Laundry marks vary greatly in Europe. Those used in Britain consist of certain small letters or figures stitched in red thread. Not all contimental laundries are so considerate. In some parts of France linen is defaced by having the whole name and address of the laundry stamped upon it and an additional geometrical design to indicate the owner.

In Bavaria every piece has a number stamped on in large characters. In other parts of Germany a small cotton label is attached by means of a waterproof (hot) adhesive. In Bulcaria each laundry has a large number of stamps engraved with designs, and in Russia the laundries mark linen with threads worked in arrow shapes.

In some Russian towns the police marks are furnished annually to the laundry proprietors, and these marks and no others may be used. By this system criminals and revolutionary agitators are often traced.-London

"Dear Old Ladies" and Other Kinds.

There are as many kinds of old ladies as there are girls, men, automobiles, books and remedies for a cold. There are kindly old ladies, ill natured old ladies, sharp old ladies, witty old ladies, stupid old ladies, musty-fusty old ladies, dainty old ladies, wise old ladies, silly old ladies, Whistler's mother old ladies, Betsy Trotwood old ladies, white spatted old ladies, churchy old ladies, sit-by-thefire old ladies, tangoing old ladies and old ladies who don't wish to be called old ladies at all.

Nowadays most of them are so busy working in public causes that they have not time to protect their own interests as they should. But let us hope that after a while they will erganize a new association, to te called the Society for the Promotion of Distinctive Characterizations for Old Ladies, and that it will have displayed prominently on its banners toe slogan "Down With the Word 'Dear!"

The Four Great Sauces.

A French epicure has declared that "man has created the culinary art; he does not feed like an animol-he breakfasts, dines and sups."

The French are particularly eloquent on the subject of sauces. Among their famous chets are recognized four great sauces, Spanish, veloute, bechamel and German. The Spanish and veloute weer known as far back as the seventeenth century. In the eighteenth they were modified by the Carenie, who was called "the Raphael Strictly speaking, "atlas" is a mishomer for a map book, since it was not the world, but the heavens, that the Atlas of mythology upheld. Mercator, the famous Dutch geographer, who made globes for Emperor Charles V. of Germany, was the first to use the name in this connection, choosing it as a convenient and in some sort an appropriate title, because Atlas, the demigod, figures with a world upon his shoulders as a frontispiece of some early works on geography.

Atlas, it was said, made war with other Titans upon Zeus and, being conquered, was condemned to bear periodically issue regulations for heaven upon his head and hands. Latlaundries while in Odessa books of er tradition represented him as a man changed by means of Medusa's head into a mountain, upon which rested heaven and all its stars.

In any case, Atlas was always associated with a heavy burden strongly borne. Thus Shakespeare makes Warwick say to Gloucester, "Thou art no Atlas for so great a weight."

It is not difficult to see how by an association of ideas this came to be chosen as the name for a book of maps which upholds and exhibits to

Sir Herbert Risley, cpeaking of the castes of eastern Bengal, at a meeting of the Royal Anthrapological Institute, said a curious system of religious worship prevailed among a caste who were professional burglars. Chateaubriand a Lover of Cats.

Many famous men have loved cats-Cardinal Richelieu and Victor Hugo among others-but probably the animais most eloquent defender was Chateaubriand, the French writer. "I love in the cat," he said, "that ni-

CURIOUS JAPANESE RITE.

The Art of Divination Through the Use of Tortoice Shell.

The curicus art of divination importance of this practice in the eyes okthe Japanese may be inferred Ouch, that stab-like pain in the side from the fact that the meids in which the sacred, rice for the coronation ceremony was grown were selected

The divinauen is expected by first worshipping a god called Urayane Then a tortoise shell is taken and scraped inside until quite thin and the putside surface polished. In the shell are several hollow squares -a each of which there is a certain sign marked in black mk. The whole is then baked under great heat, causing cracks to appear in the surface. These cracks are then studied in accordance with the formulae in the divination book, the result being a sort of code message from the gods. This is not the earliest form of divination known in Japan. Previously there was a kind called Futomani, in which the shoulder blade of a stag was used in place of a tortoise shell. The tortoise shell method, which probably came from China, was considercd an improvement and was probably adopted because it was something new, for at that time the Japanese were seizing upon all things foreign.-Japanese Magazine.
