EXCLUSIVE FEATURES
There are more exclusive features, more essential improvements that direct appeal to the musician and owner in the than have ever before been embodied in one piano.

Owing to these features that Permanency of Tone
so much desired, is assured. The reasons for this can easily be demonstrated and any Heintzman Piano in use for years is an actual demonstration.

STONE CANNON BALLS.

They Were Used in Iron Guns That Were Held Together by Screws.
In these days of huge projectiles turned to it exactly into cannon that are as near mechanically perfect as modern engineering can make them it is almost impossible to believe that at one time the Turks carried on effective warfare with wrought iron cannon screwed together and firing stone cannon balls.

Two of these cannon balls are to be seen at the museum of Hobart College at Geneva, N. Y.
They were used by the Turks in their war against the kingdom of Cyprus, one of the numerous Christian states which grew out of the ruins of the stronghold of the emperor was the city of Famagusta. In 1571 the Turks undertook to reduce its walls. For nearly a year they hurled stone cannon balls against them. The stone varied in weight from a few pounds to several hundred. In order to conserve the force of the explosion the balls were made to fit the bore of the cannon as nearly as possible, and they were fired with great deliberation.

This method, though crude, was at that time regarded as the height of achievement in siege warfare. The city finally surrendered because its food supply was cut off. It was found that the stone projectiles had done very little damage to the walls and were very annoying to the defenders. At the siege of Constantinople in 1453 stone shot was also used by the Turks effectively. As late as 1807, when the Turks defended Constantinople against the British, these guns were used effectively, as records of the British war office show.

CARELESS ABOUT GRAMMAR

Widespread Fault That a Little Thought Would Correct.
The young woman who is careless about the way she speaks, who thinks and grammar should be used only by teachers and those engaged in "book work" is making a most serious mistake.

The manner in which a person expresses himself or herself—the use of good grammar or the lack of it—stamp a speaker as either a person of education or of very little learning.
"Ain't Margaret any better?" a young girl was heard asking a classmate one day. "So she ain't a bit better," her friend answered.
Both girls were well dressed and looked as though they came from comfortable homes. Evidently a care had ever come to either of them, and to be a time for a matinee seemed to each of them the paramount issue of life. Now, these girls must have known how rude their speech was, but they were absolutely indifferent as to what opinions were formed by those who overheard them.

Many young persons just out of high school are very careless about their grammar. Perhaps they think no one pays any attention to what they say or how they say it, but the serious comment to judge very quickly passes judgment on them and quite frequently lays the blame on the teacher or the school system.

Ambition.
The scroll of fame has variant attractions for different minds.
"Here lies one whose name was written in water"—the despairing and dying John Keats desired that admission of defeat engraved for his epitaph.
"Write me as one who loved his fellow men," was Leigh Hunt's aspiration.

To be remembered as the author of the Declaration of Independence and of the first statute for religious freedom and as the founder of the University of Virginia, this was Thomas Jefferson's prayer to posterity.
Thus one may go the range. And as the lines recur:
Ambition is our idol, on whose wings great minds are carried only to extreme To be sublimely great or to be nothing.

Paternal Sarcastic.
A father, in the stillness of night, fled downstairs to his daughter solemnly:
"Hannah, what time is it?"
A pause and Hannah answered:
"It's just a quarter after 10, father."
"All right," the father said, "and Hannah, don't forget to start the clock again after the young man goes out to get his breakfast."—Washington Star.

Chess in Ancient Ceylon.
In ancient Ceylon the game of chess was played with local variations peculiar enough to note. The king may not castle, but he is permitted to jump like a knight till checked. The pawns are exchangeable on the last row for the pieces on whose row they stand.

Stole a Useless Thing.
An indignant merchant who had been robbed of a thermometer put this notice in his window:
"The person who took the thermometer from my door had better return it. It will be of no use where he is going, as it registers only 125 degrees."

Falls February Sale

Your February Sale

This great February Sale of Linens, Furniture, Furs, Cottons, Rugs and Carpets, Women's Coats, Silks, Women's Wear, Dress Goods, Bedding, China, White Wear, Men's Clothing, Blankets, Luggage, Boys' Clothing, Yarns, Cut Glass, House Dresses, Aprons, Mattresses, Underwear, Hosiery, Embroideries

Isn't it going on and every body has a right to know about it

It provides opportunity for thousands of people in Norfolk and adjoining Counties to Replenish their homes and Wardrobes and Linen Closets at a great saving, and it would be a pity to leave any one say to us after it is over "I wish I had known about your February Sale and what its great advantages were." We intend to let the people know that our sales at least is big enough and great enough to go on through, the all too short a time, this year 22 days unbroken. The people appreciate this Sale, they have made it their own Sale, and they know why they usually do make their own of anything that serves them well. Having made this the greatest Sale ever held in a place anywhere near the size of Simcoe, they naturally take an interest in it, for now it is their sale as much as ours. They know that we are not so foolish as to pretend never to have made blunders, but they know that the proportion of those must have been small or Falls' sale could never have grown so large. They know also that we are not slow to make right anything that goes wrong. It is because they know the things, it is because they know that our annual February Sale is not only the largest sale within many a mile of Simcoe and that more and more people all the time like to attend it and to have something to show in the way of advantages from it.

Every Day is a Good Day In Falls February Sale

This is something we hope all our Friends will remember, It is a sale of dependable goods at reduced prices with plenty of goods to fill up until Saturday, February 24, when it closes. There is proof, Positive, that Falls February Sale is appreciated because the number who attend it seems to be all the time increasing. Do you think they are in the right?

PROOFS

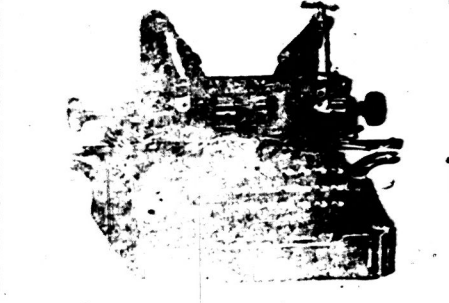

Did it ever occur to you why the Oliver is level?
Did you ever learn the principle at School
That's there's apt to be a wobble on a chair, quadruped,
But never on an old three-legged stool?

Underneath The Oliver carriage
See that principle defined—
Up in front two pendulum-hangers
And the tail brace back behind.

Did it ever occur to you why The Oliver runs smoother?
See the principles that drags the carriage back.
Other mills are sure to wobble--there's corner carriage pull--
While the Oliver has a different carriage track.

See those rods of silvery brightness?
They're the two tracks for the load.
Silken cord's the tongue in wagon,
Pulling squarely down the road.
