Women are Eager to Serve.

Mrs. Frank A. Vanderlip, wife of the President of the National City Bank in New York, has been extremely active in war relief work, both as a worker herself and as a director of the thousand and one new occupations that are open to women at this time.

Writing in the September issue of Harper's Bazar, now ready, Mrs. Vanderlip makes this statement: "Women are eager to serve. They have always served at home. Now our government needs their work outside their homes. They will be ready for every sacrifice. I believe that the idea of democracy with its promise of opportunity for every child, is a clear and definite belief in the minds of women, and that we are ready to give to our utmost to create a world democracy."

Among the great things done by women thus far, Mrs. Vanderlip mentions the development of the Red Cross, the Increase and Conservation of the Food Supply, the taking of the Military Census of Resources, and helping to raise our recent Liberty Loan.

September Rod and Gun is out and shows the usual list of good things for sportsmen and lovers of the out of doors. This issue is a good one to put in the late summer vacationist's nap sack. Such stories as the "Hide Builders," "Bonnycastle Dale," "Two Weeks without a Care," "T. N. Hewitt," "Duck Hunting on the Small Sloughs," "George Nelson," "A Cruise in the Sloop Katharine," "Austen Saunders," "The Time, The Place, The Game," "Archie McKishnie," and "Fishing in Little Steamers," "Seginaki Gourlay," make the vacationist glad he went and the stay-at-home man so very he can't go and maybe determined to get away into the north woods when the hunting season comes. Among the special departments, that devoted to dog men's interests, The Kennel, contains this month a full report of the recent Regina Dog Show. Rod and Gun is published by W. J. Taylor, Ltd., Woodstock, Ont.

Clover Seed—Why not grow your own?

In average seasons red clover, that has not been pastured after the first hay crop has been removed, will produce a crop of well matured seed. Instead of cutting the second crop for hay, pasturing it or, as it frequently happens, ploughing it under, why not allow this crop to mature and save the seed from it?

By raising your own clover seed you are obtaining seed from plants which, by their existence, have demonstrated their adaptation to the conditions prevailing on your farm and in your immediate locality. Such seed, it is quite reasonable to suppose, will produce plants which are equally well adapted to local conditions. For this reason home grown clover seed is really more valuable than most of the seed through the ordinary channels of commerce.

Quite often very poor-looking fields of second growth red clover will produce a profitable crop of seed. In many cases fields where the clover is quite thin and may only eight or ten inches high, will yield over one hundred pounds of clean, well-matured seed per acre. Usually, however, an average second growth will produce anywhere from 150 to 250 pounds of seed per acre.

The red clover seed crop should be cut when the heads are dark brown in colour, and contain hard, well-developed seed. In harvesting all unnecessary handling should be avoided. Rough handling, frequent turning, etc. will thresh or brake off the most mature heads, thus wasting a portion of the most valuable seed.

Where the crop is less than one foot high it may be cut with an ordinary mowing machine. It is usually advisable to have two men follow the machine with hand rakes and move each swath out from the standing crop a few feet so that on the next round the cut clover will be out of the way of the horse and machine. By following this practice with short clover, great deal of seed will be saved that would otherwise be threshed by the horses' feet, and therefore left in the field.

Where clover is one foot in height the most satisfactory implement to use for cutting is the binder. The cord should be removed, and the spring on the knotted slackened so that it will trip conveniently. Usually there are two boards that hold the sheaf; these should be slackened so that the clover will have a free course to the ground. In dropping to the ground the seed will not shell and the crop will be left in loose windrows where it will dry quickly and can be easily gathered with a barley fork.

The length of time that the clover should remain in the field would depend upon the weather. Generally speaking, the crop should be placed in the mow or stack when dry enough to keep well. It can then be threshed when convenient.
