A Living Sacrifice.—Romans 12. -21.

Commentary.—I. Entire consecra-tion (vs. 1, 2). 1. I beseech you —Paul is intensely concerned for the spiritual weifare of the Romans. He feels for them and uses strong entreaty in urging them to take a course that he is thoroughly convinced is right. Therefore—The great doctrine of justification and sanctification by faith had been established. Upon this truth as a basis the apostle urged those to whom he wrote to meet the conditions necessary to the attainment of full salvation. By the mercies of God-The abounding mercy of God was shown in the plan of human redemption. Since God has shown such mercy toward fallen humanity, men ought to consecrate themselves wholly and freely to him. That ye present—As the priests presented sacrifices to God in fulfilment of the Mosaic law, so we are called upon to present our offering to the Lord. Your bodies-The body is the agency through which the spiritual nature operates, and the apostle's exhortation is to the effect that every power and faculty of the being victim was wholly presented in sacrifice to God, os our entire being is to be dedicated to him. A living sacrifice-The animals devoted to be sacrificed were deprived of life. They were dead before they were dead before they were burned or otherwise disposed of as Christians we are wholly devoted to God as sacrifices while we are living. Our powers of soul and mind and body are to belong to Him and to be employed in His service, Holy-The sacrifice required by the Mosaic law must be without blemish and must be set apart for sacred uses, so the Christian must be wholly consecrated to God and must be made pure in heart through the merits of the atonement. Acceptable- God is pleased with a whole-hearted and complete dedication of our entire being to Him. Such a sacrifice is acceptable to Him. Your reasonable service. The service is not external merely, but is essentially spiritual and hearty. It is also reasonable that we should render to God all our service and that service at its best.

2. Be not conformed to this world -"Be not fashioned according to this world."-R. V. By the world is meant the spirit and customs of the age that leave out of consideration the claims of God. The world is selfish, proud, censual, irritable, deceitful and stubborn. The Christian has no right or excuse to be "fashioned according to this world," for the spirit of the world is opposed to the spirit of Christianity. Be ye transformed-The word conformed has reference more to the external than to the internal, yet both ideas are involved; but the word transformed here indicates an inward change. The affections, desires, motives and ambitions are changed. By the renewing of your mind-The m'nd is not here simply the intellectual faculties, but the will, and that disposition from which all grows.-Abbott. That ye may prove -No one can properly prove, test or enter into an understanding of the will of God unless he has become renewed by grace that he now, by a holy instinct, can discern, in conflicting cases, the will of God from the will of self or of the world. And on this perception he is to act."-Cam. Bib. He proves the excellence of the divvine will by experience. Good-God's will in its very nature is good, springing as it does from Him who is infinits in goodness. Acceptable-God's will is acceptable to those who are "transformed by the renewing" of their minds. They gain a realization of the wisdom, goodness and love of God in the requirements which He makes upon us. Perfect-God's will for us is perfectly adapted to our needs, to our capacity and to our highest happiness. It is absolutely impossible for us to make any improvements upon God's thority of an apostle. He is about to enlarge upon the results or accompaniments of full consecration to God. Through the grace given unto me-What he says is not by his own authority, but is given to him by the Lord, as an inspired apostle. To every man—The exhortations and instructions which he gives are needed by all; hence they are spoken not only to the Romans, but also to all men. Not to think of himself more highly -The apostle gives clear and emphatic warning against self-exaltation, which is productive of much harm to the one who is guilty of thinking too highly of himself, and it is also harmful to the work of God. But to think soberly -The special direction to be taken by this sober thinking was the recognition by each Christian of the limits of his own gifts, the reality of the gifts of others, and the position of the individual as only a part of the great community.-Cam. Bib. We should not belittle ourselves on the one hand nor should we esteem ourselves too highly on the other. The measure of faith—As God through his mercy has brought salvation to us as individuals, and we have received his grace and have experience and varying ability in the work of God, so we are to honor him by sober thinking and a readiness to do the particular work to which he calls us. 4. For as we have many members in one body-A clear and impressive illustration is introduced to show the relation of individual Christians to God and to one another. Each member of the body has its own function, and when each does its part, there result health and strength. 5. One body in Christ-Christians have severally their distinctive qualities and ability to labor, but each one is a member of Christ's body and all are mutually related. The course which sne member pursues has a bearing upon all the other members of Christ's tody.

