Grand Lodge of the Anti-Cigarette Fraternity

In September, 1913, there was organized among the boys of Havelock a fraternal society, known as the Anti-Cigarette Fraternity, to combat the excessive use of tobacco which was retarding the intellectual development of many of the school boys. From the first, the fraternity with its mysteries, initiatory ceremony, pass-words, signs and grips, caught the imagination of the boys. They realized too the great value of the opportunity offered for the acquiring of the ability to speak in public and transact business according to definite rules, framed in conformity with parliamentary procedure.

The members became enthusiastic missionaries and told of their fraternity wherever they went. Now, after four years of slow but steady growth, there are six lodges—Purity, No. 1, Havelock; Reward, No. 2, Wellington; Patricia, No. 3, Trenton; Victoria, No. 4, Lindsay; Beaver, No. 5, Nanticoke and Quinte, No. 6, Picton.

It seems opportune to complete the organization of the Fraternity by instituting Grand Lodge. As the society had its origin in Havelock, it was arranged that Grand Lodge should be organized there. Accordingly, on Dec. 31, representatives from five of the lodges met in the beautifully furnished Odd Fellows' hall for the purpose of consulting together and make necessary changes which could be made only by such a governing body as provided by the constitution. As evidence of the zeal of the membership, it may be mentioned that two representatives, Kenneth Saunders and Lorne McKenzie of Nanticoke, came 175 miles at their own expense.

The Grand Lodge meeting was far more successful than was expected, the representatives manifesting great executive ability.

It would not be expedient to mention all the business transacted in the five formal sessions, yet a few facts may be enumerated.

1. The most difficult single act of the sessions was the drafting of the Grand Lodge constitution. This has one unusual feature, the executive consists of the Grand Lodge officers and one Past Grand Master from each lodge to be elected by such lodge.

2. A committee was appointed to compose a new degree and arrange for its presentation at next Grand Lodge meeting. This meeting consists of—A. C. Denike-Havelock; Bruce Elmhirst (wounded at Vimy Ridge and convalescent in Canada); D. L. Soumerville, Port Hope; Arthur Saunders, Wellington; Harvey McKenzie, Nanticoke; Bert McWatters, Lindsay; Milton Browne, Trenton and H. S. Croft, Picton.

3. A committee was appointed to select a design and arrange for the making of a pin or jewel for five years membership.

4. Forms of transfer and withdrawal certificates were composed and certain changes were made in the initiatory ceremony and constitution of subordinate lodges.

On the afternoon of Jan. 1, Purity Lodge, No. 1, in special meeting, exemplified the initiatory ceremony in a most creditable and impressive manner. In the evening, the brothers of Havelock gave an informal banquet to the visiting brothers to which the ladies were invited. A most pleasant social evening was spent afterwards.

At the final session on Jan. 2, Grand Lodge formally expressed its appreciation of the kindness of Royal Lodge, No. 256, I. O. O. F. for granting them the free use of their fine suite of rooms for the three days.

From Remarkable Map

Perhaps not the most romantic and fascinating, yet still the most important part of the flying man's duties at the front is the control of gunfire from above the lines of the enemy. Anyone visiting the School of Military Aeronautics at the Toronto University can measure the importance attaching to this branch of the flying corps work by the elaborate and interesting course laid out for training cadets in aerial observation. Since it is impossible to take a whole class of cadets four or more thousand feet in the air, the instruction has to be given in specially arranged class rooms. In one of these class rooms a ground map covers the floor, the most remarkable map of its kind in the world. It is made of sand colored to correspond with the actual colors of the ground from an altitude of 4000 feet.

The aviators-in-training look down on this map from a gallery. The instructor flashes tiny electric lights which are embedded in the sand to indicate burning shells. Cadets, watching these bursts, and the small maps, with which they are supplied, send down to the instructor wireless codes advising him how to correct his fire. It can be seen that this necessarily calls for a quick and alert brain, an eagle eye and a thorough grounding in wireless telegraphy. Yet this splendid training is but one of the many phases of the aviator's preparation. Apart from actual flying he must also learn something of fighting tactics, bombing, engine and aeroplane construction, machine guns, aerial photography, map-reading, meteorology. It can be safely said that the courses followed by Cadets at the School of Military Aeronautics ensure that no aviator is given his wings at front without having as his best equipment a thorough practical training in all these branches of the flying-man's craft.

