Grow Alfalfa

The pressing need for increased farm production, on the one side, and the scarcity of farm labour on the other, have created a situation in Canadian agriculture that is somewhat embarrassing to the two chief parties concerned, viz: the farmer and the consuming public.

With a serious shortage in farm labor confronting the producer, it will be difficult to increase farm production by expanding the acreage under crop. However, the need for increased production remains and, under the circumstances, there seems to be only one way to make the best of the situation, and that is to make every acre produce more, in quantity as well as in quality, than it has produced in the past.

With special reference to increased production in the forage crop line, the question is: "What forage crop is, under present conditions likely to produce the heaviest returns and, at the same time, the highest quality of feed for all-round purposes?"

In our opinion there is no forage crop that better answers this purpose than alfalfa. It can be grown to advantage under a diversity of soil and climatic conditions and has, generally speaking, a wider geographical range of usefulness in Canada than any other forage crop. Alfalfa is a choice food for all kinds of farm animals and produces more economical feed per acre than does any other forage crop. Alfalfa is a choice food for all kinds of farm animals and prodeces more ecomomical feed per acre than does any other hay or pasture crop. It, furthermore, requires comparatively little labour. Once well established, it continues to yield heavy returns. On account of its lasting character a good deal of money and labour is saved annually, as no re-seeding is necessary for years, and for his reason, if for no other, alfalfa should command special attention just now from any farmer handicapped by scarcity of labour.

It may be objected, though, that just now, when an immediate increase in farm production is so urgently needed, alfalfa may not be the most commendable forage crop, in spite of all its merits, because it taxes a year to get it established as a paying crop.

It is true that there is an urgent need for the greatest possible production to meet the immediate demands of Canada and the Allies and that therefore every ounce of energy should be mobilized to relieve the situation as quickly as possible. But Canada will be called upon to produce record crops not only this year, but for many years to come, peace or no peace. The mere ending of the war will not bring about a relaxation of the efforts in farm produotion. On the contrary, with the return of peace, the necessity of making the utmost out of the soil will likely be felt more than ever before. In view of this it would seem to be a good policy to prepare for the future now and, as far as forage crops are concerned, special attention should be paid to alfalfa as a crop that, better than any other, is likely to fill the bill as the crop of the future.

Unnecessary Work

Is always Unfair work

On Wash-day, save yourself from unfair work. Let Fels-Naptha s whitest of suds search out the dirt and the grime that otherwise you yourself, would have to scrub out.

Boiling water is not at all necessary for Fels-Naptha. You get its remarkable results without boiling water, but that doesn't mean you must use cold water in winter weather. Use water at any temperature that is comfortable to your hands and Fels-Naptha will work splendidly.

Fels-Naptha washing always means a comfortable washday.

Parcels to Prisoners of War.

The German authorities have issued a memorandum to the effect that parcels for Prisoners of War interned in Germany must be addressed to the "parent" (or main) camp to which the Prisoners belong and must not bear the names of any branch camps or of any other place to which the prisoner might be detailed for special services.

The memorandum states that Prisoners who have been detailed for services outside the "parent" camps have been enjoined by the German Authorities from the first, to inform in this sense any relations or other persons from whom they expect to receive postal parcels. Parcels for Prisoners of War in hospitals also come within the meaning of these regulations.

In the interests of the Prisoners it is therefore essential that these regulations should be strictly adhered to as otherwise the German Authorities will not deliver the parcels to the Prisoners of War for which they are intended. It is suggested that persons in Canada writing to Prisoners in Germany should certainly definitely the "parent" (or main) camp to which they can control with the Regulations of the German Authorities in addressing parcels to Prisoners.
