Keeping Food Coal Without Use of Ice

As the weather grows warmer and ce elips into the ranks of commodities that march under the banner of H. C. L., the question of how to keep the refrigerator full this summer begins to worry the already sadly perplexed head of the family. But if you are handy with tools you can build an iceless ice box at a trifling cost, and the cost of operating will be nothing. Here is the way it is done:

A wooden frame is made with dimensions 42 by 16 inches, and is covered with screen wire, preferably the rustless kind. The door, made to fit closely and mounted on brass hinges, can be fastened with a wooden latch. The bottom is fitted solid, but the top should be covered with screen wire. Adjustable shelves can be made of solid wood or strips or sheets of galvanized metal. Shelves made from poultry netting on light wooden frames, are probably the most desirable. These shelves can rest on side braces placed at desired intervals. A bread-making pan, 16 by 16 inches, is placed on the top and the frame rests in a 17 by 18-inch pan.

AN ATTRACTIVE SURFACE.

All of the woodwork, the shelves and the pans should receive two coats of white paint, and one or two coats of white enamel. This makes an attractive surface and one that can be easily kept clean. The screen wire also may receive two coats of enamel. which will prevent it from rusting. A cover of canton flannel, burlan or duck is made to fit the frame. If canton flannel is used, the smooth side should be out. It will require about three yards of material. This cover is buttoned around the top of the frame and drawn down the side on which the door is not hinged, using buggy hooks and eyes or largeheaded tacks and eyelets worked in the material. On the front side arrange the hooks on top of the door. instead of on the frame, and also fasten the cover down the latch aid. of the door, allowing a wide hem of the material to overlap the place where the door closes. The door can then be opened without unbuttoning the cover. The bottom of the cover should extend down into the lower pan. Four double strips, which taper to eight or ten inches in width, ara sewed to the upper part of the cover. These strips form wicks that dip over

Operation of the refrigerator is as simple as its construction. The low- aid of gravity to assist him in ridfrigerator depends upon the evaporation of water. To change water from a point evaporation, requires heat. As a piding to a nabor, or to pind evaporation takes place heat is taken from the inside of the refrigerator, thereby lowering the temperature of the incide and contents. The upper pan is kept filled with water. The water is drawn by capillary attraction through the wicks and saturates the cover. Capillary action starts mere readily if the cover is first dampened by dipping it into water or throwing water upon it with the hand. The great the rate of evaporation the lower the tempera-ture which can be secured. Under ideal conditions the temperature has been known to be reduced to 50 degrees Fahrenheit. Obviously, weather conditions have a lot to do with this refrigerator. A warm, dry day, with a slight wind, is possible blowing on the cover, produces the best results in maintaining coolness of contents. -Robert H. Moulton, in Philadelphia Record.

Snails in Aquariums.

A large glass tank is not necessary for a house aquarium, says Boys' Life. Small, inexpensive glass boxes that make desirable indoor aquaria, as well as glass tubs and jars, may be obtained from dealefs.

Do not buy a glass globe for an aquarium. These give a distorted view of the contents and are evidently uncomfortable for their animal inmates. Goldfish are pretty and interesting. but they are common in such globes and not-enough can be learned from them by the average student of nature. Fit up the aquarium as if you intended it for goldfish, then get something else. You can catch many things, but do not put too many into one aquarium. One of the most interesting aquatic animals is the common water snail. These are ordinarily kept in goldfish aquar a as scavengers, to clean up the debris and take off the green material that grows on the eide of the glass. Most people think of snails as aids in keeping the aquarium clean. but they are in themselves real objects of interest.

Tight Collars Muddle Brains.

Dr. Leonard Williams calls attention in the 'ractioner to the penalties that men and women have 'o pay for the erect posture. Instead of the heavy organs in their abdomens having the support of the floating ribs and the bony pelvis, as they have in the lower animals, they hang, gravity pulls them down and all sorts of displacements are the result.

