GREATEUF OF ALL SUNS.

Giant Canopus, the Blue Beauty of the Southern Hemisphere.

Star gazers of northern lands often overlook the fact that some of the most brilliant and beautiful stars and finest nebulae and star clusters in the heavens belong to the southern hemisphere and are not visible in our lati-

Magnificent blue Canopus, the second brighest star in the heavens, lies just below our southern horizon in the large and important southern constellation Argo Navis, named for the famous ship of the Aronauts. It is usually divided into three constellations—Pupis, Carina and Vela. Canopus was the chief pilot of the Argonauts, but the star was known and worshipped on the banks of the Nile long before it received its name from the Greeks and has been called the Star of Egypt. It has also been a guide to many tribes in Africa. South America and Australia in their journeys through pathless wilds.

Although Sirius appears nearly twice as brilliant as Canopus, this is due only to the fact that Sriius is comparatively near to us, not quite nine light years distant, while Canopus has been estimated to be at a distance of 466 light years. It is, far as we know, the greatest of all the giant suns, equal in light giving power to 55.00 sums such as our own Sirius with a brilliancy estimated at fortyeight times that of the sun, shrinks into a pygmy when contrasted with Canopus.-New York Sun.

STORMY WEATHLR HARD ON BABY

The stormy, blustery weather which we have during February and March is extremely hard on children. Conditions made it necessary for the mother to keep them in the house. They are often confined to overheated, badly ventilated rooms and catch colds which rack their whole system. To guard against this a box of Baby's Own Tablets should be kept in the house and an occasional dose given the baby to keep his stomach and bowels working regularly. This will not fail to break up colds and keep the health of the baby in good condition till the brighter days come along. The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Celebrated Bachelors.

Handel, Reynolds, Turner, Sir Isaac Newton and Cavendish were among the men illustrious in art or science who remained bachelors. Among authors we have Pope, Goldsmith, Lamb and Macaulay. The feeble health of "the wasp of Twickenham" stood no doubt in the way of his marrying. Goldsmith had not the same excuse, but in his case it was quite as well that he passed through life as a bachelor. A single man who habitually spends twice as much as he has is never likely to make a wise and prudent husband.

Lamb, "that frail, good man." Wordsworth calls him, was a bachelor not from choice, but from affection. The singular loyalty with which he devoted himself to his sister in circumstances of melancholy interest prevented his marrying a girl whom, it appears, he truly loved. Lord Macaulay rested content with the loving sympathy of his sister, Hannah, the wife of Sir Charles Trevelyan, whose children were to him as his own.

A Prime Dressing for Wounds-In some factories and workshops carbolic acid is kept for use in cauterizing wounds and cuts sustained by the workmen. Far better to keep on hand a bottle of Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil. It is just as quick in action and does not scar the skin or burn the flesh. There is no other Oil that has its curative qualities.

The "Forth" Bridge.

There is an amusing story going round the British Grand Fleet; just the kind of loke which Jack Tar likes to give and take with his friends. It is quite seriously affirmed that when an American squadron consisting of the U. S. S. Delaware, New York, and Wyoming, with destroyers and other craft, came up the Firth, the British flagship signated to them: "You are to anchor west of the Forth Bridge." But the Americans passed under the bridge and sailed on. Shortly the British admiral made another signal: We signaled just now that you were to anchor west of the Forth Bridge; why don't you stop?" And the American flagship immediately signaled the reply: "Well, I guess we have only passed one bridge as yet!'

BEWARE CLOSED MIND.

Keep Always in Touch With New Ideas and New Methods.

Senator Lodge in an address delivered at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology coined a remarkable phrase in warning the students to "beware of the closed mind," a gentle reproof of the cocksureness of the newly graduated. Senator Lodge said: Beware of the closed mind. This sounds like a paradox when addressed to vonne men, vet it will. I think hear examination. It is a truism to say that

On Hands From Salt Rheum At Very Small Cost for Soap and Ointreent.

"I was a great sufferer from sait rheum on my hands. It came in small blisters between my thumb and finger and it itched terribly and kept spreading. I could not use my hands at ail and the skin would crack and bleed so that I could not bend my fingers. I cannot describe what I have suffered and the sleepless nights I had.

Then I got the Cuticura Soap and Ointment. Fonly used one cake of Cuticura Soap and one box of Ointment when my hands were heated." (Signed) Mrs. M. L. Aiken, Highwater, Que. Keep your skin clear by daily use of Cuticura Soap, with touches of Ointarteries of the mind as they do those of the body. It is a misfortune with which advancing age must struggle, and the effort is severe and too often either neglected or fruitless.

"But the same peril besets youth, although not for the same reason. The great mass of young men go forth from our iniversities, our institutes and schools, prepared to learn and eagen for the knowledge which experience alone can bring. Yet the disease of the closed mind lurks all about them and, curiously enough, is most likely to affect the cleverest the ablest and the most ambitious. This comes from their very talents, from the high confidence which youth ought always to have, and from the somewhat hasty conclusion that because they have thought for themselves nobody else has performed the same feat before.

"It is well to remember that the very greatest men died learning, like Bacon and Pasteur. The greatest benefactions to humanity, the greatest services to human thought, have not all been bestowed or rendered by men under twenty-five or even under forty years of age, a fact sometimes worthy of remembrance. Do not, then, fall victims to overconfidence and close your mind. The injunction is as importtant for youth as for age easy of attainment for the former, difficult for the latter, possible for both. The past and the present, youth and age, new and old, all have their place in the sun; all are needed for the widest learning, for the highest achievement, for the best development of mankind."

The Motion Picture Interpreter The katsuband is a native and unique product of Japanese life and iscalled a nuisance and a necessity. The name is an abridgement of katsudobenshi and means moving-picture speaker. The katsuban follows every action shown in motion picture plays and interprets it to the audience. He must not only have a fluent tongue. but have the ability to imitate professional actors of both old and new schools as well as being able to portray the various characters in the plays . The profession by no means an easy one, and the skilled members are almost as popular as the actors The katsuban cannot be dispensed eign films in Japan. It is necessary to explain the action: otherwise the picture would be unintelligible to most of the audience. Even in the case of native picture; it is said that as yet many of the actors are not sufficiently clever to enable the management to dispense with the services of the katsuban.-Pittsburg Chronicle Telegraph.

FATALISM.

Do You Believe "What is to Be. Will Be?"

Julius Shambers, in the Brooklyn Eagle, says:

The doctrine of fate is defined as the inexorable result of cause and but the genera ing is that fate is something foreor dained and sure to occur.

A friend wrote me regarding a recent fatal aviation accident. He was to have gone up for a flight with an aviator, but at the last moment another ary officer, who never had enjoyed the experience, negged to go instead and he yielded to him. The airman and his passenger were killed. Don't you think it an evidence of fatality in that man's life that he insisted in making an ascent on that occasion? There would save been many other opportunaties. Was it not fate? Hadn't that man's hour to die arrived?

Any reply to this letter I could have made would be only an opinion. I am aware that opinions (beliefs, if preferred) are the bases of most of our religion and our domestic affections. Some of the strongest and weakest of mankind have been "fatalists"-meaning that they believed "what is to be will be." Napoleon thus accounted for his bravery at Lodi. Skobeleff, although a lieutenant-general, led the charge of a brigade at Plevna's Gravitza redoubt on food with the words: "Come on, men; do you want to live forever?"

That was an appeal to fatalism. How much better had that Russian general died there instead of ending
