Newsletters Prophecies

In the latter half of last year an officer called on his bank manager in London, Eng., in regard to certain dispositions in his balance pre- for his leaving for the front.

"You won't be away long," said the manager.

"How do you know?" was the reply.

"You will be back in quite a short while, wounded in the hand."

When the officer actually returned with a wounded hand he was puzzled. However, his wound healed and he was off again. He went to bid good-bye at the Bank.

"Any more prophecies?" said he jocularly.

"You will be away longer this time" replied the manager, "and then you will be badly wounded in the leg." When the officer was wounded in the leg and came home he sought the first chance to interview his far seeing friend at the bank.

"As you can fortell my wounds, can't you give me the date of the war?"

"The war will end," said the manager, "on June 17 next. But I shan't live to witness it. I shall just about see New Year's day, and that's all."

He died on January 2, says the "Financial News." The officer is now looking forward with extraordinary interest to June 17.

The wastage of woollen clothing in the war has accelerated the demand and prices of wool, the available supplies of which have been reduced further by the havoc of German submarines and mines which in one fortnight sent over 32,000 bales of this greatly-needed article to the bottom of the sea.

The paper famine has become so serious in the United States that influential newspapers are now appealing to the Canadian provinces which restrict the export of wool pulp, especially from the crown lands, to relax the impediment, at least, temporarily.
