WANTED AUSTRALIA.

Germany Planned to Plant Colony in Commonwealth.

Germany's designs upon Australia as part of her reputed comprehensive policy of attaining command of the Persian Gulf and control of the sea routes converging upon the Suez Canal have been revealed among certain striking facts just made public by the federal authorities of the Commonwealth. These revelations deal with German espionage—chiefly on the eve of the war.

As northern West Australia is but a few days by steam from southern Asia, and of all the Australian states, West Australia is the most thinly peopled, it would appear that German scheming and spying were directed upon that part of the continent in particular. An intercepted detailed report from a German missionary who had lived for nine years at Broome in the northern part of West Australia is believed by Australian officials to bear out this presumption.

The missionary is the Rev. Joseph Bischofs, of a Prussian congregation, Lintberg, Prussia. An organization styled "The Society for the Protection of Germans Abroad" put fifty questions to him. His answers comprise a minute and intimate account of the physical and commercial attributes of north-western Australia. The report is marked "strictly confidential" and is dated July 10, 1914. Among other things the Rev. Mr. Bischofs was asked if he could furnish photographs, and "correct maps of your town, your country, province, etc." To the former question he replied, "Perhaps, later."

According to information in possession of the Commonwealth Defence Department a German representative in Australia remarked to an Australian official some time before the war broke out that the Commonwealth was making very little use of the north-western part of Australia and that it would serve admirably for a German settlement. The department official is convinced that the questions put to the Rev. Mr. Bischofs were with the ulterior motive of providing the German Government with data about what it believed to be a vulnerable part of the Commonwealth. The Bischofs report was made public by the Australian authorities.

Australian Slang.

Many colloquial expressions used by Australian soldiers are American in origin, and may present little difficulty to their English friends, but some of the commonest are indigenous, and of these an explanation will perhaps be useful. "Bonzer," the constantly recurring word to express satisfaction, is used wherever an English high school girl would say "ripping" or "topping." It is said to come from the Japanese "banzai," probably a false derivation. Applied to persons, "crunk" means shady, while "crook" means seedy or "off color." "Boshter," common a few years ago to describe "a good fellow," seems to be obsolete. The "poke borak" at anyone is to chaff him unmercifully. "He hasn't Buckley's" means that he hasn't a ghost of a chance, and "He's gone a million," used recently by a state premier in a speech in Parliament, has the same significance. "That's up against the duckhouse" indicates that the person named is placed in a dilemma or false position, and the much less cryptic phrase "not within coopee" would be used of an unattainable result or an incorrect calculation. Two perversions of common words are found in all classes of Australian society. "To infer" is invariably used in the sense of "to imply," and "financial" is not only the usual synonym for "solvent" but also has further service to perform. In the rules of most social and sporting clubs there is a proviso that only financial members may vote at a meeting. This means that they have paid their subscription. In the same way trade unions and similar bodies state their right to debar a member from any benefit "in the event of his becoming unfinancial."—Manchester Guardian.

Machine Shop for Field.

The Electrical World describes a portable machine "shop similar in every respect to the one used on the continental battlefields, and recently completed for the United States army. The shop is mounted on a motor truck which carries a complete electric generating outfit for operating the motors driving the machine tools and also to supply electricity to the lamps. A separate gasoline engine is used to drive a direct-current dynamo, which is specially constructed to withstand rough usage. There is a lathe, drill press, and bench grinder, in addition to a forge and little arbor presses, work bench, vises, and a complete assortment of machinist's and blacksmith's tools. Over 250 items are included in the equipment, among the interesting features of which are an electric vulcanizing apparatus and a complete truck chassis of standard three-ton heavy-duty design. It has a British army type of driver's seat, suitable for four men, and is equipped with a varied assortment of motor accessories.

The Work of Coughing.

If you cough once every fifteen minutes for ten hours you expend energy equivalent to two hundred and fifty units of heat, which is equivalent to the nourishment contained in three eggs or two glasses of milk. So says a German who has specialized on the waste of energy in coughing.

