AMOS-GLANFIELD

At high noon, Sept. 11th, the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Glanfield, Jarvis, was the scene of a very interesting wedding, when their eldest daughter, Almeda, became the wife of Mr. George William Amos of Park Hill, Ont. The officiating minister was Rev. H. L. Smith of Jarvis and Miss Ruth Amos played the Mendelssohn's wedding march.

The bride, who was given away by her father, made a charming picture in her wedding gown of flesh colored georgette crepe with touches of silver and wearing a Juliet veil caught with orange blossoms and carrying a bouquet of cream roses and fern.

The home was beautifully decorated for the occasion being simply a bower of evergreens and asters completed by an arch of the same under which the marriage took place. During the signing of the register, H. J. Meill sang the Melody of Love. The groom's gift to the bride was a piece of priced silver and to the pianist a cameo ring.

After the wedding dinner, which was most gracefully served by Misses Muriel Elcott of Brucefield, Mary Galbraith of Appin, Pearl Duxbury and Mary Trousdale of Jarvis, friends of the bride, Mr. and Mrs. Amos left for points east, the bride travelling in a suite of brown with hat to match.

Handling Goldfish.

Taking goldfish from a large pool is not an easy problem, particularly if it is to be accomplished without frightening the fish literally to death. Mr. Dwight Warren, one of the residents of Aitambra, who has a Japanese garden, in which is a large pool full of gold fish, has devised a plan by which the fish may be caught so that they may be moved from pool to pool or from pool to globe without the slightest chance of injury.

Mr. Warren handles his fish at night. He uses a small hand net and a pocket flashlight. The fish are attracted to the surface by the light held against the surface of the pool. The instant the light is cast in the water, the fish swim up and nose around the light. The net is then placed under them, and they are lifted out of the water without the slightest trouble, fuss, splutter splash and transferred to another pool or put into a globe. The fact that fish are attracted by a light at night is too well known to require reiteration. In any case, the experiment is worthy of a trial.

Genius Got Cramps.

Shakespeare gave up authorship in the prime of life and retired to Stratford because he was suffering from writers' cramp, declared Dr. Ralph Leftwich in an address at the Shakespeare festival given by the Urban Club, of London, Eng. To prove it, Dr. Leftwich presented fac-similes of the writings and signatures of Shakespeare. He said there were eighteen evidences that the great poet developed writers' cramp about 1613, when the last play, "The Tempest" was produced.

If there hadn't been an apple on the tree, what difference would there be? Would certain parties have chosen certain given roads if there hadn't been an apple on the tree.

A large number attended the Memorial Service at Christ Church last Sunday afternoon, in honor of Pte. Ralph Townsend, who recently died of wounds in France. The Rector, Rev. Mr. Brand, conducted the services, rendering a very impressive sermon, also full of sympathy for the bereaved. The church was decorated with flags and draped in black for the occasion.
