General Castelnau is Real Saviour of Verdun Declares Swiss Paper

THE certain veiling all questions of leadership of the French troops is allowed to be slightly lifted now by the republication in Paris from the well-informed L'Espresso-Gazette of the story of how the Verdun situation was handled. Here is the story:

"As soon as the seriousness of the German effort was made apparent General Joffre rushed General Castelnau, Chief of the General Staff, to Verdun with the mission to examine the situation and take all necessary measures.

"General Castelnau arrived at Verdun at 3 a.m., just in time to learn that the Germans had captured Fort Douaumont.

"In these circumstances, which would have been judged so tragically desperate as to plunge most men into despair, General Castelnau, with the strength of mind and military genius which always have distinguished him in difficult situations, took command of the battle.

"Unhesitatingly he inflicted punishment where he deemed it necessary. He summoned Gen. Petain and his army, meanwhile himself preparing and hurling the furious counter-attack which again gave the French the Douaumont position.

"This counter-stroke was perfectly organized and admirably timed, and it quite shattered the Teutonic onrush.

"Verdun was saved. History repeated itself in that the Kaiser was defeated at Verdun by the very man who checkmated him before Nancy in 1914.

"Both were unimaginably bloody battles; both were witnessed by the Emperor, and on both occasions the Kaiser hoped to victoriously enter the cities upon which the attacks were made.

"When he arrived with his army General Petain took command of all the troops engaged in the battles from General Castelnau, and wiped out all further progress by the Germans, who, despite their superhuman efforts and most disastrous losses, have not gained a single important advantage from that moment."

Veteran of Mons Re-enlisted.

One of the latest recruits to be dealt with in Bristol, Eng., had fought in the battle of Mons, had received a bullet through the right arm and a bayonet thrust through the thigh, and had lost the middle finger of the right hand. He stated that he had received the D.C.M. for bringing in his officer and two other men. He had been discharged from one of the Black Watch battalions as unfit for further service in a fighting regiment, and he had had two brothers killed at Neuve Chapelle.

The man appeared before the examining doctors, and said: "I have done my bit, but I am ready to enlist again in the Mechanical Transport." As the lost finger did not interfere with his grip he was attested. His name is Alexander Hunter, and he is certain of receiving non-com. rank very soon.

German and Honor Stand Apart?

With all its shrewdness, the German mind has not yet grasped the concept of honor, says a London paper. Its imagination in politics does not reach beyond the treachery of a Frederick or the forgery of a Bismarck. It knows confidence and friendship only as instruments for betrayal. That is why the egregious attempts to make Russia break the Pact of London, have again been given a sanguine exercise. The result was appropriately handled in Petrograd, for, as M. Sazonoff says, "we simply took no notice." To Russia, it is manifest that "Germany must be rendered harmless" before the sword can be sheathed.

Poet's Grandson Gone.

Lord Tennyson has received official news that his youngest son, Sub-Lieutenant Harold Tennyson, R. N., has been killed. Born on April 27, 1896, Mr. Tennyson became a midshipman in 1913. He was promoted last September.

All three of Lord and Lady Tennyson's sons have been serving, and the eldest, Staff-Captain Lionel Tennyson, was home on short leave at Farringford Park, Isle of Wight, a few days ago.

LAND OF GEYSERS

(1) Dragon's Mouth Geyser, Wairakei. (2) Active Volcano, Ngaurukoe, N.Z. (3) Harbour Front, Auckland, N.Z. (4) Prince of Wales Feather Geyser, Whakarewarewa. (5) S. S. Niagara, the great British Empire.

NATURAL philosophers have been searching for decades for a sound explanation of the geyser phenomena, and yet they are not able to give the interested world full details about them; philosophy has been able to ascend to the heavens and bring down to the world dimensions and particulars about the planets, has been able to tell why the stars wink, why the sun and moon appear and disappear, when there will be an eclipse of some distant revolving body, and why the eclipse will occur; philosophy has taught us all about all the variations of the firmament, about all the motions of the earth itself, but geysers are puzzles. Nobody fully understands them. At any rate we know something about them—we know they are beautiful.

Those who are fond of travel and interesting sights should see a geyser. For conditions the most attractive and those in New Zealand, for the islands of New Zealand are important parts of the great British Empire. The Canadian Pacific train and steamship connections can bring sightseers from almost any part of the Dominion right up to the home of geysers. The S.S. "Niagara" of the Canadian-Australian Line, plys regularly between Vancouver and Auckland. From Auckland the New Zealand geyser basins can easily be reached. At Rotorua are numerous hotels to accommodate health seekers and the bubbling mud geysers in the vicinity are as wicked-looking as they are extraordinary. But geysers are not the only attractions that New Zealand has to offer; there are hosts of others, and not the least are the New Zealanders themselves, who are our cousins. At this point when the link connecting the two continents is being built, there are many who have been before, it is only a matter of time before there should be more intimate intercourse between its members. Present day travelling facilities almost annihilate distance, and any of us who have the means should not grudge our kindred and neighbours a visit.

The city of Auckland, which is the largest in New Zealand, had in 1906 a population of 22,189, but during the past ten years it is likely that this number has had another 10,000 added to it. Auckland has a good harbour. The interior of the city is interesting. It contains some impressive buildings, but it is only yet in its youth, and as it is a favorite amongst the young daughter cities of the great British Empire, it is likely to become very large and very wealthy, a busy spot of commerce, and a home of culture.