6. Having then gifts differing -The body of Christ. which is his church. is a unit made up of many members. The several members differ in ability and in natural traits. One has ability in one direction and another in another, yet a blessed unity inheres in the body of which they are members. According to grace that is given- God has given grace and ability to all, but the special gifts are bestowed according to his will. The prophecy—This word is used to include either the foretelling of future events or the utterance of divine truth. "Every true preacher is in a true sense a prophet. The New Testament prophet blended and exercised by turn, as grace was given him, these various gifts." -Whedon. According to the proportion of faith-Every prophet is exhorted to exercise his gift according to the measure of grace and light that come to him through faith in Christ. He is not to assume to speak from his own authority or impulse, but as God directs him. 7. Ministry-This includes the secular and manual service connected with the church and pertains to what we speak of as the business side. He that teacheth-Teachers are a class of workers in the church whose duty it is to explain and impress the divine truth. In order for one to be a successful teacher he must put his whole soul into his 8. He that exhorteth. - The work. word has in it the thought of comfort together with that of encouragement as well as ezhortation. He that giveth-By noting the various gifts which are here enumerated we see that every member of the body of Christ has the ability bestowed upon him to do something in the church. Every one should be a giver, but God has endowed some with a special gift to acquire property and distribute it to others. With simplicity-With no selfish or unworthy motive. He that ruleth-Let those who are given places of authority in the church exercise the authority faithfully for the good He that showeth of the cause. mercy, with cheerfulness—To some is entrusted the special gift of relieving those who are in various kinds of distress. Such persons are exhorted to use the gift with gladness, to bring cheer to others.

III. Attitude toward others (vs. 9-21. The apostle proceeds to give somewhat in detail, the practises that pertain to the Christian life. Love is the basis of right practise. Love accords to every person his rights and does even more than is ordinarily regarded as giving to others their rights. Love leads its possessor to be kind to those who are unkind to him. It is the Christian's duty to refrain from avenging himself. His practise must be uniformly kind and helpful to others. He must be peaceable and always considerate. Even his enemies have claims upon him. He owes them kindness and helpfulness. He will be going in the direction of winning his enemy if he shows him love and char-

He declared that the presentation to God of themselves was the one great act in which all specific acts of obedience were summed up and involved His language implied that compliance with his admonition was not an optional or indifferent matter. He regarded justification as an initial step which must be followed by a "going on to know the Lord." Since they only who had obtained mercy could present a living sacrifice, Paul embodied the whole of Christian life in that one master word sacrifice. The foundation of all transformation of character and conduct is shown to be laid down in a renewed mind, from which the inward life shapes the outward conduct, where inward consecration is manifested by outward sacrifice, the sacrifice of the whole man in the dedication of himself to God, thus including the activities and energies of the body, soul and spirit. By "the world" is meant everything in it which is antagonistic to the truth or the life of humanity acting out itself in the human family, moulding and fashioning III. > II. Fervent in fellowship with men. Paul explained how consecration must be manifested in actual life, and how proved, and how the purposes of divine grace are fulfilled when each hears his brother's burden and joins his brother's song. Paul put upon record the graces and qualifications he deemed necessary to every Christian life. He specified several forms of ministry as of peculiar interest and value. He specified the manner of life which is saved, quite ar expense in itself.

With the auto truck a man's spiritual nature, control and little delay will not inconvenience govern his life and shape his social relations. Paul mentioned six features which should characterize the dealings of Christians with others-sincerity, discrimination, generosity, sympathy, humility and peaceableness. He comprehensively surveyed the whole range of human action and conduct. He laid down the Christian principles of civil government and obedience in a picture of life in its length and breadth and in its lights and shadows. Great importance is attached to the exercise of man's faculties. In elevating him Christianity elevates his employment. It is a gospel of renewal. It is a system of doctrines and duties. Piety is a constellation of virtues.

