AN OPEN MIND AT KRUPP'S (Philadelphia Record)

Among the thousands who listened to the Kaiser's speech to his "dear friends at the Krupp works" there must have been at least one with a mind of his own. To such a man the Imperial Exhorter offered many opportunities for parenthetical comment (sotto voce, of course) as the speech was unfolded. ### Cultivate Your Aspirations.

-Canadian Countryman.

Very few people are satisfied with the work they are doing. Many of them have aspirations for something better, more congenial. If "you have any natural leaning toward a higher grade of work, says Physical Culture Magazine, don't strive to put it out of your mind, but try to keep it very much in your mind. It may indicate a field for which you are especially gifted. If you have any ambitions, cultivate them. It is only those who dare to follow the guiding star of destiny by encouraging and cultivating these aspirations who ultimately move forward to their realization.

To Remove Grease Spots.

The removal of grease spots from a carpet or rug is not an easy matter. One of the most practical plans is to prinkle hot cornmeal and whiting over the spots and leave for two or three days, brush off with a stiff brush and repeat till the spots are gone. Or, if there is not the least danger of fire, the powder may be covered with gasoline and rubbed hard till the gasoline evaporates. They

Phosphorescence On Moon?

Several European observers of the total lunar eclipse of July 4-5, 1917, have reported that the brightness of the lunar disk appeared much greater around the limb than near the centre. These observations led N. A. Nodon, of Bordeaux, to revive a suggestion that has sometimes been made to account for the brilliancy of certain lunar craters; viz., that the surface of the moon may possess a luminosity of its own in the nature of phosphorescence. In that case, perspective would increase the apparent luminosity toward the limb.—Scientific Ameri-

GERMANY WANTS BACK HER COLONIES

(New York Sun) The German Colonial Secretary Dr. Wilhelm Soif, declared that "a lively consciousness now extends far into the workers' circles" that the retention of German colonies is a vital question for the honor of Carmon colonies. the honor of Germany as a great Power. In his statement of Germany's position on the return of her coionies Dr. Solf differs from preceeding spokesmen on the subject in giving no indication that Germany is holding Belgium or other of her conquests as pawns, and in basing his plea upon the grounds of Germany's moral conquests in her dependencies. moral conquests in her dependencies. His suggestion is that a compromise perefected on the colonial question by which possession shall correspond to the economic strength of the nations con-

Germany before the war had four col-onies in Africa, one in Asia and nine islands or groups of islands in the Paconies in Africa, one in Asia and nine islands or groups of islands in the Pacisinads or groups of islands in the Pacisic Ocean. Their estimated area was 1,027,320 square miles. The last of these colonies was lost several months ago when General Smuts with his South Africans and Belgian, French and Portusuese colonial troops drove the Germans from German East Africa and forced their surrender in the swamp lands of the Lake Nyassa region.

More than a year previously to this conquest General Botha had occupied German Southwest Africa, and French and British troops Togo and Kamerun. Early in the war Japan had captured Klao-chow, China, the Caroline, Marshall and Ladrone islands in the Pacific; Australia had taken German New Guinea and adjacent islands, and New Zealand the Samoan group.

Dr. Solf speaks of the benefits accruing Dr. Soir speaks of the benefits accruing to the native population under the German rule and "the decimation of the colored population of the various African colories by the Entente's action." Germany's colonial policy differed from that many's colonial policy differed from that of any other civilized nation. She did not attempt to form homes for German settlers; she sent retired Prussian soldlers to German Southwest Africa whose principal duty was to form defence against British South Africa; in East Africa she granted the lands to Berlin stock companies which would furnish tropical products to German manufactories. She pursued similar policies in her Pacific possessions, and in all of her dependencies she forced native labor for stated periods of the year to do the

As the result of the German punitive empedition in Central Africa it is reported that of the Herero nation, estimated at 100,000 before the war, only 11,000 survived. apart from disease and military engagements, the death of 75,000 natives from starvation. The German method of spreading the blessings of Kultur is best set forth by the Kaiser in his address to his empeditionary force to China: "Use your weapons in such a way that for a thousand years no Chinese shall dare to look upon a German askance." The terror of the natives for German method is so intense that not a captured colorse desires the restoration of the German rule.

But apart from this is the fact that not a amotion wants a German colony for a neighbor. China entered the war that she might be spared from the return of the overbearing German. Japan objects to the hold of Germany upon islands near her sheres. The Union of South Africa demands as a reward for the civilized cause that Africa from the Cape to the Mediterranean be freed from German domination. The basis of the appeal of Australia and New Zealand for a Monroe Doctrine in the East is the peril to their nationalism in the Pacific. The voice of these people, who know Prussian arrogance and greed for territory must be heard really is, who know Prussian arrogance and greed for territory, must be heard at the final settlement. Dr. Solf says "Germany will not misuse her power in the East." The world knows the value of a German promise. It has had too many experiences with treaties and international agreements torn up as "scraps of paper" to accept upon Germany's word and assurance the compromise settlement which Dr. Solf so willingly offers.
