Clemenceau's Plain Talk to the German Delegates Who Admit Guilt, but Ask for Clemency.

Versailles Cable—Elaborate preparations were made for the historic occasion of handing the peace terms to the Germans in the Trianon Hotel, both in and outside the building.

Outsides there was a small army of gendarmes who formed a barrier against the approach of such persons as were not entitled to enter the room where the momentous scene was to be enacted. Inside everything was in readiness for the meeting between the allied and associated delegates with the German plenipotentiaries.

The day, which was the anniversary of the sinking of the Lusitania four years ago, dawned bright and clear. Those who measure history by the day called attention to the fact that 177 days had passed since the armistice was signed and 109 days since the allied and associated power began their deliberations at Paris, the fruit of which was the peace treaty presented to-day.

CLEMENCEAU'S ADDRESS.

Following is the address of M. Clemenceau to the German delegates:

"Gentlemen, Plenipotentiaries of the German Empire: It is neither the time nor the place for superfluous words. You have before you the accredited plenipotentiaries of all the small and great powers united to fight together in the war that has been so cruelly imposed upon them. The time has come when we must settle our account.

"You have asked for peace. We are ready to give you peace. We shall present to you now a book which contains our conditions. You will be given every facility to examine these conditions, and the time necessary for it. Everything will be done with the courtesy that is the privilege of civilized nations.

"To give you my thought completely, you will find us ready to give you any explanation you want, but we must say at the same time that this has cost us too much not to take on our sides all the necessary precautions would be the worst method to go on and guarantees that the peace shall be a lasting one.

Government proposed the principles of the President of the United States of North America as the basis of peace, and on the fifth of November their Secretary of State, Mr. Lansing, declared that the Allied and Associated Powers agreed to this basis with two definite deviations.

WILSON'S PLANKS BINDING. "The principles of President Wilson have thus become binding on both parties in the war-for you, as well as for us and also for our former allies. The various principles demand from us heavy national and economic sacrifices, but the holy fundamental rights of all peoples are protected by this treaty. The conscience of the world is behind it. There is no mation which might violate it without punishment. "You will find us ready to examine upon this basis the preliminary peace which you have proposed to us, with a firm intention of rebuilding in common work with you that which has been destroyed, and repairing any wrong that may have been committed. principally the wrong to Belgium, and to show to mankind new aims of political and serial progress.

'Considering the tremendous quantity of problems which arise, we ought as soon as possible to make an examination of the principal tasks by special commissions of experts, on the basis of the treaty which you have proposed to us. In this it will be our chief task to restablish the devastated vigor of mankind and of all the people who have taken part by international protection of life, health and liberty of the working classes

"As our next aim I consider the reconstruction of the territories of Belgium and of Northern France, which have been occupied by us and which have been destroyed by war.

"To do this, we have taken upon ourselves the solemn obligation, and we are resolved to execute it to the extent which shall have been agreed upon between us. This task we cannot do without the coo-peration of our former adversaries. We cannot accomplish the work without the technical and financial participation of the victorious peoples, and you cannot execute it without us.

"Impoverished Europe must desire that the reconstruction shall be fulfilled with the greatest success and with as little expense as in any way possible. This desire can only be fulfilled by a clear understanding about the best methods to be employed. It and have the work done by German prisoners of war.
