

FACTS ABOUT RUSSIA

(Saturday Evening Post).

While the rest of the world complained that trustworthy information about Russia was not obtainable, because everything coming out of that country was distorted one way or the other, Socialists collected a great deal of authentic Russian information for the guidance of their recent international convention at Bern. They went to the Bolsheviks themselves for the information, and having digested it they denounced the Bolshevik rule. Though suppressing every Russian publication not friendly to them the Bolsheviks are great publicity artists on their own side. They have their official and semi-official newspapers and various government organs covering particular fields. It was from the files of these publications that the Socialists compiled their report, taking nothing from non-Bolshevik sources, and giving the authority for their statements in each case.

The Socialists were not interested in what the Bolsheviks did to the bourgeoisie and they paid no attention to that, their general idea being the more anybody does to the bourgeoisie, or property owning class, the better. They were not interested in reports of Bolshevik terrorism, massacres, and so on, for they allow that much disorder of that sort will usually accompany a revolution. They confined their attention solely to the result of Bolshevism upon the very class in whose exclusive interests it professes to rule—namely, upon the proletariat, or urban wage earners. Socialists condemned Bolshevism because they found, out of its own mouth, that it was destroying the very class it is supposed to benefit.

at the expense of all the rest of society.

The Bolsheviks' own reports showed that the population of Petrograd had declined about two-thirds, only about 30,000 inhabitants being left out of about 2,400,000. Population of Moscow had declined about 60 per cent. In one group of Petrograd factories the number of workmen had fallen from 277,000 to 120,000. Moscow metal workers' unions had lost 123,000 members out of 133,000. Chemical workers' unions had lost three-fourths of their members. Other such instances are cited from Bolshevik reports.

City wage earners have been disappearing into the highly paid army, drifting out to the villages, turning peddler and petty speculator. Output of a large group of textile factories had declined three-quarters. Not only has the number of workers greatly decreased, but output per man has fallen. The Petrograd Soviet reported that the state had advanced 95,000,000 rubles to the famous Putiloff works—of which 66,000,000 rubles had been expended in wages, while total output of the works in the same period was valued at only 15,000,000 rubles. From various reports it seemed that the total factory output equalled only about half the sum drawn from the state treasury, hence an official complaint that the Government has been obliged to print paper money at the rate of 200,000,000 rubles a day, and that the value of its rubles in the interior of the country has fallen 95 per cent.

Last November the central executive committee declared that the food shortage in Moscow was largely due to looting and plundering. In December a Government organ complained that the mass of new industrial officials appeared only twice a month—to draw their salaries. As to an enormous increase in the number of unemployed, five districts in "Red" Petrograd now show 455 officials where formerly in twelve districts there were only 275.

No wonder Kautsky declared: "The great argument for Socialism is that it is more efficient than the capitalist system, but the Bolsheviks are undermining this argument." Of course they still say that though it worked most disastrously in Russia it would work beautifully some other place—any place where it has never been tried. But there is its own report of itself in the only place where it ever has been tried. For Bolshevism, aside from its red terror—that is, on the economic side—is nothing else than orthodox Marxian Socialism put into literal practice.

BABY'S HEALTH IN THE SPRING

The Spring is a time of anxiety to mothers who have little ones in the home. Conditions make it necessary to keep the baby indoors. He is often confined to overheated badly ventilated rooms and catches colds which rack his whole system. To guard against this a box of Baby's Own Tablets should be kept in the house and an occasional dose given the baby to keep his stomach and bowels working regularly. This will prevent colds, constipation or colic and keep baby well. The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Movie Operator Got "Close-Up" Views of Former Ruler.

In "Donald Thompson in Russian," the movie photographer tells how he succeeded in getting a picture of the czar after the revolution had begun. He went out to Tsarskoye Selo, the palace near Petrograd where the royal family were confined, and from a distance saw the czar and his son walking in the yard. "The servants must have told him," writes Mr. Thompson, "for the czar sent word to me to come saying that he would allow me to make a picture as close as I wished. I told him that I had met him before in 1915, and had made pictures of him then at the front and at Lemberg. He remembered and immediately spoke of Meuse, the English photographer. While I was making pictures and the camera was being re-loaded so that I could put in some new film, several of the soldiers came up close, while the czar was watching how the camera was loaded. They were smoking. One of them elbowed the czar away and at the same time blew smoke directly in his face. But the czar did not show that he was annoyed by this. After I had made some motion picture films of him and his son, and also some still photographs, I saluted and said 'good-by.' He answered 'good-by.' While walking away I glanced around. He was still looking after me and talking to his son."