III. Faithful in personal discipline. The will of God is perfect, admitting of no amendment, no censure, no improvement. To attain to it is to reach a moral height, above which nothing towers. Paul described the practical diligence which he taught should characterize and distinguish all Christian service. He enumerated duties which the Christian owes to himself, diligence, fervency, piety, hope, joy, patience and perseverance. He must be ever on the watch against sin, yet never disheartened by its power, distrustful of self, but never of God. His religion must not consist merely in abstaining, avoiding and abhorring. but in being, doing and delighting. Christian sacrifice does not consist in a solitary act. It becomes the prevailing habit of life. Consecration may be an act of a moment, but the carrying out of the vow is the work of a life-T. R. A.

FARM NEWS AND VIEWS. It is claimed by a number of experiment stations that salt, to a great extent, will replace potash. Some authorities, however, are not sure of this under all conditions and in all types of soil. The Atlantic County (N. J.) farm demonstrator advises going easy on salt until results are proved Several reports from Monmouth and Mercer counties (N. J.) say that salt was a benefit to the potato crop, giving the foliage a lighted green color and an increased yield.

Oiling harness is a task that farmers generally put off too long. It is just the work for stormy weather. One quart of neatsfoot oil will be sufficient for double harness. Wash the harness well with soap and water and hang in a warm room overnight to dry. Next day it will be in good condition to receive the oil. Add a little lampblack to the oil to color it; apply with rag or brush, rubbing it well into the leather, and hang in a warm room overnight. Next day rub well with a dry cloth and it will be ready for use. Harness thus treated is much easier to handle and far less liable to cause galls to the horses and will wear much

Here is a Maine farmer's method of ridding his premises of rats and mice: "If you sprinkle sulphur on your barn floor and through your corn as you gather it there will not be a rat or mouse to bother. I have done this for years and have never been bothered with rats or mice. I have some old corn in my crab at present, and not a rat or mouse can be found. In stacking hay or oats, sprinkle on the ground and a little through each load, and, my word for it, rats or mice can't stay there. A pound of sulphur will be sufficient to preserve a large barn corn, and is good for stock and will not hurt the corn or bread."

Some horses have tender necks and shoulders. These may be hardened, and the skin toughened by bathing several simes a week with salt water, to which may be added a small amount of vinegar or alum. Shooting a White Chamois.

A stuffed and mounted white chamois buck that rests in the court museum at Vienna is directly connected through tragic superstition with the beginning of the great European war. A white chamois—which is really not so snowy as the word implies-loses much of a rarity that throughout the Austrian Alpine region superstition attaches to the slaying of it. Whoever kills such on albino, says the huntsmen and mountaineers, within the next twelve months.

This particular chamois was shot on Aug. 28, 1913, by the Archduke Francis Ferdinand, accompanied by his wife, near Bluebabach, in the Salzburg Alps. Teiling How to Actually Cure This Common and Painful Comedy,

This article is for the man or wo-

who wants to be cured, not merely relieved-but actually cured. The most the rheumatic sufferer can hope for in rubbing something on the tender, aching joint, is a little relief. No lotion or liniment ever did or can make a cure. The rheumatic poison is rooted in the blood. Therefore rheumatism can only be cured when this poisonous acid is driven out of the blood. Any doctor will tell you this is true. you want something that will go right to the root of the trouble in the blood take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. They make new, rich blood, which drives out the poisonous acid and cures rheumatism to stay cured. The truth of these statements has been proved in thousands of cases throughout Canada, and the following cure is a striking instance. Mr. Henry Smith, St. Jerome, Que., says: "For upwards of a year I was a victim of rheumatism in a most painful form. The trouble was located in my legs and for long.

time I was so bad that I could not The sufferings which I en walk. dured can only be imagined by those who have been similarly afflicted.Doctors' treatments did not help me and then I began trying other remedies, but with no better results. Finally I was advised to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and although I had begun to lose faith in medicine, I finally decaed to give the pills a trial. I am very grateful now that I did so, and after taking eight boxes of the pills the trouble completely disappeared. I was free again from pain and could walk as well as ever I did in my life. I have since taken the pills occasionaliy as a precautionary measure, and cannot speak too highly in their favor.'

Dr. William's Pink Pills cure all the troubles due to weak, watery blood or broken down nerves. You can get these pills through any dealer in medicine, or by mail postpaid at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brock-
