A SAD TRIP

Canadian Girl Racing to See Dying Soldier Lover.

New York Report.-The Cunarder Orduna, laden aimost to capacity, or Russian Grand Duke Plans to close to 11,000 tons, chiefly of war material for England, sailed to-day for Liverpool with 15 cabin, 75 second cabin, and 105 steerage passengers, including 22 Americans in all classes. Three first cabin passengers who had booked to sail cancelled their passages to-day, not caring to take the risk of codging German suomarines. One is an American, Miss Lygia wheeler, of Philadeiphia.

A tew minutes before the Orduna sailed, at 10 a.m., two young women came sprinting down the pier, too much out of breath to be interviewed, and rushed up the gangplank. They were the Misses Grace Jeffrey and Ruth Buchanan, of Ottawa, bound for the William Astor Hospital at Cliveden, where the flance of Miss Jeffrey and the brother of Miss Buchanan, Lieut. Cassels Buchanan, is lying beyond hope of recovery. The lieutenant was wounded by shrapnel in France, and because of the development of a form of cancer his left leg was amputated. The surgeon in charge said that he had not more than ten days to live, and his flancee and sister were so informed by cable on Wednesday afternoon and caught a train that got them to this city after 9 o'clock this morning. A swift taxi took them to the pier.

In Terrific Contest Upon Ground of His Choosing.

(By Hamilton Fyfe.) Petrograd Cable.—The Russians are to make a supreme attempt to stay the German advance upon Warsaw. They are to venture a battle, the decision of which will change the charall points of view as the most serious since the beginning of the war. A semi-official statement issued to the newspapers last night declared that the outcome of the engagements now in progress upon ground chosen by the Grand Duke Nicholas, for a decisive trial of strength, will mark a change in the whole character of the eastern campaign.

Needless to say, the ground has been chosen with a view to taking the enemy at a disadvantage. The Russian armies are in a region which has been carefully fortified and provided with communications.

This region is the famous three fortress triangle which has figured prominently in the works of military writers for a generation past. The apex of the triangle in Brest Litovsk, the base extends from Ivangorod to Nowo Georgiewsk. Already both these Vistula fortresses have been in action. Very large forces have been brought up by both sides.

It is not anticipated that the struggle will be long drawn out. Russia awaits the issue calmly, and fervently murmurs "amens" to the Grand Duke's message to the people in the order of the day.

Exploits of Expedition On Gallipoli in Recent Days.

Bayonet Attacks Carried Past the Objective Fixed.

Paris Cable - Exploits of the French expeditionary force on the Gallipoli Peninsula, June 21 and 30, in the region of Kereves Dere, are recounted in an official statement issued to-night regarding the operations in the Dardanelles.

Four trenches, forming steps on a slope between the sea and a ravine opening from the village, were chosen as the objective for an attack on the 21st. A west wind covered the field of battle with clouds of wast, swept up by the artillery preparations.

Suddenly, about 11 o'clock, metallic flashes streamed the shroud of yellow dust, and the clash of bayonets was heard as the infantry leaped to the assault. One after another the trenches fell before the impetuous charge of the French troops, which who in futues go into action will be carried them almost to the heights of Krithia, beyond the farthest point at which the assault was aimed. THE WAR GOING

Would Have Ended in April Last, Says Scientist.

If Britain Had Declared It Contraband.

London Cable—If cotton had been declared contraband at the outset, says Sir William Ramsay, in an article in protest lodged by Nerway. It anthe Evening News, the war would have been over by last April. A similar statement is made by Hilaire Belloc. in Land and Water.

Paul Coudurier, London correspondent of the Paris Figaro, asserts that early in the war the French Government requested the British Government to put cotton on the list of contrahand, and that Great Britain refused to do so, for two reasons: First, because the cotton dealers of England were opposed to such a step because German cruisers were then chasing British ships, and might sink all the cargoes of cotton sent to this country; and, second, because the allies took every precantion not to offend neutral

It is pointed out that neither of these reasons now has any force. In regard to the first, there are no German raiders; and with regard to the second, Mr. Coudurier says:

"We are standing for public rights, when to be more than fair to the rest of the world is danger to ourselves in this struggle for life and death." According to Sir William Ramsay, assurances have been given to the French Government that the import of cotton by Germany has been stopped, although Mr. Asquith admitted, on Tuesday that the situation in this respect has not been wholly satisfac--FRENCH DEMAND ACTION.

Paris Cable—The press here is beginning to realize the importance of the cotton question. The Echo de Paris prints a strong editorial, concluding as follows: "Public opinion in France, as in England, must demand the placing of cotton on the list of contraband." The Echo dismisses the American note to England on cotton somewhat cavalierly, with the comment:

"Its purpose evidently is the establishment of a claim for damages later. Furthermore, Great Britain cannot settle this matter until the American-German dispute, from which it arises, the blockade being Great Britain's represai against submarine warfare, is settled."

The Echo ways the French Govern-ment was favorable to the project of making cotton contraband, but was de-Germany could do without it. Events show the contrary, says the Echo, hence it is the allies' duty to arrest the traffic at all costs.

The Temps comments on the American note in similar terms:

"German submarines drown Americans as punishment for selling arms to the allies, which they have a right to do. British and French cruisers arrest ships carrying merchanise to and from Germany, but indemnify shippers. The cases are not parallel, but characteristic of the methods of the different belligerents. America will take that into consideration."

The following statement from Berlin has been given out: "The operations of last week in the Avi Burnu region have been confined on the part of the ailles to several offensive movements of no great strength against the Turkish trenches. Attempts by the allies' artillery to support their infantry resulted on July 7 in the shelling of one of their

New batteries have been brought up on the Asiatic shore and in the rear of Seddul-Bahr, and since July 6 have caused heavy losses in men and material to the allies, whose camps and bases are now constantly under fire. Seven ammunition depots of the allies were exploded during the period from July 6 to July 10. This was due principally to the fire of Turkish batteries on the Asiatio shore. The cable announcing the casualty gave no particulars as to what sort of iron it was and under what circumstances it caused the prisoner's death, but further particulars are expected. On its face it looks like a case of possible illtreatment of a prisoner, but it is scarcely thought if such were actually the case the suspicious wording of the notification of death would have been allowed to go through.
