ber plant? There is a kind which her plant? There is a kind which many people have in their houses which grows to a good height and has broad green leaves. My little friend Jack was telling me about the one at his house and he asked whether I thought they would be able to get real rubber from it, cubber that would make such things as a bouncing ball, or an eraser to rub out lead pencil marks. This made me think of a story I used to read when I went to school about some children who to school about some children who asked their father where India rubber

The Story of India Rubber.

"India rubber does not come from India only. If you were to take a walk in one of the forests of South America you would see groups of men soing from tree to tree cutting deep gashes in the bark. As the gashes are cut cups are placed beneath. Presently the tree begins to bleed (you know how our maple trees drop the say in winter time?) The juice which comes from these trees is milky white in color and very sticky. When the eups underneath are full the men collect them and the thick white juice is poured over large pieces of clay which are shaped somewhat like a bottle or a jar. To these the juice sticks and becomes firm. The men then set fire to a heap of palm trees which gives off a thick smoke. The juice covered clay is placed in this and changes in color from milky white to a duller shade.

When the juice has become dry and tiff the clay inside is softened water and scraped away leaving the outer covering which is then called bottle rubber, and this is ready to be sent away to be made into all kinds of useful things such as rubber dolls, coles of shoes and balls."

Many of you who go to school today will perhaps have learnt a great deal more about India rubber. Since the time that this was written rubber has been found useful in many other ways. I wonder who could give the best and longest list of uses to which subber is put. Next time you have to write a story in school this would be an interesting story to write about. Are you remembering the little birds? So far, no one has written me any news of our friend Robin Redbreast. We are getting near the time when everything will be frozen up so hard that little feathered friends will need your help to find a meal. Do not forget them. I shall look out for some bird news from country corners.

I have a number of pets but I think my favorite is a big white and brown collie dog. He is the same age as I am and we are great friends. Next Then we have a colt called Joe. He is two years old, and an awful monster for his age. Sometimes when he comes up to me in the field I will throw my arms round his neck and he will lift up his head and raise me away smoke until it gradually becomes hard up high. Well I must close now, with best wishes to the Club. Yours livingly,

The only class distinctions recognized in Canada are breeding and brains. If the young man is intelligent and as well educated as his circumstances and ambition permit; if he is well-bred enough to respect himself and his friends—you would be foolish not to benefit by his friendship.

BANK OF MONTREAL

ANNUAL GENERAL MEETING, HELD 6TH DECEMBER, 1920.

The 193rd Annual General Meeting of the Shareholders of the Bank of Montreal was held on Monday, December 6th, at the Bank's Headquarters. The President, Sir Vincent Meredith, Bart., occupied the chair, and presented the annual report of the Directors. Before moving the adoption of the report, Sir Vincent Meredith gave a comprehensive review of the economic situation. During the year, he said. an overwhelming demand for credit had taxed resources to the utmost. It had been difficult to make men who had grown accustomed to high prices recognize the fact that economic conditions, which no artificial means can altar, alone are the cause of price decline. "The demand for intervention through Government control is still insistent in some quarters," he said. "Canada alone cannot control world-wide conditions, and it is idle to turn to the Government for relief from falling prices. This applies to wheat as well as to other commodities."

Summing up, he said: "The situation in Canada at present, as I view it, is that while there does not appear to be any cause for apprehension, there is every reason for the exercise of the utmost measure of caution. Canada cannot disassociate herself from world conditions, and world conditions are not satisfactory. On this continent the two years' supervening upon the Armistice have been marked by unexampled trade activity and prosperity, a circumstance common to the conclusion of all great wars, but the reaction has set in and may not yet be in full play. Happily, Canada is well buttressed on many sides, and the exercise of prudence and sagacity should enable her to meet the shock of falling prices, restricted credits and deflated currency, without serious impairment of her commercial and financial vitality." Expansion of Business in Canad. The General Manager, Sir Frederick Williams Taylor, in reviewing the operations of the Bank during the year, said the payment of a bonus of 20 per cent, to the shareholders was not the outcome of higher rates of interest on current loans in CCanada but a reflection of the increase in current loans and of high interest rates on call loans in New York, the volume of which was governed by the Bank's requirements in liquid reserves. One anomaly which attracted attention was that with credit restrictions as the price of money was materially rather an inexpressable, indescribable lower in the Dominion. This condition, he said, was regarded as a tribute to Canada's good banking sys-
