THE CENTAUR COMPANY, NEW YORK CITY.

THE THREE MUSKETEERS

THESE three Pals of the C.P.R. staff in London, England (reading from left to right: R. J. Harden, Passenger Department; E. G. Moore, Advertising Department; and P. T. Roberts, Management Department), at the outbreak of War lost no time in offering their services for their King and Country, and within eight days of the Declaration of War they had all been posted to the 24th County of London Regiment (The Queen's).

They trained together, and early in 1915 they crossed together to France. They shared together the privations of trench warfare in the front line; but in May all three were wounded, Harden and Roberts only slightly, but Moore, in the Givenchy fight, was so seriously injured that he was invalided to England and since his recovery has, to his great regret, been fit for Home service only. Harden and Roberts had rejoined the Lance-Corporal, was again hit, this time very seriously and since gone so many operations that he is looked upon as a wonder by his able to take his part in the strenuous work at the front; he has yet had diarily virtues—patient endurance. It is hoped that after fifteen months in hospital he will soon be able to return to the service of the Company. Roberts, the only remaining member of the trio, was promoted Corporal at the end of 1915, and news now comes of his promotion to the rank of Sergeant and the award to him of the Military Medal for bravery in the field. In an action on May 23rd last, in decorating him General Sir Henry Wilson—the Corps Commander—stated the award was given "for gallantly leading an attack on a flank under very heavy fire, and directing his men in operations for four hours after being wounded." During these operations he was wounded, but has again rejoined his Regiment, and seems to be under the impression that he has not yet done all his bit.

ROLL OF HONOR

Several thousand officers and employees of the Canadian Pacific Railway Company enlisted for active military duty with the Canadian Expeditionary Force, and the majority of them are now in Europe, bravely battling for Canada and the Empire. As particulars of Army Reservists are not available, these lists of those who have given up their lives for their country or been wounded in action are necessarily incomplete, and do not therefore indicate fully the extent to which the Company's officers and employees have participated in the great struggle.
