Spring seeding is progressing very slowly in our burg. Raining again at time of writing. Be patient men. Your old scribe sowed oats in June seven years ago and harvested a fair good crop too, so "don't worry." We are promised a seed time and a harvest.

Pte. James King, 133rd Batt., Simcoe, spent Sunday with Pte. Walter Blife and family.

Pte. Sidney Benstead of the 173rd, Hamilton, spent the week end with friends in our burg.

Those who spent Sunday at the Rolling Valley Farm were Pte. Ross Easton, 215th Brantford and his sister Miss Jennie Easton, of Bealton, Mr. Lorne Jackson and Miss Edna Peace, of Pt. Dover.

Miss Jessie Mitchell, who has been on the sick list is improved at the time of writing.

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Law, of Port Dover, spent Sunday with Mrs. Mitchell.

Miss I. V. Bird, P. S. teacher at S. S. No. 10, Townsend, spent Sunday with Miss Annie Beatty.

Mrs. A. D. Teeple spent a few days last week with friends in Simcoe.

Mr. Geo. Duncan, jr., spent Sunday last with his brother Charlie, at Walsh.

Mr. Walter Demming shipped a fine lot of veal calves and cattle on Monday last at Renton Station. Wait, is right in the game.

Master Orvel Newell has purchased a goat.

Sandwich

James Townsend spent last Wednesday with Mrs. Jos. Hill.

Miss Annie B. Westoby returned home on Saturday after three weeks visiting friends in Marshville, Eonhill, Dunnville and Port Maitland.

Rev. Brand, of Nanticoke, spent Monday in this vicinity.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Booth, are spending a few days with friends in Hamilton this week.

Miss Robinson, of Varenay, spent the week-end with her sister Mrs. Joseph Hill.

Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Pond entertained the Bible Class at their home on Tuesday evening.

The W. F. Summer Meeting will be held at Mrs. James Bush on Friday evening, May 26. Miss Yates, of Port Credit, will address the meeting. All are welcome.

THE IDEAL HUSBAND.

Some Observations on the Side and a Dogmatic Conclusion.

You are probably a woman. Few men would pause to read an article headed "The Ideal Husband." Man knows his fellow men too well.

Of course it is true that nearly every married woman has at some time in her life claimed to have found the one ideal husband, but not for long. He is not a stable article; he is only a fleeting glimpse.

Shortly after a young married woman declares hers to be the ideal husband he exhibits a tendency to crumble his crackers in his soup or to place a slice of bread in his empty dinner plate and submerge it in gravy. These things "are not done."

While a man is still engaged—held under option, as it were, but not definitely contracted for—he is for a short while considered ideal. However, he just begins to enjoy his perfection when it is discovered by his general manager elect that he rests his knife and fork half on the tablecloth and half on his plate, while they should be draped artistically across his plate midway between meat and potatoes. To save time, probably he also cuts his meat into small pieces before starting to eat it.

He has good reasons for doing as he does, but they do not excuse him. His sort of conduct and perfection simply do not walk hand in hand.

No young couple should be engaged long enough for either one to discover the other's shortcomings. So long as a man and a girl are so mutually mesmerized that the eyes of one never leave the eyes of the other he is perfect, but the moment he allows her glances to stray below his Adam's apple, the moment he loses control, he loses also perfection. She realizes that his knowledge of esthetics was gleaned from an abridged edition; that his tie is not in vogue, that his collar is too loose and too low and therefore too comfortable.

Ah! me! I have strayed from my subject—the ideal husband. Let me return to it and proceed.

There is no such thing.

ANCIENT BAGDAD.

Sits About the Enchanted City of the "Arabian Nights."

Immortalized by Haroun-al-Raschid, in the story of the "Arabian Nights," Bagdad, which has a population of about 150,000, was built on the ruins of an ancient Babylonian city dating back to 2000 B. C. Records have been found on ancient bricks establishing its early date.

Ever since the days of Haroun-al-Raschid the Jews have been the leading figures in the commercial world of Bagdad. There are 50,000 of them, with about 8,000 Chaldean (or heretical) Christians. The remainder of the population is made up of Persians, Turks, Armenians, Arabs and Kurds.

Sinbad the Sailor was born at Bagdad, and all his marvelous adventures begin by his going down the Tigris to Bussorah (the modern Basra).

The city stands on both sides of the Tigris, the two parts being connected by the famous bridge of boats, 230 yards long. A brick wall, five miles in circumference and forty feet high, surrounds Bagdad.

The city contains upward of 100 mosques, though barely twenty of them are in use. The houses generally are old, dirty and ugly outside, but the vaulted ceilings, rich moldings, inlaid mirrors and massive gildings bring back to the recollection of the traveler "the golden prime of the good Haroun-al-Raschid."

The streets are narrow, crooked, unpaved and dirty, full of ruts and strewn with garbage, which, however, is for the most part removed by dogs, the public scavengers in the east.
