Offensive in Galicia to Create a Diversion.

Trenches On Stokhod Captured by Huns.

London Cable- German troops captured advanced Russian trenches on the western bank of the Stokhod River south of Witoniez, in Volhynia, after the Russians had repelled three previous attacks, says to-day's announcement of the Petrograd War

The Berlin report in describing the engagement claims that more than 1,500 Russions were taken prisoner. The battle opened in the morning, the Russians stubbornly defending their commanding defences on the leights south of the village. Three times the German waves were thrown back. Then the German heavy artillery was called into play to prepare for a fourth assault. This time the enemy succeeded in winning the coveted positions. The German War Office asserts that the Russian losses in dead and wounded were heavy.

A despatch from Petrograd says "According to military opinion here the approach of winter already has precluded the possibility of further Enemy Morale Proved to be operations on a large scale in this theatre

"There has been, however, a noticably growing tendency on the part 'of the Germans to commence a more or less serious offensive at various points in Galicia. the most important of which is the one undertaken south of Brzezany, where the Russian positions along the Narayuvka River have offered exceptional advantages for a flanking attack upon Halicz from the north, at the same time constituting a direct menace to Lemberg.

"The Germans aimed thrusts all along the line from Brzezany to Halicz, but concentrating most heavfly in the region of Michishou wood, began a determined attack on the night of Oct 29 which carried the Russian positions.

"Russian critics, although manifestly surprised at the German ability to launch an offensive of large forces at this point, do not consider the hostile advance over a six-mile front of more than local importance, and state that its only significance is in relation to the Transylvanian operation, being an obvious attempt to create a diversion and prevent further Russian co-operation on the Transylvanian front, where the Austro-Germans are making a new effort to advance."

Petrograd cable —Thursday's War Office report reads:

"Western front: In the Stokhod River region near Witoniez and the villages of Mikhailovka and Alexandrovsk battles are proceeding. The first enemy attacks on Witoniez and the heights south of it were repelled, but in the afternoon the enemy, after a fierce artillery bombardment, launched a fourth attack and captured our advanced trenches on the western bank of the Stokhod, south of Witoniez.

King Orders Royalists to Oppose Revolutionists

Who Forced Them Out of Katerina.

London cable -After months of strife between the adherents of Premier Venizelos and the staunch adherents of King Constantine over the question of Greece's stand in the war, a revolution of considerable proportions has broken out in the region southwest of Saloniki.

Only meagre details are at hand, but these show that 600 insurgents, probably followers of Venizelos, forced 150 Royalist troops to evacuate Katerina, between ourselves and the Dominions, near the Gulf of Saloniki, and retreat but none can be as strong as these go a long way by stretching it.

prevent at all costs the advance of the Revolutionists. A despatch from Ath-

"King Constantine issued orders this morning to the Royalist troops to prevent the advance of the Revolutionist forces at all costs. One hundred and fifty loyal troops had previously evacuated Katerina before 600 insurgents armed with machine guns, withdrawing to Larissa to join reinforcements. The evacuation of Katerina is confirmed by the general staff." Special despatches from Athens printed in this morning's papers give sensational details of the alleged arrest at Larissa of a German officer who was proceeding in a motor car the German Legation mail with pouch, bound for the Bulgarian line.

It is said the pouch contained important messages to the military attaches at Sofia and Constantinople, and also detailed plans of the Suez anal defences. In addition, the despatches say it contained "compromising" letters from the Greek King and Queen to the German Emperor.

Allies Will Hammer Them Whenever Possible.

Declining.

London cable- During the course of an interview with the Associated Press correspondent to-day Major-General F. B. Maurice, chief director of military operations at the War Office, was asked what he thought of Field Marshal von Hindenburg's statement that the Entente allies could not break through the western front in thirty years. General Maurice replied:

"Our recent offensive was not designed to break through. Its purpose was to relieve the pressure on Verdun and kill as many Germans as possible. I will not undertake to say whether it will take thirty years to get the Germans out of France, but the allied strength is constantly growing and the German strength constantly declining. The effect of the allied offensive is accumulative. When the weather permits its resumption the results will be greater than ever. Torrential rains in the past week have prevented actions of any great conse-

"It is no doubt true that the Germans in recent fights have been short ammunition. During the winter materials were captured. with its short days, limiting the use of artillery, they will be able to replenish their stores but, despite the bad weather, we have no intention of letting up on them.

"Our offensive will continue throughout the winter when conditions are at all favorable.

"From documents recently found on prisoners there is no question but that there is a great deterioration in the enemy's morale and material, although they have been able to maintain the number of their divisions. This has been accomplished by withdrawing regiments from old divisions to form new ones. You see, in defence warfare, eight or nine battalions can form an effective division, whereas eleven or twelve are required for offensive work. On the defensive a emaller number of battalions can hold a great amount of line. This is possible through the use of machine guns, whereas on the offensive the men must be individually armed with

"I am confident the actual new organizations of the Germans are not more than 10 divisions. Others were formed as indicated by withdrawing battalions from old divisions."

Strong systems of defences on the heights east of Gorizia and on the Carso east of Vallone were wrested from the enemy and remain in Italian possession, despite the most desperate counter-attacks. With the advent of clear weather Gen. Caderna launched his infantry across the rainscaked terrain against the 'Austrian ines, which were penetrated at several points south of the Oppachiasella

As a result of the fighting in the Gorizia region, the Italians to-right occupy the eastern slopes of Tivoli and San Marco, as well as the heights east of Sober.

On the Carso plateau the Italians at points advanced almost a mile. East of Segiti two-thirds of a mile of strong positions were won. The brunt of the Carso fighting was borne by the Eleventh Army Corps. Here the wooded slopes of Veliki were stormed and Kribuch and Hill No. 375 carried. This latter height dominated Monte Pecinka, a strong Austrian position, from the east.
