RELATION OF THE SOIL TO THE GROWTH AND QUALITY OF TOBACCO

(Experimental Farms Note.)

Soil characteristics play a very important part in the yield and quality of all farm plants, but especially is this true of the tobacco plant. While the fertility of soils is the most important factor in determining the quality of and hence the market value of the crop.

During the past four seasons, fields and parts of fields prepared, manured, planted and cultivated in the same way and at the same time and of practically the same fertility as yields have identical, have shown marked variation in the quality of the cured leaf. In this article the word quality is being used to mean ripe, good colour, good texture, and good quality—in a word good tobacco in every respect. Soil samples have been taken from these areas and the mechanical analysis or composition has been determined for the fine cured, White Burley, and Cigar Tobacco districts.

The finest quality of White Burley has come from sand and gravel loams which contain not less than 65 per cent. of sand and from 3 to 15 per cent. of clay. Clay, clay loam, and muck soils have not been satisfactory for producing a good quality of White Burley tobacco.

The finest quality of cigar binders have come from the fine and very fine sandy loam soils containing from 2 to 6 per cent. of clay, 10 to 25 per cent. of silt and the remainder fine and very fine sand.

The foregoing refers, of course, to soils so situated that the drainage is good.

The Dominion Grange Lodge at Wiggins' Hall held an entertainment last Friday evening in honor of Mr. Matthias Schiltz, sr., who has been Master Grange of that lodge for over 40 years. The evening was spent in music, readings and speaking, after which the ladies provided them with sandwiches, cakes and coffee. Mr. Schiltz was presented with a handsome gold-headed cane for his labours, both in the Grange and as a good citizen in the neighborhood. Mr. Schiltz also served in the Woodhouse Council for some time in years gone by. As Mr. Schiltz is moving to Simcoe this week, what we as neighbors on the Scotch line are losing will be Simcoe's gain. May long life and happiness be with him in his reclining years.

It is announced that the Canadian railways will operate on Standard time this summer as the United States will be operated on standard time. Under these conditions there should be no confusion this summer over daylight saving.

Veteran Clerk Saves Records From Fire

Mr. Elias Boughner, of Simcoe, Painfully Burned About Hands and Face

SIMCOE, April 19.—Mr. Elias Boughner, Norfolk's veteran county clerk, in a heroic effort to-day to save records which took fire in a vault when a match struck to light a jet ignited gas which had escaped, probably from a partially turned off light, was badly burned about the hands and face. After first extinguishing the flames about his head, Mr. Boughner fought his way into the small vault and fought the fire with his hands before calling upon other officials to assist him.

His prompt and heroic action saved stacks of valuable records so that none were damaged as to essentials, but he is personally painfully burned about the hands and face.