Trousers for Women

Will women wear trousers? That grim question has long been hotly debated. Since the war trousers have become realities to those women who are doing men's work in order that they may be released for fighting. In Paris, however, trousers for women have more than a strictly utilitarian use.

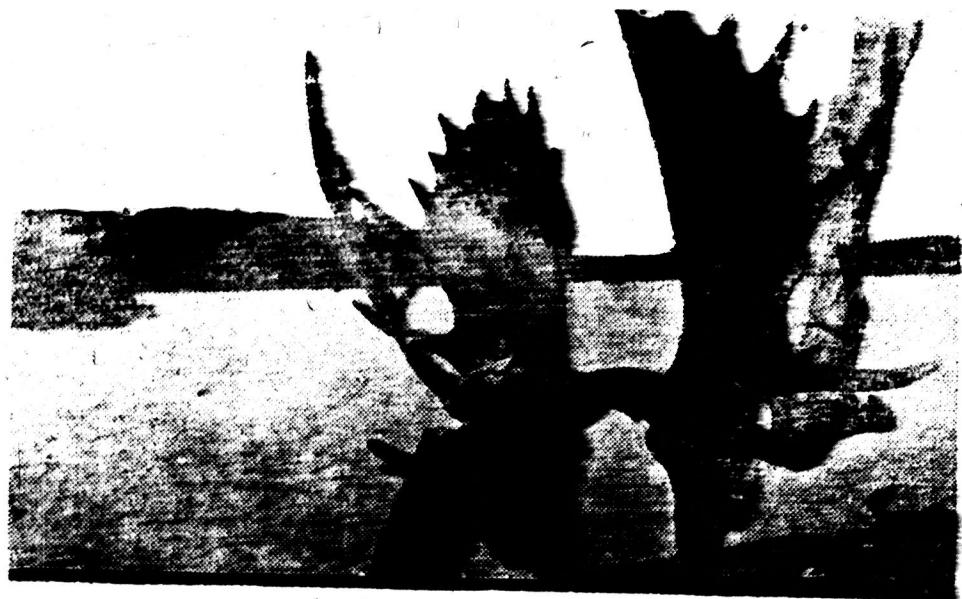

The Paris correspondent of Harper's Bazaar writes, in the January issue: "More and more trousers are being worn indoors instead of robes that cling and cling. Fashioned of the richest of tissues are these trouser-frocks—trousers of gorgeous metallic stuffs below jackets of soft velvets, trousers of velvet below coats rich with embroideries, and exquisitely finely mousselines. In the salons of the Gaiety in the Faubourg Capucines, there is a creation of party colored velvet, and a most decorative, with rust and blue thread—the square Chinese coat falling over embroidered velvet trousers of the richest variety."

A Tribute to France

The Duchess of Uzès has written for the January issue of Harper's Bazaar a most inspiring tribute to France. Her article reveals that true and staunch patriotism which the French people as a whole have for their beloved France and which is the real reason why they have been able to withstand the great German onslaught.

This article is illustrated with a significant photograph of the statue of Jeanne d'Arc before the Cathedral of Rheims. Despite the storms of German shell which have battered the famous old cathedral into ruins, this statue still stands unscathed, a monument to the undying spirit of France.

Unique Find in Ontario

The locked antlers.

IN September and October during the rutting season, the hunter occasionally hears the sounds of a terrific combat between those giants of the forest, the bull moose. With their formidable antlers these huge creatures can snap a young birch tree like a piece of matchwood, and although it is only rarely that the bull moose will attack a man, if he does so the man has little chance unless he is quick with his high powered rifle. The other day on St. Ignace Island, twenty-one miles south of Kingston, on the C. P. R., a pair of locked moose horns was found as the result of a search made by the local hunters. The horns were found in a place where the moose had been fighting, and the hunters estimated that the two animals died there of starvation, their