At a normal rate we expel air from the chest at the rate of four feet per second, but in violent coughing we expel it at the rate of three hundred feet a second. Thus a persistent cough not only weakens the constitution, but it is a direct cause of emaciation according to the same authority. Such weighty statistics lead to a reiteration of the oft-repeated injunction, "never neglect a cough."—Popular Science Monthly.

CURING TIRED FEET.

A Way to Strengthen the Muscles and Prevent Falling Arches.

This is the age of tired feet. It is also the age of pavements. And tired feet are largely the result of walking on hard pavements. Yet, curiously enough, pavements were invented primarily to enable man to move about on his feet more comfortably.

The outer side of the foot is of stronger construction than the inner and will remain so even with prolonged usage on hard pavements if the foot is kept in a proper position while walking. But the out toeing position takes the strain off the outer portions of the foot, and thus the muscles are weakened eventually through lack of natural exercise. The best way to correct this and at the same time correct the tendency to falling arches is by cultivating the habit of walking and standing with the feet held parallel. This is particularly helpful to persons who are obliged to stand for prolonged periods at their work.

In addition there are two simple exercises which will strengthen the foot muscles and ward off a few moments' fatigue if practiced for a few moments each day. One of these consists in toeing in as much as possible—walking club footed—and walking about the room for one minute several times each day. This position puts the strain on the muscles of the outside of the foot, thus toning them up and strengthening them. The strain will be apparent to any one the first time he tries this exaggerated form of pigeon toed locomotion. But the ultimate result will be a pronounced strengthening and straightening of the feet, with a tendency to assume unconsciously a natural position in walking and standing.

The second exercise consists in throwing the weight of the body on to the outside of the feet by standing with the legs crossed and the feet held parallel. This position should be assumed for several minutes each day and is often found very restful to persons obliged to stand in cramped quarters. By bending the knees and walking about the room with the feet still in this position, alternating with first one foot and then the other in the lead, the outside foot muscles may be strengthened very rapidly.

If either one or both of these exercises are practiced for one minute periods three or four times each day the foot muscles will be toned up to resist fatigue and the tendency to falling arches that follows almost invariably.—Los Angeles Times.

Gray Leaved Plants.

Next to green, gray is the restfullest and most satisfactory color to be had in foliage.

We now have so many hardy plants with gray foliage that we can choose one for each month of bloom and color of flower. Among them are the silvery mistle, gold dust, the white and purple rockrose, the woolly leaved chelidonium, many hardy pinks, Siebold's day lily, Fischer's horned poppy, lavender cotton, woundwort and woolly thyme. Some of these are decidedly silvery. Others incline to a blue cast, which is most pronounced in the globe thistles and sea hollies. Such colors are so unusual in nature that it is easy to overdo them in gardens.—Country Life in America.

When Seed Germinates.

The average time, under normal conditions, for seed to germinate is bean, five to ten days; beet, seven to ten; cabbage, five to ten; carrot, twelve to eighteen; cauliflower, five to ten; celery, ten to twenty; corn, five to eight; cucumber, five to ten; endive, five to ten; lettuce, six to eight; onion, seven to ten; pea, six to ten; parsnip, ten to twenty; pepper, nine to fourteen; radish, three to six; saffery, seven to twelve; tomato, six to twelve, and turnip, four to eight.

An Ironing Hint.

When ironing it is a great help to have a common sponge and a dish of water handy to dampen the clothes where they are too dry for ironing. The sponge is much better than a cloth for that purpose, and, if necessary, dry clothes can be ironed at once if a sponge is used for dampening same.

Ideal and Real.

Interviewer—What is your wife's favorite dish? Husband of Famous Movie Actress—In the magazine articles it is a peach bloom fudge cake with orange wisp salad, but at home it is just plain corned beef and cabbage.—Fuck.

An Example.
"Pa, what's a cynical smile?"
"Your mother will show you, my son, the next time I tell her I can't spare all the money she wants."

Lucky.
Angry Wife—I cook and cook and cook for you, and what do I get? Nothing! Husband—You're lucky! I always get indigestion.

The false can never grow into truth by growing in power.—Taggart.
