Bee Diseases

(Experimental Farm Notes.)

The widespread demand for bees this year has increased the risk of the spread of bee diseases. Two of these, American Foul Brood and European Foul Brood, cause a heavy loss to the beekeeping industry every year, and wherever they are found they should be treated promptly and reported to the provincial apiarist or bee inspector.

Every beekeeper should know how to recognize these, and how to distinguish them from the less serious Sackbrood.

In American Foul Brood, the bee larva or maggot, in the stage just after it is capped over with wax, becomes a viscid coffee colored mass which can be made to rope out an inch or more and has an unpleasant glue-pot odour. Cells containing the rotten larvae have their cappings discoloured, sunken, irregularly perforated or removed altogether. The remains dry to a scale which adheres tightly to the wall of the cell. This disease must be treated by shaking the bees into a clean hive containing frames fitted with narrow strips of foundation, and burning or boiling the combs, as explained in the Experimental Farm Bulletin No. 26, (Second Series, "Bees and How to Keep Them.")

European Foul Brood attacks most of the larvae before they are capped over while they lie curled up in the bottom of the cell. The larvae turns yellowish or greyish and melts into a pulp which will not rope out or will rope but little, and has a slightly sour odour. A few capped larvae are often affected. Sometimes a fetid odour is present. The dried scale is easily removed. Italian bees will resist this disease, and therefore the best treatment is to introduce Italian queens of a good strain. The shaking treatment should also be carried out in many cases.

In Sackbrood the dead larva with darkened skin lies extended in the cell. Usually the entire larva can be removed from the cell without breaking the skin. On puncturing the skin, the contents are found to be more or less watery. Colonies affected by this disease usually recover and no treatment is necessary.

To guard against foul brood, do not bees on combs or used bee supplies, unless you are sure they are clean. Do not feed your bees with honey for another apiary. Keep the colonies strong and avoid robbing. If European Foul Brood is in the district, Italianize without delay.

How Persian Lamb, Broadtail and Astrakhan Furs are obtained

Persian lamb fur, states a pamphlet issued by the Live Stock Branch, Ottawa, that can be had free from the Publications Branch, Department of Agriculture, is the primary marketable product from Karakul sheep. Both in Canada and the United States there is a keen demand for this fur, which is being filled mostly from Asiatic countries, through the production of these same Karakul sheep. This Persian Lamb is obtained from killing the young Karakul lamb when only a few days old; at this age the skin is very black and tightly curled, while as the lamb becomes older the curl rapidly loosens. The qualities determining the value of the skin are lightness and size of curl, the lustre and the size of the skin. Another grade of fur, the product of the Karakul, is Broadtail or Baby lamb, the skin of premature born lambs, when these skins are strong and of good size they usually possess more lustre and a longer, closer curl than do the other grades. Astrakhan fur is the dressed and dyed skins of young Karakul lambs which do not possess the regular tight curl, but rather loose and open. Astrakhan is also frequently the result of late killing. These three classes of fur, Persian Lamb, Broadtail and Astrakhan, are invariably black when taken from the young Karakul; there is, however, a fourth grade which is usually included in the above by the fur trade, namely, Krimmer fur. This class is very similar to the Astrakhan, except that it is grey and is dressed in its natural state. It is said to be the product of the Karakul mainly produced in the Crimean peninsula. The Karakul has now been introduced into Canada especially in Nova Scotia, where it is crossed with commercial crosses on Lincoln, Cotswolds, and Leicesters. The skins so produced are worth from $5 to $7. The wool of the Karakul and its crosses varies in color from light gray to black. So far the Karakul industry in Canada is only in the experimental stage, but there seems to be no good reason why Persian lamb, Astrakhan and other similar classes of fur cannot be produced in this country.

Industries to be Restricted

Toronto, June 26.—Hamilton's users of natural gas from the Haldimand district need not feel concerned about the possibility of their supply being restricted when the Ontario railroad and municipal board issues its expected order governing the use of natural gas. Yesterday P. V. Byrnes, general manager of the United Gas and Fuel company, of Hamilton, received an assurance from Chairman McIntyre, of the Ontario railway and municipal board that the board does not intend to deal with the Haldimand gas fields in its order. Mr. McIntyre pointed out the report of the government expert appointed to investigate the natural gas situation, will cover only the Kent gas fields, and that for the present, at least, the board will have to confine its action to that district.

It is understood that within the next few days an interim order will be issued by the board, materially restricting the use of natural gas by manufacturing industries. Some months ago when the Ontario railway and municipal board issued a warning to manufacturers to arrange for other supplies it was plainly intimated to them that after July 1 natural gas would be conserved for domestic consumers. It is not expected however that the interim order will absolutely shut off manufacturers. It will, however, cut out some industries that the board knows can get other fuel and cut down the supply to others. Whether there will be further restriction—and it is generally expected—will depend to some extent upon the results secured by the restrictions, and upon the decision reached by the board, after giving more exhaustive consideration to the experts' report.

Barns Burned

The barns belonging to Mr. John J. Moore, Villa Nova, were burned early Wednesday morning of last week and there is every indication that they were set on fire. Tracks to and from the barn were found in a plowed field and the telephone line was also cut. A report has been going the rounds that the owner was a supporter of the Union Government and that he refused to sign a petition requesting the member for Norfolk to resign. Union Government farmers take a perfect right to their opinion and it is hard to conceive that any man would use this as an excuse for burning a neighbor's barn. Any depredation committed in these parts now is attributed by some of the above causes. No true Canadian, much less those who are opposed to what they consider an autocratic Government, should stoop so low as to commit arson. We are informed that a farmer in the North of Townsend has received a letter threatening that his barns will be burned and he has employed a watchman. A provincial detective should be located here to round up the guilty ones and hand to them the full penalty of the law.—Waterford Star.
