Election to be Held

Nomination meeting for the village took place on Monday evening in the Temperance Hall with Clark A. Rodgers presiding. Two names were put on the slate for Reeve, that of R. W. Smith, the past reeve, and Mr. C. S. McCarter. Mr. Smith resigned from the running leaving Mr. McCarter the position by acclamation.

The following names were nominated for councillors: Messrs. I. W. Holmes, J. A. Burwash, J. S. Burwash, Lewis Miller, John Ivey, R. A. McCarter, N. R. Pond, G. Steel, H. Misner, A. Miller, R. Walter and R. Shaver. The first mentioned six gentlemen have withdrawn from the contest and an election will be held Monday next to decide who, among the remaining gentlemen, will occupy the seats for the coming year.

In his withdrawal from local municipal affairs the town will regret that Mr. I. W. Holmes has deemed his duty to the community completed, as he has earned by his unusual good judgement and unstinted time the gratitude and deep respect of the ratepayers in general. Mr. Holmes has sat continuously on the Council board since the incorporation of the village, filling the Reeve's chair for a number of years and his retirement will be a distinct loss to the Village's welfare. A very large part of the credit of our good roads is due to him and the town people extends to him a most sincere and hearty vote of thanks for services rendered and the wish that he may be long spared to years of prosperity and happiness.

In the township the Reeve and Councillors were returned to office by acclamation.

Veteran Merchant Has Passed Away

Toronto, Dec. 31.—John D. Ivey, founder and president of the John D. Ivey Company, Limited, and one of the veterans of the wholesale trade in Canada passed away yesterday morning after an illness of two weeks. For some years, although retaining the presidency of the company, he had taken little active part in the management of the business, but it was only recently that his health began to fail.

The late Mr. Ivey was born in Jarvis, Ontario, 66 years ago. He was only 29 when he went to London, Ontario, and started a wholesale business—the starting point of the present company. In 1885 he made Toronto the headquarters of the business.

Mr. Ivey was a man of varied interests. He was a member of the council of the Board of Trade, being chairman of the dry goods section. He was a director of the Trusts and Guarantee Company, an honorary governor of the Toronto General Hospital, and a member of the National and Caledon Clubs. He had for many years been an active member of Sherbourne Street Methodist Church and took a great interest in the East End Nursery.

A widow and four children survive, Arnold M. Ivey, manager of the John D. Ivey Company, Limited; Percy D. Ivey, Mrs. Lindsay Wells of Chicago, and Miss Lenora, of Toronto.

The funeral will be held from Sherbourne Street Methodist church at 10 o'clock Wednesday morning to the Forest Lawn Mausoleum.

Gone Home

(PUBLISHED BY REQUEST)

One by one our loved ones leave us for His sweet and blessed home beyond. On Thursday last all that remained mortal of the late, Mrs. Richard Roberts, who died on the 17th ult., under distressing circumstances, were laid to rest. As our readers now know, her end was most tragic and pathetic. How vain is the effort for the mind to try to grasp the full significance of her agonizing death, how difficult to get any clear, comprehensive conception of her suffering as the torturing elements prayed on her poor helpless form. Yet amid all this confusion and dimness of perspective, she died as one would want to die, full of hope of a glorious immortality and conscious of her surroundings.

Despite the agonizing pain she tried to convince those about her that she was dying in a peaceful way. She tried to look at those as best she could as though wanting to say, "Don't worry, dear ones, we'll soon meet again in the home that is waiting for us." She was conscious to the end and time and again during the few hours that life was spared her she tried to whisper in a fainting voice words of consolation to the weeping ones. At 3:15 p. m. that very day she closed her eyes for time immemorial and Our Divine Lord, in whose hands the scales of justice and wisdom and the rod of chastisement and olive branch of mercy, had taken her to his bosom.

An impressive service was held at the house on the day of the funeral, at which the Rev. H. L. Smith spoke very highly of the christain life of the deceased—a life she had given towards the ennoblement of others and one full of love and honest living. She had a tendency to inculcate the spirit of love and to exemplify the sublime grandeur and the irresistible potency of service and of sacrifice over the principles of selfishness and to prove that kindness is more potent than indifference. Her Christian graces of love, long suffering and patience truly did transcend in power and regenerating influence the dead cold formulas and philosophies of every day life, for

There is nothing so kindly as kindness. And nothing so regal as love.

