In the report of the Peace celebration at Simcoe the Reformer in part said, "Among the many beautifully adorned cars was one that was especially appropriate. A huge Union Jack was supported above the car driven by Miss Vina Lea, and upon it stood her bull-dog, King, a representation of the well-known picture, 'What We Have, We'll Hold.' Again, 'As the Kaiser was licked by the fire, someone uttered that pertinent remark, 'Where do you go from here?'"

The next two or three years are bound to be the most important to every Canadian industry, and to none does this apply to a greater extent than to the farming industry. To make the best of your opportunity, read each week the Weekly Sun, the most helpful farm paper in Ontario. No increase in price, One Dollar sent direct to the Weekly Sun, Toronto, will pay your subscription for the full year of 1919 with the balance of 1918 Free. There is no other paper just like the Sun.

The November issue of Rod and Gun published by W. J. Sturtzel, and "Humors of the Hunt" by George R. Belton, are some of the contributions to the story section of the magazine. Other articles follow and the usual departments are well maintained. An article on the making of moccasins is illustrated by E. V. Williams who is also the cover design artist. Rod and Gun Mechanics for Trappers is a page of illustrations and supplements the department Along the Trap Line which is continued in this issue.

Sandusk Institute Report

The November meeting of Sandusk Institute met at the home of Mrs. Charles Brown on Thursday afternoon last. President presided and the meeting opened in the usual manner. After some discussion it was decided to draw the ticket which would give an owner to the quilt which was made some time ago and tickets sold for it. Miss Clara Buckley of Dundas, a disinterested person who happened to be present at this meeting, drew the ticket which was 172, making Miss Eva Doughty owner of the quilt. The business consisted of some Red Cross Work and arranging to send seven overseas boxes to the boys. A splendid paper was given by Mrs. John Walker on "Our Returned Boys," giving several good and interesting ideas, one of them being, not to forget to welcome our Boys when they return to their homeland and not have them feel that they are strangers and intruders and intruders when in their native land. The meeting closed with singing the National Anthem and God Save Our Splendid Men, after which all partook of the dainty lunch served by the hostess. There were present eleven and $1.10 lunch collection.

Mrs. J. C. BUSH, Sec. Treas.

Well Known Here

Winnipeg, Nov. 14.—James Leander Henning, aged 40, Manager of the Massey-Harris company, Saskatoon, who died here, was well known in Hamilton. He had been connected with the company practically all his life. He had been local manager of the company since 1915. From 1908 until 1912 he was office manager in Saskatoon.

Mr. Henning was married in June, 1906, to Miss Mabel Ena Bartindale, of Hamilton Ont.

Besides the widow, three children, Gordon, William, and Madeline survive; also the deceased's father, who lives at in Jarvis, and two brothers, S. Henning, of Kerrobert, Sask., and Capt. Roy M. Henning, with the Canadian Engineers, in France.

Mr. Henning was most active in patriotic work, taking a special part in the opening of the Victory loan campaign. He was a member of the board of Knox church.

The farmer who fails to take a weekly paper that is devoted to his interests, surely is not farming with a view to profit. You cannot make the farm pay all it can pay without a paper that takes a lively interest in your welfare. One reason why other branches of industry are united more closely than the farmer, is because they support their respective businesses. So should you. One Dollar sent direct to the Weekly Sun, Toronto, will pay your subscription for that paper for the full year of 1919 with the balance of 1918 Free. You will find the Sun a very great help to you and well worth the price. Every reader of The Sun is a Sun booster.

Farwell Dear Canada

Land of the blast: as fast receding from my sight
So dimly outlined in the falling night
With tear-dimmed eyes I strain to see thy shore
And wonder will I see thee evermore.
Tumultuous feeling tear my aching heart
As from my boyhood's home I now depart,
And through the mist of tears ere come to mind
The faces of dear friends now left behind.
God speed the happy day when war is o'er
And once again my eyes shall see thy shore,
With victory attained, where'er the cost
Undying memory for our soldiers lost.
Dear ones at home, we know thy prayers shall be
For my defenders gone across the sea.
For better far a soldier's death my lot
Than that a stain our country's flag should blot.
Farwell, Farwell, to all I hold most dear
I kiss my hand to thee while thou'rt still near.
And turn away: no longer can I see,
For scalding, bitter tears have blinded me.
