THE "HUMAN MIRACLE."

Laughter a Blessing No Bird, Beast, Fish or Reptile Poss

In the London Opinion the sage James Douglas, speculating on that pleasurable emotion which is accompanied by face cracking movements of the muscles of the physiognomy and a brightness of the eyes and is known as laughter, describes the phenomenon as "the human miracle" and says:

"No bird or beast or fish or reptile can laugh. You can teach an ape to do almost anything, but you cannot teach him to laugh. The awful solemnity of animals is the one really intolerable thing on this earth. They are cut off from the abiding miracle of hu-

"A wise man has warned us to interrogate ourselves when we laugh. I totally and entirely repudiate that diabolical doctrine. Never interrogate yourself when you laugh. You should never look a laugh in the mouth.

"There are many kinds of laughter. but they are all good. Interrogate yourself if you like when you weep. But if you value the well being of your soul never interrogate yourself when you laugh. Laughter is a good thing in itself and an end by itself. The quality of laughter, like the quality of mercy, ought never to be strained. Laugh before you look."

OUR PLACE IN THE SUN.

Human Beings, Like Plants, Need Muc of the Outdoor Life.

A home without windows was built for the blind in a certain English community. Scientific heating and ventilation were provided. But architects and trustees reasoned that light not necessary in a house of sighthes

Then they discovered that human beings. like plants, dwindle and die when deprived of the light of the sun. And they had to remodel their building and let in the sun's rays to keep the blind

Since the invention of the electric ight we have all treated sunlight with amazing indifference. In summer especially we spend much time, thought, energy and money protecting ourselves from the sun.

And in so doing we often are acting not much more wisely than the committee that built a house without light for the blind. In summer, for instance, we try to escape the sun when we actually need its services in the cause of good health.

So take your work and play out of doors when possible. Don't fear sunstroke. Don't be afraid of sweat and Grinned Into Matrimony.

That grinning matches were an acepted form of sport in early English days is shown by an advertisement announcing a gold ring to be grinned for by men on Oct. 9 at the Swan, Coleshill heath, Warwickshire, which appeared in the Post Boy of Sept. 17, 1711. Addison gives a detailed account of one of these "controversies of faces," telling us that the audience unanimously bestowed the ring on a cobbler who "produced several new grins of his own invention, having been used to cut faces for many years together over his last"

His performance was something like this: "At the very first grin he cast every human feature out of his countenance, at the second he simulated the face of a spout, at the third that of a baboon, at the fourth the head of a bass viol and at the fifth a pair of nut crackers." Addison adds that a comely wench whom he had wooed in vain for more than five years was so charmed with his grins that she married him the following week.

Bites as Required.

He was trying to sell a dog, a bandy legged brute, with features calculated to stop a motorcar, and the old lady did not seem averse to buying one. Their ideas as to the brute's value scarcely corresponded, however, and there was little prospect of agreement, when suddenly the lady demanded: "Will be bite?"

"Only his meat, mum," responded

"Oh, but I wanted one for tramps." "Tramps is his meat, mum," was the artful reply, and there was a deal, after all.-Exchange.

Disorder.

I distrust both the intellect and morality of people to whom disorder is of no consequence. What surrounds us reflects more or less that which is within us. The mind is like one of those dark lanterns which in spite of everything still throw some light around. If our tastes did not reveal our character they would be no longer tastes, but instincts.-Emile Souvestre.

The Lesser of Two Evils. "I'll be mighty glad when I start to chool," announced Willie one day. "Why will you be glad, dear?" asked his mother in surprise. "Well, then you an' papa will have to cut out this spellin' of words that you don't want me to hear."-Ladies' Home Journal

When a Man Makes His Will. It is a morbid superstition that a man dies when he makes his will. More often he lives happily and long after he has done so. It relieves his anxieties.-London Saturday Review.

Well Known G.T.R. Brake man Killed.

A lamentable accident happened in the G. T. R. yards near Union Street here on Tuesday just before eleven o'clock, which resulted in a very well-known and popular G'T R. employee losing his life. The victim was Mr. II. H. Parker of Port Rowan, who was formerly conductor of the branc's train, but who, since the reduction in service has been breaking. He was standing on the top of a freight car, very close to the opening between it and another car. According to an eyewitness of the accident, the locomotive of the north freight, on one of which Parker was standing from the rear to the front of his train. In coupling to them Parker appeared to be jostle 1 and seemed to make a grab as if to cetch a break wheel Instead he lost his balance and and fell between cars. He struck his head violently against the further car and must have been seriously injured from that impact. His body crashed on to the ground and four wheels passed over it, both legs between the torso and

A nurse and a doctor were summoned and as quick as a locomotive ever made the trip the unfortunate man was rushed to the hospital at Woodstock. He was, however to severely injured and he breathed his last a few minutes after three p.m., just about the time his greef stricken wife was leaving the Simcoe station to go to

Mr. Parker came to the South Norfolk run about fifteen years ago. He was 36 years of age. His widow was, before her marriage, Miss Leota Ellis, daughter of the late Mr. Joseph Ellis, of Port Rowan. There survive him three daughters, girls of varying ages from 10 to 14.

The funeral took place to Bay View Cemetery on Friday at 1.30 p.m. The body was taken to Port Rowan on the noon train Wednesday. The Masonic fraternity was in charge

A coroner's jury was empanelled at Woodstock and viewed the remains. An adjournment was then made until Friday evening when evidence was taken .- Sim.
