Whales and Porpoises Taken for U-Boats, Torpadoes.

There is peril in beging a whale or a porpoise in the North Atlantic these days. If you are a whale, par days. If you are a whale, particulariy a spouting whale, you are apt to be mistaken for a submarine; and if you are a porpoise you are apt to be taken for a torpedo. There is many a shattered carcases and abashed gun crew. In the phosphorescence of even winter nights, a porpoise just under the surface can make an experienced lookout have a moment's suspense and a little high for a torpedo, but in the first moment a lookout ian't given bow and stern on a phosphetis a conspicuous eviden ship, though it is a question how visin it would be through a periscope at about its own level. From the decks of the ship itself of from the dock of an emerged submarine is dock of an emerged submarine it flashes plain. If it could only be camouflaged along with the smoke! And on such a night in the zone there is the eerie sense of more than one submarine that has worked her way ng in the white wake of a slow ship, keeping tab so thorough the night and waiting for dawn to sheer off and strike. That is why, as dark comes on, a destroyer is apt to drop back from the side of the ship and lurk along the wake, seeking its prey also. I remember one velvety black night. luddenly a great white trail shot across our how from port to starboard and just a few yards dead shead. If s porpoise is too narrow and too semed too broad, but deep enough. It was the wake of a destroyer that has eut across in a hurry.—Nelson Col-lins, in the Century.

A PRIZED OLD RIFLE

Relic of the Indian Wars of Kentucky.

There is a story of the American rifle that has been handed down in the hearthstone history and traditions of these who for generations have lived in the West. It begins with the Greenbrier region of Virginia of colonial times, thence into Kentucky. Missouri in the days of Upper siana, thence to the great prairies of the far West and on to California. The family rifle was dear and sacred. John and Margaret Ferril and their amily were with a party of pioneers from the Greenbrier region who migrated to Kentucky in the early days. Owing to the hostilities of the Indians, they were armed and under the and of Capt. Jacob Baughman, a brother of Margaret Ferril.

Baughnan, John Ferril and others were tilled, but the men held back the Indians long enough to enable some of the women and children to escape. Among the number thus saved were Margaret Ferril, a son, John Ferril, and two daughters, and also Mrs. Jacob Baughman, a son Henry of tender age, and two daughters.

The Baughman-Ferril fight, or mas-John Ferril, then fourteen years old, who had escaped, swore an oath of revenge on his rifle. He kept that yow, and his rifle became a bloody one in the Indian wars of Kentucky. In the Boone Lick region of Missouri, now Howard county, in 1812.

Meaning of the Crescent.

The Turkish crescent, although now egarded as essentially Mchammedan in significance, is, it appears, of Christian origin. A crescent moon was the emblem of the Byzantine Empire and the Eastern Church. The Turks adopted it as a badge of tribled the bait until it had succeeded fumph after the capture of Constantinople in 1453.

With reference to the crescent, the story of the origin of the crescent laped Vienna roll is of curious interest. It arose in the sixteenth century, when the Turks were besieging Vienna. Failing to carry the city by Vienns. Falling to carry the city by rate, treut—have memories:

FISH FALL IN LOVE.

They Are Not So Cold Blooded as Tradition Says.

Fish fall in love just as surely as do the higher animals and human beings. It has been proved, too, that they give expression to their emotions and feelings.

A famous authority, Dr. Francis Ward, said this, and added that if one only knows how to observe fish one can tell what they are thinking bout, what they intend to do, and what they are feeling!

It may seem highly ridiculous to talk about the emotions of fish, and of their intentions, but they have these feelings, and they do express them. They love and fight as we do. That fish can actually reason, although yery slowly, has been proved by M. Ozner, the French naturalist. He made a series of interesting ex-

"Kicked Into Literature."

Son of an adventurous naval captain, Rolf Boldrewood, or, to give him his real name, Thomas Alexander Browne, the author, had one of the most romantic careers in the annals of literature. Pioneer squatter in early life in Victoria, he made such good use of his opportunities that while still nn the twenties his cheque was good for a quarter of a million. Then, if unfortunately for himself, luckily for novel readers, a long drought killed off his flocks, and herds and compelled him to enter the government service as a stipendiary magistrate. Shortly after this he happened to be kicked by a horse. This laid to his being laid up, and to while away the tedious hours he wrote an Australian sketch called "The Kangaroo Rush." He sent it to the Cornhill, which accepted it, and so, as he used to say merrily, "he was kicked into literature."-London Opinion.
