AN ARMY OF SPIES.

Holland Was Infested by Thousands of Them. There were ten thousand known German agents in Holland during the war...

They drifted into Holland on various pretexts. Some were highly educated men, capable of moving in the best society...

The chief task of this army of men was, of course, to keep in touch with Great Britain...

Holland but had no passport got one from the local consul (a Dutchman of course) simply on the production of a letter from home...

Again the spies benefited from the lack of co-operation between the different British departments...

Dutchmen were largely used as couriers between the German agents in Holland and the spies in Britain...

Photography was used to an extraordinary extent. Passengers boarding the boats for England were snatched and the photos all carefully filed...

With the threat of exposure as a lever, great effort was made to turn him into a traitor. Fortunately, he acted promptly and with courage...

Finally, an instance may be given of how the practice of spying has been ingrained in the German people. A Dutch family living at Haarlem had a German boy of 11 staying with them in the summer of 1917...

Allahabad. Allahabad is the holy city of the Indian Mohammedans, Benares is the holy city of the Hindus...

European Wine. Before the war the vineyards of Europe covered about 21,000,000 acres and the average yearly wine production was 1,170,000,000 gallons.

The Clever Japs. Japanese manufacturers of electrical apparatus are planning to show their independence of Germany as a source of electric locomotives...

Battle-oxen. Some of the natives of Ecuador cut a beetle that is found extensively on high plains of that country...

Printers in Japan receive 67 1/2 cents a day.

A NEW IRISH PARTY.

"Some Rule Within the Empire" is Their Policy.

Although it is, as yet, too early to attempt any forecast concerning the prospects of the new Centre Party in Ireland, there is no doubt that the prime movers in the scheme can lay claim to the confidence of both sides...

In those days Sir Hubert Gough had very strong and imperative views; but, he declares, he had not been coerced. Sir Hubert is quite as definite on this point as he was in 1914...

There is nothing vague about his views, as he unfolded them, recently, Ireland, he insists, needs self-government to steady herself...

Now as to the arguments for or against Sir Hubert Gough's views, they may be for the moment regarded. They are sufficiently well known. Indeed, it is difficult to imagine that there remains, at this date, any argument for or against Home Rule for Ireland which has not been adduced...

An interesting item of literary news from London has it that poets and essayists are receiving an unusual amount of attention...

Pat Went East. In a small village in Ireland the mother of a soldier met the village priest, who asked her if she had had bad news...