Concerning Eggs.

The word egg occurs six times in the Old and once in the New Testament. Deuteronomy, 22, 6; Job, 6, 6, and 39, 14; Isaiah, 16, 15, and 59, 5; Jeremiah, 17, 11, and Luke 11, 12. Job 6, 6, asks: "Can that which is unsavoury be eaten without salt? or is there any taste in the white of an egg?"

GOOD SOUPS.

Here Are Some Excellent Recipes for Housewives.

A vegetable puree is very good. To make it take the required quantity of stock and cook in it turnip or rutabaga, leeks or carrots, or celery or tomato, or a mixture of all, until soft enough to work through a fine sieve.

Replace stock and pulp in the pan, stir and flavor and thicken with flour and butter (or substitute). Mix it smooth with milk stock or water, then by slow degrees stir in half a pint of hot soup, and now stir the thickening into the remainder of the hot soup. Taste and season, and if you have it add a little cream or one ounce of butter (or substitute). You must judge of the thickening according to the consistency of the soup, but roughly allow the tablespoonful of cornflour to one quart of soup, and be sure that it is thoroughly simmered or it will taste raw.

SOUP SUGGESTIONS. When you require celery soup, leek soup, cauliflower soup (using the white part of the cauliflower only), make as for white soup, not browning the flour and butter, while for lettuce, spinach, green peas, a little green coloring may be needed to improve the color, and milk may or may not be used as you please.

In salted water until tender with half a sliced onion. Drain, and rub through a sieve. Add to the pulp three-quarters of a pint of the water in which the sprouts were cooked. Add salt and pepper, a pinch of sugar and if liked a little thickening. Bring nearly to the boil, and if possible add a little cream. Leeks or cauliflower could be used in the same way.

CABBAGE PUREE. Wash and drain and chop two cabbages, and fry slightly in dripping with half an onion sliced. Place in a pan with two quarts of stock, pepper, salt a pinch of sugar. Bring to the boil, and then simmer for 1½ hours. Sieve, thicken with cornflower, and serve very hot.

What Saved the Home.

In the American Magazine a man who has had twenty-five years' matrimonial experience says that he and his wife were growing farther apart and constantly quarreling. The family would have been wrecked had it not been for two things, which he describes as follows:

"First was the baby—a healthy, charming child—to whom we were intensely devoted. For months the baby was about the only subject we could agree upon. The other safeguard was our sense of humor. I have since thought that no two persons should marry unless one or the other has a sense of humor. With us the sense of humor usually came to the rescue at the most trying times. One or the other of us would be struck with the ludicrous feature of our quarrel and laugh, and pretty soon we made up."

Origin of One Proverb.

One obtains historical glimpses in proverbs. The familiar "robbing Peter to pay Paul" is said to derive its origin from the fact that in the reign of Edward VI the lands of St. Peter at Westminster were appropriated to raise money for the repair of St. Paul's.

A Mannish Lady.

An eccentric lady who was a source of great amusement to the then Prince of Wales in those earlier years was Lady Sophia Macnamara who is described in "On the Track of the Great." She was the most independent woman I have ever met—robust and breezy, and had made pictures of him then at the front and at Lemberg. He remembered and immediately spoke of Meuse, the English photographer. While I was making pictures and the camera was being re-loaded so that I could put in some new film, several of the soldiers came up close, while the czar was watching how the camera was loaded. They were smoking. One of them elbowed the czar away and at the same time blew smoke directly in his face. But the czar did not show that he was annoyed by this. THE PERFECT SPELLER.

Test Him by Having Him Write This Jumble From Dictation.

One occasionally comes across a superior person who tells you he can easily spell any word ever printed in a dictionary. If ever you meet this type of man just ask somebody to dictate the following jumble to him and see how many mistakes he will make:

"Antinous, a disappointed, desiccated physician, was pelting potatoes in an embarrassing and harassing way. His idiosyncrasy and privilege was to eat-mayonnaise and mussels while staying at the Pteleides and seizing people's tricycles and velocipedes. He was an ardent teetotaler and had been on a picaresque jamboree. He rode a palmyre station and carried a salable papier mache bouquet of asters, phlox, mullein, chrysanthemums, rhododendrons, fuchsias and nasturtiums. He wore a sibyl's resplendent turquoise paraphernalia, an ornolou yashmak and astrakhan chaparajos. He drank crystallizable and disagreeable curacao juleps through a sieve. He stole some money and hid them under a peddler's mahogany bedstead and mattress.

