A BILLION DOLLARS.

The Time It Would Take An Exper to Count Them Singly.

I wonder if we realize when we talk of a billion dollars what an enormous of money II means?

We all know how rapidly an expert counter of coins will manipulate them. You can scarcely follow the motion of his fingers as he shifts the coins from one pile to another and counts them. The treasury experts will count 4,000 silver dollars in an hour and keep it up all day, but that is their limit.

Working eight ours a day, then, an expert counter of coins will count 82,000 silver dollars in a day, but now long will it take him at that rate to count $1,000,000? Thirty-one days. But that is only the beginning of the measurements of great figures, for if this same man were to so on counting silver collars at the same rate of speed for ten years he would find that he had only counted 100,-900,000 of them and that to count $1,000,000,000 would require 102 years of steady work at the rate of eight hours a day during every working day of every one of the 162 years - O. P. Austin, Former Chief of Bureau of Statistics.

Not Allowed to Read the Bible.

But few people know that in the sixteenth century an Englishman was not allowed to read the Bible, yet it is perfeetly true Henry VIII. issued a decree prohibiting the common people from reading the Bible. Officers of man and force him to raise his right were exempt from this law, hand and swear, "Never again!" Probably the king thought these officials would be none the worse for perusing the sacred work, and noble ladies or gentlewomen might read the proseribed volume if they did so in their garden or orchards, but no one was allowed even to read it to the lower classes.-Westminster Gazette.

Carrying the Baby.

Even though parental love may be strong within him the average man has an aversion to carrying a baby in public. It is not because the task is too laborious, but it seems that the ordinary man was not intended to do this duty. Man's aversion to shouldering a baby in public can probably be traced to his shyness. He dislikes to enter a public place or conveyance with a baby because he is aware that the eyes of those present will be turned in the baby's direction, and when they have feasted on the baby to their satisfaction they will turn to him. If the baby is pretty and the man fails to measure up to the same standard the gossips present set their tongues to waging, and the man is criticised until he becomes embarrassed and grows

BELGIAN KONGO SAVAGES Cannibals in War Paint Whose

Past is Black Mystery. In his book "Hunted and Hunting In the Belgian Congo" Mr. R. D. Cooper speaks of the remarkable peo ple who live in the forest wilds:

Threading our way down the stony path, winding in and out among the trees, we began to walk the remaining few miles along the sandy shore to Entiaba. A slight breeze sprang up from the southwest, and very shortly the sun had kissed the Buleggia mountain peaks that rise thousands of feet sheer from the water's edge in the

"Gaunt, forbidding sentinels of the Kongo! The ages gone by are all a blank to them. These people are akin to the beasts of the forest, inasmuch as they care only for the present. They live for the present. The past is gone. No records have been written of them.

"The war paint of vermillion colored pigments which is smeared all over their bodies adds to the hideousness of these savages, darting from rock to rock, hiding behind trees, lying hidden in the foliage overhead, waging war with all. Tragedy follows tragedy behind these Bulegga mountains in the Kongo, to the south of which lie the snow capped crests of rugged

The Geranium.

For a maximum of beautiful flowers and a minimum of labor and expense. geraniums are unsurpassed. They are sure to be in bloom all winter if given ordinary care. The potted plants that have been under good treatment and that are well grown, strong and vigorous, are the ones to depend upon for winter blooming. It is quite a mistake that a season's growth and florescence impoverishes geraniums. The only consideration is to keep the roots well nourished, not to allow them to become pot bound, and to keep the foliage clean, Unless geraniums have sunlight, they will not bloom. They revel in sunshine, particularly the morning sun.

Rotation, by striking cuttings for new plants both spring and fall, must be kept up. Under the gentle heat and soft showers of spring geranium cuttings in damn candy soil root quickly and grow like magic. The maiden bloom on a geranium but a few weeks old is semetimes obenemenal in size. Discrimination is difficult among so ! many heartiful varieties.
