yet I feel persuaded that you will rise.'

(To be Continued.)

Jack Frost.

Jack Frost looked forth one still, crear night. And whispered: "Now I'll be sight: So through the valley and over the height In silence I'll take my way. I shall not go like that blustering train— The Wind and the Snow, the Hail and the Rain—

Who makes so much bustle and noise in

But I'll be as busy as they." Then he flew to the mountain, and pow-"That will I," answered the Earl dered its crest; of Wellrose gravely, as he arose from He lit on the trees, and their boughs he drest
In diamond beads; and over the breast In diamond beads; and over the breast Of the quivering lake he spread A coct of mail, that it need not fear The downward point of many a spear That he hung on its margin, far and

Where a rock could rear its head. He went to the windows of those who slept,

And over each pane like a fairy crept;
Wherever he breathed, wherever he stept.

By the light of the moon, were seen

Most beautiful things; there were flow-

there
That all had forgotten for him to pre-

'tchick!' to tell them I'm drink-

Austrian War Lament. (Or Pronunciation Made Easy)

We Austrians cannot stand the drizzle Of Russian shrapnel at Przemys! The Russian hordes are in the track o A million Cossacks may debouch, At any moment, at Oik

At Kamionkasarumnowa And yet another million have Consumed all food at Jareslaw! Ah! ev'rytning they cleared-as well as Then down they poured like molten lava On rural, innocent Suczawa!

And now, they march, with hungry Curs'd be the foreign rascals, greasy,

Steel motor cars—ten guns in each car-Are rolling on toward Wieliczka! How truly awful it will be No one may even dare to guess of 物为人

Of Czechs. 'tis said, they're buried a Battalion at Csikszereda!

As at the banquet of Belshazzar, The finger writes at Njiregyhaza! So. ere the sky with dawn grows steaky, Let's fly to dear old Zaleszczyki! —London Opinion.

THE DEADLY PARALLEL

(Buffalo Express) To those who are saying that the act of the German air raiders showed great daring and courage, it might be appro-priately answered that the lad Prinsips shows great daring and courage, yet civilized people can hardly applaud him.

UNPOPULAR LAWS.

(Buffalo News) It is impossible to enforce laws that are not backed by public opinion, or held to be reasonable by the majority of the That is the practical outcome of of legislation.

FAIR EXCHANGE. (Trenton (N. Y.), State Gazette)

ALMOST EVERYONE NEEDS A TUNIC

Almost everyone man, woman and child-needs a tonic at sometime. It is often said that a man is lazy because he takes little or no interest in his work: but the truth he is not well. He needs a tonic. The same is true of the woman who does not hustle over her home work, but only feels fit to be in bed. She is not merely tired, but ill. A dull pain in the head or back, poor appetite, loss of strength with low spirits and loss of interest in life show that you need impulsively and without discretion. I a tonic to brace up the nerves and give you a new lease of life. The proof is that when the right tenic is taken all the trouble quickly disappears. The one tenic-the only tonic-for weak and ailing men, women and children is Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, which speedily bring back abundant health. strength and energy. They have done this in thousands and thousands of cases as is proved by the following: Mr. Ed. A. Owen, Burdett, Alta., says: "About two years ago my health was in a wretched condition. My whole system seemed to be run down and the doctor seemed puzzled at my conertion would leave me breathless, and I was troubled much with dizziness. And the medicine I took did me no good and I was steadily growing weaker. My mother urged me to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and before I had taken them very long I began to feel like a new man and continuing their use I was restored to complete health. I now recommend them to all run down in health as they are the best medicine I know of."

> Sold by all medicine dealers, or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50, from The Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

CAPTAIN—CCLIMANDER.

Two Naval Terms That Confuse Are Here Explained.

The titles captain and commander in the royal navy are very confusing to the average landsman.

A commander is an officer promoted from a lieutenant of generally ten to twelve years' seniority, these promotions taking place twice a year, June 30 and Dec. 31, and are ov selection. A commander holds that rank for some five or seven years, and then is promoted to captain, again by selection. Once a captain he goes up the captain's list, you might say, automatically, as each flag-officer on the admiral's active list retires or dies. The their unconscious blood relationship, or from some hidden sympathy or fair:

He peeped in the cupboard, and finding retire. The captain is in supreme command of the ship. He has his "Now just to set them a-thinking.
I'll bite this basket of fruit," said he,
"This costly picture I'll burst in three;
And the glass of water they've left for together. The commander is the in command, and no attes are numer--HANNA F. GOULD. ous. He organizes the ship's company for their various duties. On a ship being placed in commission he sits at a table with the various heads of their departments, and gunnery and torpedo officers, chief of the police and warrant officers with him, and as each man comes up, chief petty officers, petty officers, seamen, stokers, etc., each man receives a card with his name, number on the ship's books, mess, hammock, bag (which he keeps his kit in), his place in action, fire, collision, or abandon ship.

The commander has the whole control of the discipline (of course under the captain) of the ship, and he is the only officer, with the exception of the captain, who has the power of punishing. The engineer commander who carries out the superintendency of his department, has no power to punish his stokers in any way, and all defaulters are brought first before the commander, who either deals with them himself or forwards them to the captain. The commander messes in the ward room, and is ex-officio president of the mess.

The commander is the busiest man on board. His day is never finished. Every signal, official correspondence, and anything dealing with the ship or fleet he has to see and initial. He is practically on deck or superintending some drill or exercise from the time the hands fall in at 5.30 in the morning until his final inspection of the ship at 9 p.m., when he has to report to the captain that everything is correct, he previously having received reports from the representatives of the engine-room department, police, gunnery and torpedo officers, the carpenter, and other officers that all their departments are correct for the night. The average age of a commander is about 33 when promoted.

A captain in the royal navy of three the army. A commander in the royal navy is the peer of a lieutenant-colonel, but is funior to that rank. Although wireless apparatus was not They ought to let that Illinois convict who has made a hit writing short stories out of prison and put some of the other saved by its use.

CATARRH KEEPS YOU HAWKING USE "CATARRHOZONE"-THE QUICKEST GURE

Nothing Known So Sure For hozone. It contains the richest pine-Throat Weakness, Bronchial Trouble. Etc.

No doctor attempts to-day to cure a genuine case of catarrh or bronchitis except by the inhalation method. Stomach dosing has been discarded because useless medicine so taken affects only the stomach-never reaches the seat of catarrh.

The advanced physician recognizes that only air can be sent into the lungs and bronchial tubes. Fill this balsams and the greatest healers One breath of Catarrhozone instantly circulates over the area that is afflicted with catarrh. Relief is instant -suffering stops at once-germs are destroyed—every taint of disease is removed. Think it over seriously. Here is a remedy that clears the throat relieves hoarseness, coughing and bad breath. Irritating phlegm is cleared out, inflamed bronchial tubes are healed, throat and voice are strengthened. Catarrhozone is pleasant and cor-tain, You breathe Catarrhozone - you air with healing medicaments and you don't take it. Large $1.00 size is guarsolve the problem. No combination of anteed; mailer size 50c, and trial antiseptics is so successful as Catarr- size 25c at all dealers everywhere

