SATISFIED AND SETTLED

How They Came to an Understanding.

By WILFRED STOCKARD.
Copyright by Frank A. Munsey Co.

Conley had come home, having been released from prison after completing a five year sentence.

A few hours after his arrival in town he entered a squalid place on the west side not far from the center of Hell's Kitchen. Besides the proprietor and a man whom the former was ejecting at the time, there was only one man in the place. He greeted Conley's arrival with a slight show of surprise and spoke to him.

"How are all the boys up the way?" he asked.

"Hello, Werner," Conley returned and related bits of information concerning those whom he had left in prison.

"Like to stick in on a juicy little lay?" Werner inquired, lowering his voice slightly and glancing about to see that no one was near them.

"Heard of old man Harris, haven't you?" continued Werner. "He's got more millions than you and me could dream we had after a dozen shots in the arm. Funny old goat he is too. He's got a bug about punching the clock just the same and as prompt as any of his deck hands, which is some prompt, if they work for him for any time. Also he's got another kink about working straight on through July and August, while he lets everybody else in his shop take from two weeks to a month off. He sticks it out without even hesitating till after the first of the next year, and then when he gets his business started on to another stretch, why, he takes a little thirty day layoff."

"And does he beat it south then?" Not him—that ain't the old man. He heads up north to a hut he's got planted up in Maine, and that's right where he lives in the dead of winter. He don't have any guide or anybody else along with him, and he don't allow anybody else to come anywhere close to him if he can help it. He camps there for a month, hunting and taking care of what he kills, skinning it and putting away the meat and cooking it and all that all by himself, as I said, and never seeing another living thing besides the animals he's hunting. Funny ideas some of these gags have, ain't they?"

"Where do we come in?" interposed Conley.

"We're going to get him at his drum up there and stow him away—put him in hock, you see, and make him pay himself out—although I ain't counting on sticking him up for anything so much as I'm banking on swinging his wife for, say, five or ten thousand at the least and maybe as much as twenty-five. Harris' head manager is his wife's brother, you see, and I think we can hang em for twenty-five without starting either one to putting the cops out for us. Leave it to me to make it plain to 'em that the old man will be bumped off before anybody can get to us."

"What's the matter that Harris won't come across himself with what we want, in case we show it up to him that we're going to croak him proper if he don't?"

"You don't know Harris," Werner answered. "In the first place, we couldn't make a bluff strong enough for him to think we were bluffing, and then even if it had to come to a showdown, why, I doubt if he'd really think we meant to kill him and lose our only shot for the money. That's the kind of gink he is. You know, he's the stiff that had a son to get in wrong some way and get his name in the papers—beat up a guy and was sent away for a little bit—and do you think the old man would come through with a little fall money that would have sprung the kid? Nix—not him—and he won't allow the kid around his snare when he comes home."

Werner shook his head, partly in admiration.

"That's him, and I wouldn't count on a snafu from him, not just to get himself out, where I'd bet on getting thousands from his dame. I've had all this framed ever since last summer, and I made a special trip up to scout about the old man's grounds and the country around there. One reason I'm first hep to this is because I got a friend of mine named Turner, an old timer that's done five separate bits and is living up there and making good money by getting stuff across the Canadian line, and we happened to meet up with each other last year and got to talking about this Harris guy. Turner knew about him, living no more than thirty miles away from there, and we got this idea. Turner knows places that we could put Harris away, and he couldn't be found for a million years."

"How many you got in on this," Conley inquired, "and who are they?"

"Besides Turner and me and you we'll have Collins and George."

The following morning the four were upon the train, Werner and Collins in one car, Conley and George in another. They had bought their tickets separately. Neither pair saw the other at the time started.

They arrived at different hours, but when met at the spot agreed upon, a

The Western Fair

September 10th to 18th.

The Western Fair of London, Ontario, will maintain its reputation this year as being one of the best Live Stock Exhibitions of the Dominion of Canada. Live Stock Exhibitors are always loud in their praises of the treatment they receive at London and the amount of business they do there. Buyers are always plentiful, surrounded as London is by the best agricultural districts of Canada. Although large cash additions have been made to the prize list, for the past three years, this year will surpass them all, when $3000 will be added to the Live Stock and Poultry Departments. This has been made possible through the generous assistance given by the Dominion Government. The amount has been distributed throughout the different classes and some new classes and sections added, which will be of special interest to the farmers and live stock breeders. The prize lists will soon be ready for distribution. Send to the Secretary, A. M. Hunt, London, Ont., for prize list or any information.
