Questions for

Exempted Men

One of the most significant of the many evidences of that comradeship in arms, now existing between the great democracy to the south and our own, is the freedom with which each is borrowing from the soil and of the other. The United States is another entire nation, and as for the invasions of the area in the tumults of the earth, necessarily began as a war in the matter of independence, to the neighbor which had been in the fight from the beginning. But in a certain sense it may be said that the American Republic has already bounded this in indecisiveness. Certainly when the final balance is struck, it will be found that the United States will have paid back with interest, all the military short-sights incurred in the early days of the Allies. One of the many ideas for which we are already indebted to the United States is the questionnaire, designed to meet for a uniform application of the Military Service Act. These questionnaires, following the practice employed in the United States, will be mailed to all exempted men who must return them properly filled without delay, or forfeit their certificates of exemption. Any change in address should be at once communicated to the District Registrar, as failure to receive the questionnaire will be regarded as of the same effect as failure to return it properly filled in. The general public are invited to assist the Government, to the tallest possible extent, in the even administration of the Act.

3. Before laying any mains, pipes or conduits in the Village of Jarvis the Company shall from time to time furnish the said Corporation with a plan showing the streets to be opened and the proposed location of the mains, pipes and conduits (other than service pipes) thereon giving full par-

British Tank Plays Part In Recruiting In U.S.A.

(1) Miss Mary Mack, "champion recruiter," asking for British and Canadian volunteers, from the deck of the tank on which she has traveled to America. (2) Sgt.-Major Bramhall, in charge of recruits of the Canadian Expeditionary Force, in New York, and the steamer Empress of Britain, en route to Canada. (3) Lt. Col. J. D. Dennis, in command of the Canadian contingent, British Canadian Recruiting Mission, in front of the British Embassy in Washington, D. C. (4) The British and Canadian recruiting mission, in New York, headed by Brigadier-General W. A. White, C.M.G., Officer Commanding, and General Sir George White, C.M.G., General Officer Commanding-in-Chief, Canada. (5) Standing on Broadway, Miss Mary Mack, commanding New York Board of the British and Canadian recruiting mission. Seated behind her, Mrs. Gordon Auchincloss, Mrs. James Auchincloss, daughter of Mrs. E. M. Hennies, and Captain Edward Hough of the "Britannia," Capt. P. F. Sibley, in charge of the Canadian Legion.

BRITISH CANADIAN MUSTLE IN U.S.A.

During our recent visit in March the British and Canadian Recruiting Mission dispatched to Canada four volunteers for the British and Canadian Armies during the absence of Brigadier-General W. A. White, C.M.G., Col. J. S. Dennis, of the Canadian Expeditionary Force, is in command of the recruiting programme in the United States. Brigadier-General White is making a tour through the south in an effort to stimulate interest in recruiting.

The pictures accompanying this article illustrate the campaign that is being carried on in New York by the Mission. Brigadier-General White and Colonel Dennis have started a whirlwind campaign for recruiting Britishers and Canadians in the United States covering the next two months.

Their ambition is to secure 200,000 men from the United States. It is possible before the terms of the draft convention between the United States and Great Britain become effective. During the eight months the Mission has been at work in the United States it has secured 22,000 volunteers for the British and Canadian armies, and has examined about 16,000 more.

Brigadier-General White has made the point that if a Britisher or Canadian desires to aid the Allies he can do so by promptly volunteering, because the machinery of the British and Canadian armies for training men has been so well developed by three and a half years of experience that it can train a man and put him in the firing line in five months. This has actually been done in quite a number of cases. On the other hand, the United States Government, starting much later, has had its hands full in training the first contingent of the draft, numbering about 700,000 men, and the second draft will follow close upon the heels of the first.
