Dear Sir.—The breeding of horses has become a matter of prime necessity. Before the war commenced there was a slump in prices owing to financial conditions and the inroads of motor power that led to a cessation of breeding. Then the war came with its demand for certain classes. Following the previous decline in the demand many farmers sacrificed their mares. The result is serious depletion and a sure scarcity.

The demand is increasing and will continue to increase long after peace is declared. If Canada is to take advantage of the situation the time to start is now.

Not only has the wastage by reason of war been enormous, but in all the belligerent countries, not omitting Great Britain, there has either been a partial stoppage or a whole stoppage of breeding by reason of the scarcity of labor, the disturbed conditions, or entire devastation.

Whether the war lasts or ceases there must continue an undiminished demand for horses. When peace comes there will be a long period of replenishment. Then quality as much as even more than quantity will be required. Hence the evident call to every Canadian farmer is to breed and to breed to the best available, to utilize his mares for production and to secure the immediate services of the best pure bred sire of type in his neighborhood. It will pay.

This appeal is addressed to you with the endorsement of the various horse breeders' associations of Canada, who urge decisive action by the farmers of Canada, to remedy the serious situation that has arisen.

Swat the Fly---Now

A writer on scientific questions, speaking of the common house fly, says rather humorously, "the fly beholds the evil and the good, especially the evil because he loves to lay his eggs on it. He is also the most intimate domestic animal we breed and keep and the most persistent visitor we have. He dines with us and would just as soon dine in the garbage pail."

"We may admire him for his industry, pertinacity and business enterprise; we may even love him lukewarmly as one of God's creatures, but we had better wipe him gently out of existence just the same."

The fly is born in filth and lives in a filthy way and is a definite danger in the house. Wipe him out at every opportunity and clean up everything in and out of the house so that there is no place for him to breed.

While the war lasts and for a long period after peace is declared there will be a demand at high prices for all the animal products the Dominion can turn out. Every farmer can share in the benefits arising from this demand by increasing the quantity and improving the quality of his live stock. Whether he is a breeder of cattle, sheep, swine or horses he need not fear any glut in the world's markets for many years to come.
