My Dear Boys and Girls: No! this Aunt has not forgotten all bout her boys and girls, but like the little pig whom you will, remember went to market, Aunt June has been ecross the sea visiting London and all kinds of pretty spots in old England. But like the little pig who had to come home again, home again" because his marketing was done, Aunt June was busy last week coming home again across the sea and this is the reason, my brave Helpers all, that you did not hear from me last week. I am glad, however, to find that I was not forgotten as there are still some letters in the mail bag for me. You would have been so amused had you seen your Aunt June get off the ship a week ago, all wrapped un ex-pecting to be met by a snow fall at least, if not a blizzard. It was so chilly on the ship coming up the St. awrence and there was even a little flurry of snow before we reached Queec so that most people hurried below to get out their fur coats, and said I to myself, "Now Aunt June you had beter put on some warmer things for you are back in dear old Canada and Jack Frost is probably waiting round the corner to nip your nose.' But what a surprise when I stepped ashore in Montreal. It was a beautiful day, every one wearing their ordinary suits and not muffled up, and by afternoon I was very glad to take off some of my warm things you may

SOMETHING FOR CHRISTMAS.

You remember in my last letter I promised to tell you how to make to help look after Viola, and you did something for Christmas. Well, the not tell me if it is a baby sister or a first thing I shall tell you will be how little brother? I am sure mother is to make bon-bon packages or cracker glad to have a Helper in her home, covers. You may call them which thank you for your letter. They are really crackers without the bang, and in them you may put all kinds of things. Little gifts who can milk cows. Well done Nellie. Tell us more about your farm home wrapped in silver or tissue paper; a needle book; wee pincushion; tape measure. Or if for daddy or uncle or brother Jack, such things as a pencil sharpener; key ring; a box of pen nibs, tie pin, cuff links or collar studs. You will require tissue paper. Choose pretty colors, pink, blue and green, would do to start with. Rolls of this paper can be bought at the 5, 10 and 15c stores. The crinkly kind in the morning and sometimes at night. I go after the horses in the morning and sometimes at night. I go after the horses in the morning and sometimes at night. is best though the crackers can be made with smooth. Gut your paper into strips about 4 inches wide and 8 or 9 inches in length. Now take one strip and fold it long ways into four. Take a pair of scissors and cut very narrow slits in each end. That is, cut the paper so that it will fall like a fringe or tassled end. Now take a blunt paper knife, a thin piece of flat wood or the back of your scissors, when they are closed, and gently stroke out each separate fringe of the paper holding it across your thumb. I hope you can follow this. Let me explain it a little more clearly. Hold your fringed paper in your left hand. Take the paper knife, scissors or other instrument in your right hand and as if you were going to peel a potato pick up the fringe of the paper across your thumb and the knife. You will find this stroking will cause the paper to curl up. prettiest effect will be obtained by curling some of the fringe forward and some of it backward. You now have the outside of your require a piece of fine white or colored tissue paper. Now you will want a motto. This you may make yourself by writing out either a riddle, verse or poem or anything that suits your fancy.

at almost any drug stores

Now wrap up your little gifts: candies or nuts or whatever you wish to put inside, place in the centre and wrap the colored cracker cover round it and fasten with a dab of paste. Where you have fastened the cracker a scrap picture should be pasted down to finish it off. You can make your own scraps by cutting out pretty heads or little colored pictures from magazines. Now take some colored thread. Choose the same color as your crinkled paper, if possible. Bind up the cracker about 11/2 inches from each end and tie.

You can spend a very pleasant evening making a whole box full of these and when filled just with candies, such as stuffed dates or sugared almonds, they make a nice surprise box to open on Christmas Day to hand round. These have been made most success fully by some of our members in past

Cashed a Banknote He Ate!

Not every Australian soldier can describe himself as a £20 ($100) Commonwealth bank note and present himself to the Commonwealth treasury for cashing, but this currency transaction actually happened recently, writes a correspondent. A young South Wales "Digger" was lying on the bottel field of Fleurbaix when he saw a German Ped Cross collecting party aproaching him. Remembering that he had a £20 note in his pocket which would almost certainly disapear, he pulled it out, memorized he number, and chewed it up. When released at the end of the war he returned to Australia and told the story at the Commonwealth treasury in Melbourne. At first his tale was regarded as a god joke, but finally the fficial reported the incident. Careful investigation was made, and it was found that on August 4, 1914, a £20 Commonwealth bank note had been issued bearing the figures memerized by the soldier. It was the only note of the series which had not seen returned to the bank authorities. The defense authorities were then asked to look up the soldier's record. and it was found that he had no black mark against him, so the money was

DEAR MISS ROSALIND: I am writing you a few lines to get some advice. I have been reading your answers in different letters, in papers. So I have made up my mind to write you a letter. And would like your opinion on what I am going to ask you. I am a girl of nineteen and was going with a fellow I really love; and I know he cared for me, but i at last got sore at him and haven't spoken for quite awhile. Different times I know he has started to follow me home, but has not come yet, and I know he thinks I will turn him down if he asks me. And that he wants me to speak first. I would love to. and yet I can't. I want him to. would love to have his company again. Different girl friends of mine are anxious we should make up. Please write and tell me, what is the proper way to come around thim. Thanking LONSOME ONE. DEAR LONESOME ONE: If you were in the wrong when you quarrelled, then it is most surely your place to make up. You might write a note telling the boy that you are sorry you were hasty and said what you did; and that you miss his friendship. Say you will be at home on a certain evening and that you will be giad to have him call.

If the fault is not yours at all; and the quarrel was the result of the young man offending you, then he must write and apologise. One of your friends will let him know that you will listen
