Vacuum Washer

ABOVE is an illustration of the Maxwell Vacuum Washer which is the newest and latest type of washer to be placed on the market. As the name implies the Washer cleanses the clothes by the vacuum process: the vacuum cups force the hot suds through the clothes on the downward stroke, and on the upward stroke, the water following the vacuum created, rushes upward, thus thoroughly cleansing the clothes without the pulling and twisting to which they are subjected in other types of machines.

MAKE HIM TASTE WAR.

French Poilus Suggest Punishment for ex-Kaiser.

A little French weekly, the Cri de Paris, lately received from a group of French soldiers the following letter on the subject of the ex-Kaiser's punishment:

This is how we think the Kaiser ought to be punished:

William II shall wage war until death ensues.

Every day he shall march 15 miles with full pack and equipment, carrying a quick-firing rifle and a load of hand-grenades. He shall wear a trench helmet and never be allowed to take it off.

At the end of his 15-mile march he shall be made to cross marshy ground with water up to his waist.

He shall be made to walk down sodden communication trenches in which telephone wires shall have been artfully arranged so as to entangle him.

He shall spend every night in a narrow trench, in which a few dozen rats shall be kept, and near which there will lie some decaying carcasses.

As soon as he begins to doze off a few hand-grenades shall be exploded, as well as a mine, which should throw him bodily some ten yards away.

Every night he shall be made to walk for two hours in the dark across broken ground, and to cross several wire entanglements while carrying cases of hand-grenades.

As for hygiene and comfort, he shall change his underclothes only on the first of each month, so as to become a prey to vermin; he shall be allowed to wash on that day only.

For rations, he shall be entitled to one tin of bully-beef per day, with a quarter of a loaf of bread, and, as an appetiser, some sardines in oil; he shall drink either water or sour wine, half a pint for each meal.

This shall last for 265 days in the year. During the meal hours one might improve his mind by reading aloud to him selected passages from Boche philosophers, in lieu of the customary reading of the communiqué.

Thus perhaps he might be made to realize the sufferings endured by millions of men who, through his fault, were sent to the slaughter.

No Hindu Cousins.

All able-bodied members of the Hindu family must contribute their labor and earnings, whether of personal skill or agriculture and trade, to the common stock; weaker members, widows, orphans and destitute relations, all must be maintained and supported; sons, nephews, brothers, cousins, all must be treated equally, for any undue preference is apt to break up the family.

We have no word for cousins—they are either brothers or sisters—and we do not know what are cousins of two degrees removed. The children of a first cousin are young nephews and nieces just the same as the children of your brothers or sisters. The family affections, the family ties, are always very strong, and therefore the maintenance of an equal standard among so many members is not so difficult as it may appear at first sight.

Moreover, life is very simple. Until recently shoes were not in general use at home, but sandals without any leather fastenings. I have known of a well-to-do middle class family of several brothers and cousins who had two or three pairs of leather shoes between them, these shoes being only used when they had occasion to go out, and the same practice is still followed in the case of the more expensive garments, like shawls, which last for generations, and with their age are treated with loving care, as having been used by ancestors of revered memory.

The joint family remains together sometimes for several generations until it becomes too unwieldy, when it breaks up into smaller families, and you thus see whole villages populated by members of the same clan.—Bhupendranath Basu in Journal of the Royal Society of Arts.

Good and Bad.

A good story concerning De Valera, the Sinn Féin leader, is going the rounds of London.

It appears that recently a certain London newspaper sent a reporter over to Ireland to take shorthand notes of one of his speeches. The audience objected, but De Valera was all smiles and urbanity.

"Let the gentleman remain," he said, "so far as I am concerned, he is at liberty to report my speech verbatim, if it pleases him."

De Valera advanced to the front of the platform. Eyes glistened, ears were all attention, and the reporter's pencil was poised in the air. De Valera bestowed one more benevolent smile on the newspaper man, winked wickedly at his audience, and began his speech—in the Gaelic language.—Pearson's Weekly.

POWER OF PREJUDICE.

The Reason Why People "Don't Like" and "Can't Eat."

To a far greater extent than we admit, or possibly are aware of, man is governed by his prejudices. They cost him more than he knows, for a prejudice is an expensive proposition. In no other respect is this weakness so apparent as in the matter of food. During the reign of the food administration many people were persuaded or beguiled into eating things they had never eaten before and thought they "didn't like." "I'll try anything—once!" was regarded as a liberal-minded concession to the unfamiliar. Yet our likings are almost universally a matter of habit established by repetition. Few of us have taken kindly to caviare, avocado pears, or even olives, on first acquaintance.

When the use of whale meat was first urged upon the public, people laughed and quoted:

He baited his hook with tiger's tails, And sat on a rock and fished for whales.

Whale meat is purchasable in many parts of Canada, but where is the steward or chef brave enough to place it on a hotel menu? As a matter of fact, there is nothing in the slightest degree objectionable to eye, nose or palate in whale steak, as those unprejudiced may quickly learn. It resembles corned beef—possibly a little less so, and broiled and served with a sauce, either drawn butter or a lemon sauce, is tasty enough for a second helping, once we have overcome our dread of the untried. That this meat will eventually be recognized as a food adjunct is indicated by two large canneries doing a good business on the Pacific Coast and the concessions granted to the syndicate supplying them.

The flesh of the shark is said to resemble that of the sturgeon—the fish that "goes to the Caesar's dish," but it's cannibalistic reputation, firmly fixed in the popular mind, is against it. Man's dread of the grotesquely untried is only equalled by his curiosity, which after all gets the better of his fears. Truly, he was a brave man who first swallowed a raw oyster.

Prejudice plays a large part in our food purchases. Take the case of Butter versus Oleomargarine. Experts in the former have been known to fail in ability to distinguish the two, yet we are willing to pay 20 per cent. more for butter than for the substitute. The prejudice against goods from storage helps bolster the cost of living. Were it not for storage facilities butter and eggs to-day would be luxuries for the very rich only. The public was recently reliably informed that storage eggs had proved fresher than fresh eggs. The rabbit would furnish food as well as fur if our "don't like" did not stand in the way. As a matter of fact, our "can't eat" and "don't like" are mainly psychological states fixed in habit and prejudice.

Grinding Valves.

Every automobile owner has occasion to have the valves of his engine ground at more or less regular intervals. The old and laborious methods of hand grinding are being supplanted by the use of an electrically driven valve grinder. The spindle of the new device is said to oscillate with a long, steady sweep similar to the movement obtained in grinding, but many times more rapid. The pistol grip and trigger switch are employed, and make it possible to operate and control the grinder in a very convenient manner.

More Comfort.

Comfort is assured riders on farming implements by an Illinois inventor's seat, which is mounted on one end of a pivoted bar, the other end of which is attached to a coiled spring to afford balance and prevent shocks.

Points of View.

"My husband is so jealous!"
"How absurd!"
"Why, isn't yours?"
"Of course not."
"How humiliating!"

Ladder of Fame.

There are splinters in the ladder of fame. But you never notice them until you begin to slide down.

A Long Word.

It was recently stated that the longest word in the English language sonographicallitudinarity, for which I fancy Dr. Samuel Johnson was responsible. I offer antidisestablishmentarianism, which was used, I believe, by the late Archbishop Benson. By changing it into an adjective (ism to istic), you get two more letters, making twenty-nine in all. I have not looked it up in the dictionary, if it is not there, it ought to be. It is a word which the late Provost Salmon, of Dublin University, would have called "portentous."