Mr. Smith spoke from the 23rd Psalm and also from a chapter of Revelations. The body was finally borne to the grave by the following, who acted as pall bearers: Messrs. A. Rodgers, J. J. Parsons, George Histed, John Wadham and Wm. Parkinson. The entire family was present while among those from afar were: Mr. A. Roberts of Toronto, Mr. Moses Roberts of London, Mr. Albert Roberts, Mr. Richard Rowe and Mrs. Fred Williams of St. Thomas, Mrs. Jas. Ward and Mr. and Mrs. Jas. McEwan of Stratford, Mr. Charles and Mr. Albert Wade, of Norwich.

Despite the terrible condition of the country roads and the influenza scare the funeral was very largely attended. During the service the beautiful hymn, "Rock of Ages" was sung and an unbidden tear rolled from the eyes of many.

HERBERT ROBERTS.

Toronto, Ont.

Cheap Housing and Labour Saving in the Winter Fattening of Swine

(Experimental Farms Note)

One of the most common losses in connection with winter swine management is due to crippling or rheumatism. That this malady easy to contract and difficult to cure, may be practically eliminated, or rather, prevented, in breeding stock, wintered out of doors with open shelters has been demonstrated beyond doubt. No ill-effects has cropped up to offset this advantage. With several individuals in a small, well-bedded cabin, there is no apparent discomfort to the inmates even during the most rigorous months of the Canadian winter.

The fattening hog, heavily fed, required to make maximum gains in minimum time, would seem to require warm quarters. The energy required to offset cold would thereby be utilized for growth and fat production. Less feed would be required. While the latter premise proves true, the fact of the matter is that the swine feeder is confronted with the choice of two apparent evils,—a comparative cold house, that because of its nature, is practically like outdoors and therefore dry, or a more expensive, tightly-built, warmer structure, that even if ventilated, usually proves more or less damp. Crippling in hogs will appear to a greater or lesser degree under bad or good management. Damp quarters undoubtedly predispose to it. Add to this, heavy feeding, with occasional overfeeding, and the result is frequently that of several more or less crippled pigs, the whole or partial losses from which will seriously affect the winter's profits. On the other hand it is now pretty well proven at several points in the Experimental Farm System that such losses from outdoor fattened hogs are practically negligible and that the evidence of thrift and quality restraint, very greatly overbalances the extra cost of outdoor feeding. Cold air should in itself have no virtue. Nevertheless the open air hog is more vigorous and healthy than one fed in warm dry quarters. Constantly pure air and a certain amount of exercise would seem to be responsible.

Very little capital need then be tied up in winter swine feeding quarters. A low sleeping birth made of old boards and covered with straw within or near a shed for feeding purposes, is necessary. While a straw stack is frequently used for shelter, the above arrangement is better. Access to a pile of horse manure in the shed or yard will provide a certain amount of food and exercise and a very considerable amount of recreation for the hogs. Such an arrangement, as discussed, provides a dry comfortable bed, a difficult acquisition in a fairly expensive building.

The use of the self feeding during winter has also proven a success. The feeder or feeders must also be protected by a shed, as suggested. There is no trouble from frozen troughs and the general convenience and waste of slop feeding in winter. Much disagreeable work in the cold is avoided: in fact the man who has used the self feeder for winter work finds it even more of a convenience than in the summer. As to gains and cost to produce tests have proven it usually superior to the hand-feeding method. Whole, cracked, or ground barley and oats may be fed. Shorts, bran, re leaved screenings, etc., may be mixed with the above, or following the American plan, fed separately in compartments. Where corn enters heavily into the ration, tankage should be fed in a compartment by itself. Charcoal, woodshavings, slaked lime, salt, etc., or a mixture of these should be available. If nothing better, supply of ashes, both coal and wood. Where dairy by-products are not available, water, preferably slightly warmed, must be supplied. Some form of watering device including a tank heater, home-made or purchased, will prove useful where many hogs are kept. A rough rack along one side of the shed near the trough or feeder should be kept filled with well-cured clover or alfalfa hay. Enough of it will be eaten to help balance the meal ration, supply necessary and palatable roughage, and materially reduce costs.
