The Diary

Back Bencher

Ottawa, Ont., Feb. 4.-The House opened with prayer as usual, though why the members should pray for divine guidance when they have already made up their minds which way to vote is semething I could never fathom. Moreover. I'm willing to believe that prayer is a good thing on general principles, and though elections are not wholly made with prayers, I think there ought to be a lot of praying just now on both sides, because a general election can hardly be more than six months off. The House is cheerfui enough-it approaches its end with christian fortitude. We are prepared. Parliament seems to say, to make a good argument before the last dread tribunal, public opinion.

The Government made a good trade when it exchanged Pelletier, the prevish, for Casgrain, the cautious. Pelletier always talked as if he had corns on his soul and his views on postage got him in wrong with the newspapers of all shades of politics. Casgrain will make no such mistakes. If he hasn't something reasonable to say, he won't say it. Likewise, Mr. Blondin for Nantel was more than a fair exchange. Nantel was as dumb as a boiled potatoe—a thinking part on the Railway Commission will suit him down to the ground. On the other hand, Blondin has a line of talk which he couldn't use in his former position, and his new responsibility as Cabinet Minister will keep him shooting rhetorical holes in the Union Jack. Besides everybody was glad to see young Sevigny get his chance. Sevigny is a thoroughbred, He has a merry heart, which, as Solomon, or some person of experience has said, is more to be desired than great riches. At any rate merry nearts are at a premium just now and Sevigny's blithe spirit helps a lot. Are the Western members downhearted? I can't see it. During the recess there was a great uproar in the West about exporting fossil remains in the Belly River Valley to the museums of the United States, and an impression got abroad got abroad that the West was trying to hoard its plesiosavruses as a possibile food Supply. Some of these mammoths have oeen in cold storage for ten thousand poration of the Village of Jarvishere- years and are quite high enough now to serve in a fashionable rest it turned out, however, that the plesiosauruses, ichthyosauruses and dinosauruses sold to the Unite States were merely the surplus product and that the home market is not suffering. The West will always have more plesiosauruses than Pat Burns or the Swift Packing Company care to buy. Consequently the fossil treasures of the Belly River must be remembered among the other inexhaustible natural resources which have not yet been handed over by the Dominion Government to the Prairie Provinces .isn't enough in plesiosauruses to make a campaign cry out of, especially when the West is swelling up on the thought of dollar and a half wheat.

The confidence of the Western members can never be punctured. R. B. Bennett sees in the war a tremendous occasion for purple speeches. He bubbles with loyalty like the asphalt beds in the Athabaska River. It will be hard luck on him and many others if the time limit on the address in reply rules speeches out, for a supingrowing toe nail. Dr. Michael Clarke of Red Deer, finds in the war, a new free trade argument. He has prepared a lecture on Fiscal Problems of the Great Struggle, the gist of which is that tarriffs are a broken come round to his way of thinking believe he is engaged in profound ed.