There is but one advantage derived from the erect posture, according to Dr. Williams, but it is a most important one. This is the gain in drainage' from the brain and other organs situated in the head. In the horizontal posture this drainage is sluggish, whereas man "invokes the ering of temperature inside the reding his upper storey of effete matters. It is not inconceivable that this difference may explain the distinction between the intelligence, which we concede to the dog and the 'intellect' which we regard as the monopoly of his master. The distinction would be greater still if the master did not so frequently nullify the difference by wearing tight, ht collars to impede the all important drainage. A constricted neck means a muddled head; not infrequently it connotes a bad one and a pimply face."

Worth Knowing.

A dainty way to serve eggs for breakfast, luncheen or tea is to take round slices of bread, toast them delicately, butter them and dip them lightly in not water. On each round spread the white of an egg beaten stiff with a speck of salt. Make a depression in the centre, in which place a whole yolk, set the toast in the oven just long enough to set the yolk and brown the white a little. Place on a platter and garnish with parsley.

Are you worried over rusty iron utensils? There's nothing like kero-sene to remove that from iron. Any metal article that is badly rusted should be immersed in kerosene and allowed to remain until the rust has softened. Then wipe it with a soft cloth and polish with steel wool or silver polish, according to the finish.

(St. Paul Pioneer Press.) Rare is the day when the news columns do not bear testimony that something cannot be had for nothing. Men and women become parties to intrigue by embracing the conclusion that "here is something easy," or "here is something for nothing." And always they pay the price, if not in death or loss of liberty, at least in humiliation, grief and disgrace. Mortal flesh is weak, and that flesh which is immune to temptation is hardly flesh but a petrifled derivative of it. That is why mere preaching slips too often past deaf ears if it gets within striking distance of the ears at all. But the counsels of observation and common sense are for us all to take or leave. And if we leave them, we have abundant opportunity to knew, we are doomed sooner or later to join that large and inexclusive company of the stung.

Many of these mummies that have been found are undoubtedly very anopinion that they came from Japan. At the present time they are much mixed, racially speaking.

They spok e the Russian language at the time when, in 1867, the Aleutian Islands passed with Alaska, into the possession of the United States. Then, until 1884, they were left to themselves and governed themselves. They have now forgotten the Russian tongue, and are becoming Americanized. Most of them live in clean wooden houses and wear continental clothes. The women weave wonderful fabrics of grass, so finely plaited as to resemble silk.

A Windfall.

The origin of "windfall," in the sense of "good luck," dates from the time of William the Conqueror. It was than a criminal offense to cut timber in the forests. Only such could be gathered as the wind had blown down; hence, a heavy windstorm was hailed by the peasants as so much good luck, and from this comes the modern application of the expression. WIDELY DIFFERENT

Are Islands of New Zealand and Australia.

"Usually, in our mental geography, Australia and New Zealand are conveniently grouped, yet one of the first surprises awaiting the tourist from the northern hemisphere is to find that Australia and New Zealand may not be regarded as two islands of like appearance, differing mainly in size; near neighbors which may be treated as a unit," says a communication of the U.S. National Geographic Society from Herbert E. Gregory.

New Zealand is nearly twice as far from Australia as Bermuda is from New York, and it is not only east, but also south.

"Four days' travel across a chilly sea is required for the traverse from Wellington to Sydney, and after exchanging chill midsummer climate of the New Zealand lake region for the heat of Adelaide, one readily accepts the evidence of the map that the southern coast of the Australian mainland has the latitude of central New Jersey, while the southernmost of the three islands which comprise the Dominion of New Zealand occupies the position of southern Newfoundland.

"In climate and vegetation the two dominions are as unlike as Norway and South Carolina. New Zealand is a land of mountains, gorges, rivers and fiords. The higher peaks of the south island are eternally snow-capped and the glaciers of its southern Alps rival those of Switzerland. The surrounding seas are too cold for cor-Among the mountains of the North Island volcanic fires are still active, and the geysers and hot springs are little less impressive than those of the Yellowstone Park.
