DEAD TOWN VERY SELDOM RECOVERS

Community That Is Not Prosperous Cannot Attract New Residents.

People Are Stockholders and When They Spend Their Money Away From Home They Deplete Its Capital.

If you need a on new life and prospered, but these abave, haircut, shampoo or massage you will get the right kind are merely the exceptions that prove

The fact that a town can seldom "come back" is easily explained. The growing and prosperous town to-day is the one that can attract new residents and new capital. It is one that can offer attractive inducements for the location of new industries. The dead town offers no attraction to outested first consult any Gerhard owner, there for a quality deal of 100 cents on the dollar consult the district reprenot going to pick out a dead town. He is going to select a town in which money is plentiful, a town whose business men are progressive and whose residents, as a whole, are prosperous and contented. There are too many live and thriving towns in the world for a man to risk his future I also sell wall papers of every in one that is dead. This is the reason that a town, once dead, almost always remains dead.

Town Like Corporation.

There is just one thing, ordinarily, that kills a town in the first place and that is a lack of money. A town is just like a corporation and the money possessed by its inhabitants is its capital. If this capital is depleted the town will fail just as the corporation, whose capital is depleted through poor management or other causes, fails. And just as the cor-takes no great amount of thought to our patrons is deserving of your be able to realize that the town, like the individual, cannot last long if it is paying out more money than it takes in. That does not mean that a prosperous town is one in which the people do not spend any money. On the contrary, a prosperous town is one in which the people do spend money, but it is one in which they spend the money at home. As long as the money is spent at home the town gains by having it kept in circulation, but when it is spent away from home, either by being sent to the mail order houses or by shopping trips to other cities, the town's capital is impaired to that extent and if enough money is spent away from home in that way, the town collapses ts capital.

The home merchant will not be the only one that will be hurt when the town "goes broke." The merchant can reduce his stock and cut down his expenses and get along some way or he can sell out and move to some other town which has not been so blind to its own welfare. It is the great body of the people of the community, including all those who have sent their money away to other cities instead of spending at at home, that suffers most when the hard times come.

The time for all the people to pull together for a live town is while the town is still live and not after it is dead, for when a town dies it is a long time dead—if not forever.

Merchants Not Only Ones Hurt. Many customers of mail order houses say that they are under no obligation to trade with their home nerchants and this may be true. They overlook the fact that the business men of a town do much for their community and are entitled, in return for what they do, to the support of the people in the community, but leaving this out of consideration, they overlook the fact that they are bringing about their own downfall when they drain their town of its money—
