Eight officers and 400 men were taken prisoper out of an army corps made up, according to to-night's Austrian officfal statement, of mixed units of the Teutonic allies. The Austrians, on their side claim a large number of prisoners in the same fighting.

Vienna contradicts Petrograd as to the situation in the Stripa River, both sides claiming success. An Austrian counter-attack near the village of Sienikowce, recently captured by the Russians, is said in the Petrograd report to have resulted in the storming parties being driven back to their trenches. The Vienna report asserts that most of the village was regained in this action.