"Like a fiend in an ecstasy of gayety I rushed after him into the mail-train, or melee, and held him as in a vice. I could not leave him, however, and the addressed mail, with atrocious, in the following imbecile words, which sounded like a soliloquy or a supercilious pean on an oboe: 'You are a ratable lunamoth, a salaaming vizier, an equinotial coryphe and an isosceles daguerreotype.'—New York Mail.

SWITZERLAND.

Little Country Has Been Most Useful of Neutrals.

The war has perhaps brought no greater contrasts than those afforded by the crowds that entered Switzerland before the outbreak of hostilities and those that now cross its borders. There is no longer any steady stream of tourists. In their place, exchanged French and British wounded soldiers cross the frontiers from Germany and proceed to the mountain and lake resorts as "paying guests" of the republic. Thousands of civilian refugees from the devastated war zone enter country in order to seek repatriation and rehabilitation on the beloved soil of France. Others there are, German subjects, who as spies have entered only to abuse the hospitality of Switzerland by means of their international plottings; and still others, forming a small but significant group, who have found the fatherland intolerable and the welcome opportunity of raising their protests in tolerant Switzerland.

Whatever the difficulties in entering Switzerland may be to-day, they were comparatively trifling in pre-war days, when tourists were welcomed with open arms. Swiss regulations for foreign traffic, though always more or less formal, inconvenienced the passenger by train, however, less than the passenger by motor car. The holder of

THE AIR EXPRESS.

In a lecture before the Royal Aeronautical Society, London, Mr. Claude Grahame-White said that before long it should be possible to establish a network of express air mails, and to arrange return day services between cities so far distant as London and Glasgow.

We should soon have speeds, he said, of 200, 250 and perhaps even 300 miles an hour.

Mr. Grahame-White prophesied that the whole of the high-speed transport of the world would be transferred gradually from land and sea to air. The lecturer showed slides of the four types of machine which would be in common use for commercial and pleasure purposes.

The first was a large passenger-carrying triplane, for 24 passengers, and a crew of five. It was hoped that route of Bruges, and the previous document must be shown to every roadmaster and official en route who might take it into his head to question the tourist's right to use the pass. The arrival at Bruges alone brought any real relief, for from that point on Switzerland seemed to stretch itself out along a lovely valley, inviting the tourist to the delights of travelling by road in Switzerland.

It is the peculiar characteristic of Switzerland that, after crossing its frontiers, one never appears to have wholly left the neighboring countries behind. The northern "gates" seem to introduce one to a modified Germany; at Geneva one is still in a French-speaking country; whilst the impression one receives upon entering from the south, of still being upon Italian soil, is at first difficult to shake off. The character of the scenery serves only to heighten the illusion. Ethnographically as well as physically, the soil of Switzerland seems to invite the various peoples of the earth to make of the country a place of rendezvous where international differences can be forgotten. Time alone will show, however, whether "international" Switzerland will be the unrestricted playground of the nations in the future as in the past.

A Wonderful Discovery Cures Catarrh Permanently

Formerly doctors prescribed stomach treatment for Catarrh and Bronchitis. They seldom cured and Catarrh has become a national disease. To-day the advanced physician fights Catarrh by medicated air. He fills the lungs, nose and throat with the antiseptic vapor of Catarrhazone. It is easy then for Catarrhazone to cure. It contains the essences of pure pine balsams, reaches all the germs and destroys the disease. Every case of Catarrh, Bronchitis and Sore Throat can be cured by Catarrhazone. The dollar outfit lasts two months and is guaranteed to cure. Small size 50c; trial size 25c. All dealers or Catarrhazone Co., Kingston, Ont.

Old Warships Put to Good Use.

In the days before the war, one of the features of Ryde, Isle of Wight, was the fleet of obsolete warships which rode mournfully at anchor to the west of the pier. There was a curious air of desolation about them with their gunboat gray showing rust everywhere, their truncated masts, cleared decks, and blackened brasses. As the ferry steamed out of Portsmouth, some four miles away across the Solent, they had a warlike appearance enough, but the nearer one came to them the more one saw that their fighting days were over.

But were they? May there not have been amongst them some of the old cruisers which joined in the now famous run for Zeebrugge the other night? Perhaps they are Ryde boats which now lie gloriously at the bottom of the sea, blocking the way to the "nests of Bruges."
