Precent WARNING TO HEALTH AUTHORITIES

· Health atthorities have the power un der Section 56, es. 2, of the Public Health Act to close schools, churches, theatres, and other places of assemblage if it is deemed advisable to do so. Asked what the Board advises regarding this measure, we have said: "The weight of public health authority is against closing such places, except perhaps in country districts. for the following reasons, viz. : In cities and towns it is impossible to prevent commingling in the streets and playgrounds where they are without the supervision found in the schools. Hence closing schools is more effective in country districts. Closing schools is economically wasteful, and usually has no influence on the course of an outbreak of disease like influenza. Children are less likely to in Banks. feet one another in the class-room than in the home or on the playground.'

Chaypy said he couldn't other assemblages, if these places are afford to buy a turkey for the threshers well vegtilated. In any case, the good derived from closing places of assemblage is more than counterbalanced by the conditions in crowded street cars, railway cars, in large shops and in restaurants where food and dishes may be handled by persons having the disease It would be iust as rational and much more affective to stop all trael on street cars and trains and to stop people from entering shops, eating places, etc., as to close schools and Mr. C. D. Teeple spent Sunday with churches, theatres, etc.

"Health officers should do nothing con sistent with the welfare of the public likely to dislocate business or the ordinary affairs of life. They should not be moved from their daty by public clamor, to adopt fussy and ill advised measures, which only serve to irritate the public A pretty fall wedding took place on and accomplish no useful purpose.
