Nanticoke Notes

Mr. Wm. Ward has invested in real estate in Port Dover.

Mr. F. Head of Hagersville made a few business trips to this village during the week.

Last Friday evening a farewell party was given at Mr. Fred Lindsay in honor of Mr. and Mrs. John Long, who are about to leave this vicinity. A very pleasant evening was spent in music and games. Rev. Mr. Siples read a very touching farewell address. The evening was brought to a close by the singing of the National Anthem, followed by prayer.

Owing to atmospheric conditions, colds are prevalent among the young people. They would do well to consider the verse of Leigh's:

"You had better once hurry home, dear, to bed,
It is getting dreadfully late;
You may catch the bronchitis, or cold in the head,
If you linger so long at the gate."

At this season we are reminded of the words of the Apostle Peter, when he said, "I go a Fishing," and it is really wonderful how they bite, great quantities of them have been landed by spears and dip-nets.

Mr. V. C. Ward is helping his brother this week.

A gloom was cast over this burg last week when the tombstone agent passed through on his way east.

Sandusk

Alex. Bartlett made a business to Hamilton last week.

Mrs. J. W. Westerby and Mrs. Bert Ineson spent Monday with Mrs. Wm. Lindsay, Nanticoke.

The question was asked in one of our recent issues, "why the mail man continued his trip on Sundays?" The answer is this: to see how many people mind their own business.

A number from here attended the funeral of Mr. Wm. Sower on Sunday.

The Sandusk Women's Institute will hold their May meeting on May 6th, at the home of Mrs. James Bush. All members bear this in mind as it is the business meeting.

A Happy Man

Blessed is the man who doth subscribe for a paper and pay therefor. His feet shall not be forsaken by his friends nor persecuted by his enemies. Blessed is he that walketh into the office of a news paper—yea, even entereth the sanctum and payeth a year's subscription therefor. He shall talk knowingly upon all subjects, and his neighbors shall be astonished at the muchness of his learning. He shall not contract bad debts nor lose good bargains. He shall not pay additional per cent. on taxes, for he shall behind the notice of the collector, and he shall bring his products to market when the prices are exceedingly good and with hold them when the price decadeth. He shall not lay hold of red hot pokers, for the knowledge of metallurgy will teach him hot iron burns. His children shall not vex him nor his wife wear the breeches.

In efforts to check the high cost of living various plans are being tried, and with what success remains to be seen. In many cities where the price of potatoes has been boosted recently to hitherto unheard of figures housewives are banding together and refusing to purchase the tubers. This has been followed in some instances by a slight recession in the demands of the dealers, but for the most part the improvement in the situation has been scarcely appreciable. Some mere man who saw no prospect of being able to acquire a spring suit at present prices conceived the bright idea of substituting overalls, and just now the blue jean fad is having quite a vogue. Clubs for the promotion of this plan have been organized in a number of cities, but so far the only result has been to raise the price of overalls without lowering that of regular clothing. Just the same, it is the idea back of these movements that ultimately will solve the problem. When the public really become possessed by the knowledge that much of their expenditure is for non-essentials, and when they act in accordance with this knowledge and cut out all expenditures except for real necessities, the high cost of living will be modified materially, even though the pre-war prices will never prevail again in this generation.

A Motorist's Signal Code

The adoption of a universal signal code for motorists is being urged. Here it is:

Back of hand out, first finger raised: "You have a flat shoe."

Back of hand out, first and second finger raised as V: "Stop and inspect your car."

Back of hand out, first three fingers extended: "Am I on the best road to next town?"

Back of hand, fingers all extended: "Danger ahead."

Palm outward, fingers and thumb extended: "Stop! I need your assistance."

Surveyors and engineers are now laying out the work on the provincial highway from Cayuga to Canboro, so that the work may proceed with delay.

A Barnyard Story

The farmer said unto his son, yes, Willie was his name. "Here is a calf for you, my boy, to educate and tame. It shall be yours to raise and feed, to educate and scrub, to water it and diet it upon the wholesome grub."

The boy looked pleased at such a start, a tear came to his eye, he told his dad he'd do his best, he'd make an honest try.

The calf it had a bright career, it grew to beat the band, it was the finest looking sent that grazed upon the land. He gave it water, fed it hay, put bran into its feed, that cow had everything, by heck, a cow could ever need. It was along in the fall the boy with an important air, put ribbons on the critter's tail and led it to the fair.

And there it cleaned up everything from all the land around, it was a cow right from the horns to where it touched the ground.

A drover came around one day to buy some milking stock, and then the boy who fed the stock received one awful shock. The buyer pulled a long green purse that never could go smash—the boy he sold the cow all right, but father took the cash.

It's just such things as that, they say, that work a heap of harm, and makes it most almighty hard to keep boys on the farm.

By the way, you could see teams in every direction on Monday last, it looked as if seeding was in general on the Scotch Line.
